China Floods Kill 150,000; 30 Millions Flee to West

China's Sorrows.

Meanwhile Gen. Chiang reorganized his government, with a view to a drive for active foreign aid against Japan. Page 4.

Because of a division in the Foreign Relations Committee on Chairman Pittman's resolution to indorse Secretary Hull's condemnation of bombings of civilians, the resolution was redrafted simply to place the Senate on record against such use of planes. Page 9.

Floods Kill Thousands.

By the Associated Press

Shanghai (Wednesday), June 15. The Yellow River swirled over hundreds of square miles of Honan Province today, threatening one of the greatest flood disasters in China's history.

Japanese military engineers reported 150,000 Chinese civilians drowned where the river broke through a 50-mile stretch of weakened dikes on its south bank.

Fate of a large number of Japanese troops was not known. It was believed, however, that thousands might be trapped and drowned throughout the area.

30,000,000 Flee.

Japanese military officials said their engineers were directing thousands of peasants in attempts to check the rushing river, but that it was virtually beyond control.

Major breaks in the dikes were between Kingshui, just north of the Chengchow junction of the Lunghai and Peiping-Hankow Railways, and Kaifeng, 50 miles to the east.

Foreign relief workers believed that ravages of floods and war in Honan, Anhwei and Kiangsu Provinces would bring a relief problem almost as great as that created by the World War.

An estimated 30,000,000 refugees were fleeing to the west to escape invading Japanese armies.

The flood was fed by almost continuous rains.

Rains Hamper Japanese.

Japanese reports from aerial observations were that Cungmow, about 25 miles east of Chengchow, was almost a lake; Kaifeng was surrounded by rising waters and entire villages had disappeared.

The flood waters blocked Japanese troops before Chengchow and forced them back as far as Kaifeng.

Far to the south of the flooded area, Japanese warships and land forces were driving up the Yangtze

20 Die as Slides Derail 2 Trains

Tokyo (Wednesday), June 15 (U.P.). Scores of passengers were buried in wreckage when two passenger trains were derailed by landslides on the Sanyo Railway Line near Okayama early today.

First reports said 20 were killed and 180 injured. Most of the casualties were school children going home for summer vacations.

Half-Blind Co-ed Dedicates Life to Children in the Dark

Girl Works Way Through G. W. as Secretary in Bureau of Indian Affairs, Plans to Help in Education of Sightless Youngsters.

There's a rosy glow in shadowland these days for Dorothea Estelle Jennings, all but totally blind since birth.

For Miss Jennings, one of the most efficient secretaries of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, has just been graduated with exceptionally high grades from the School of Education at George Washington University, and dedicated her life, as much as possible, to helping the sightless children of the world.

DOROTHEA ESTELLE JENNINGS.

"They must have the interests of other children," said Miss Jennings yesterday. "They must swim and hike and play in a sun that perhaps they can't see. And they must be educated not only by Braille, but by the use of readers and talking books as well. They must not be completely segregated from other children. They must learn to make their own way."

Shadowland, indeed, has been the realm of Miss Jennings since a day she can't remember, when a careless nurse in the obstetrical ward of a Chicago hospital put the wrong solution in her eyes.

Miss Jennings has what is known as objective vision. She can see the outlines of trees, the dull glow of the yellow sun and people as mere silhouettes. She has never been able to read—and her hard

War Refugees Flee Castellon, Jam Valencia

15,000 Women, Children, Old Men Tax Food Supply, Housing.

By the Associated Press.

Valencia, Spain, June 14.—A column of 15,000 homeless, hopeless women, children and old men reached Valencia today from Castellon Province. More streamed into the city every hour, requiring stringent emergency decrees to prevent Valencia from being overwhelmed.

Scarcely an able-bodied man was among the refugees. They stayed behind with the troops or as fortification workers.

Many came afoot from rich, ancient Castellon de la Plana, 40 miles north, target of the relentless insurgent drive last night. Behind them were a night and day of horror, of air raids, troop movements, fighting and plodding. Some escaped with wounds from the air attacks, which left whole families dead.

A special department was established for evacuating Castellon Province. Inhabitants were advised to report immediately how many refugees they could care for. They were warned that attempts to fal-

Dawes, Up Again, Gazes on 'a Damn Site Better World'

New York, June 14 (AP).—Gen. Charles G. Dawes, 72, former Vice President, left a hospital where he had been seriously ill nearly two months and boarded a train for Chicago today.

He wrote this statement wiith pen and ink:

"When a man whose life has been saved by the quick decision and skill of a great surgeon, and, after 51 days, well again, steps out of the hospital, his first feeling is one of gratitud to his maker and those who have cared for him, and his second, that this world is a damn site better place than he thought it was before he took sliick."

The surgeon was Dr. Henry W. Cave.

British Refuse To Risk War on Spanish Fliers

Chamberlain Bars Reprisal Against Franco Lest It Start Big War.

By Joseph Driscoll.

London, June 14.—Rather than take the risk of enlarging the Spanish civil war into a second world war, the British government has decided not to attempt any reprisals against Gen. Francisco Franco and his Italian and German allies, for the repeated aerial attacks on British ships in Spanish government ports.

This safety-first, do-nothing policy was announced this afternoon by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain to a crowded House of Commons, reconvening after the Whitsun recess.

Ready for War by 1940.

Laborites and liberals immediately criticized the government's attitude as cowardly and tantamount to purchasing peace at any price. Some of the government's own tory supporters found Mr. Chamberlain's statement disappointing in its refusal to make any effective use of the British Navy to impress Gen. Franco.

Yet the majority of the Conservative Party evidently considered the government's position, however humiliating, to be the only practical one under the circumstances. They believe that this country will not be adequately pepared for a general European war until 1940, and that in the meantime there is no sense in matching strength with the totalitarian military machines.

A Double Warning.

Since the middle of April 22 British ships have been bombed from the air in Spanish government ports. Eleven of these have been sunk or seriously damaged with loss of life, and in several cases the attacks appeared to have been deliberately directed against the British flag.

In the face of this implied challenge, the more radical section of British opinion has been demanding strong action against Gen. Franco—reprisals, blockades, breaking off of diplomatic and trading relations; any kind of action that would teach the rebel commander

Doctors Told They Must Aid Poor or Public Will Compel It

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, June 14.—A Government spokesman today warned the American Medical Association that the public would act to supply the masses of indigent and underprivileged with adequate medical care unless the profession itself quickly offered "progressive leadership" to help solve the problem.

The message was delivered to the association's house of delegates by Dr. Warren F. Draper, an assistant surgeon general representing the Government's interdepartmental committee to co-ordinate health and welfare activities.

"One-third of our people," said Dr. Draper, "are not going indefinitely to remain ill-fed, ill-housed, ill-cared for in sickness.

"Already they are on the march. The only question which remains is whether highly specialized groups, experienced in ways and means of meeting human needs, are going courageously and quickly to offer all they can give in constructive and progressive leadership and help in the meeting of the vast human problems of today."

Graft Charge Kills Airport Bill in House

Scott, Phillips Defeat Camp Springs Project With 133-69 Vote.

By Edward T. Folliard

The House last night defeated the bill to establish a $3,000,000 national airport at Camp Springs, Md., after sensational charges had been made on the floor that agents of the Government were trying to enrich themselves through a kickback on land options.

The vote, taken amid great excitement, was 133 to 69.

The $500,000 appropriation for the embattled project of a Thomas Jefferson Memorial at the Tidal Basin was still before the Senate when that body recessed at 12:31 o'clock this morning. The deficiency bill carrying the appropriation was set aside last night for consideration of a conference report on the flood control bill.

Roosevelt Urged It.

President Roosevelt had urged passage of the Camp Springs airport bill, after telling House leaders of a dream in which he said he saw an airplane crack up at the present airport.

Representative Alfred N. Phillips (Democrat), of Connecticut, said that the Camp Spring site was "one of the most miserable land grabs I have ever seen."

Phillips said that one of the lobbyists for the bill was a WPA official who openly boasted that he had an option on land at Camp Springs.

But Representative Byron Scott (Democrat), of California, went even further. He said that three representatives of the Federal Government had gone to the owners of land in the Camp Springs area, 10 miles from the Capitol, and had said:

"Whew!" They Exclaim.

"If we can get you $10,000 for your land, will you kick back 2 per cent? Will you kick back 5 per cent? Will you kick back 10 per cent?"

Astonished murmurs swept the House and some members could be heard to exclaim, "Whew!"

Scott told the House that if it were necessary he would disclose the names of the men whom he had accused of trying to work the "kickback." What he meant was that he would do so if the House reached that stage where it was ready to vote on the actual passage of the airport bill. As it happened, it never reached this stage. The vote was on a special rule formally to consider the bill.

Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, made an impassioned plea for the bill, saying that the men who flew the big transport planes were unanimously in favor of it. He accused Representative Scott of implying that the air-

Mules Carry Nine Air Crash Victims Out of Yosemite

Yosemite, Calif., June 14 (AP). Bodies of nine persons killed when a T. W. A. airliner crashed into a mountainside March 1, were brought to Wawona today on a mule pack train. Hearses took the bodies to Fresno.

Secretary Roper yesterday appointed a board to investigate the crash. The group, after making a field examination, will hold public hearings about June 21. Members are Robert I. Hazen, senior airline inspector, chairman; James E. Read, airline inspector, and Robert D. Hoyt, aeronautical inspector, all of the Bureau of Air Commerce. Robert Kingsley, Los Angeles, attorney and former associate editor of the Journal of Air Law, was named advisory member.

Arsenals Ordered To Speed Up Arms

Troy, N. Y., June 14 (AP).—United States arsenals shortly will be required to manufacture enough materials in advance to equip an Army for six months in event of war, Louis A. Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War, said today.

"We have found that our arsenals, if equipped with the most modern material and fully staffed with competent workmen, can turn out only 10 per cent of the materials this country would require in a major emergency," he added. "The other 90 per cent must come from private business."

Lewis Ridiculed.

By the Associated Press.

A coalition of Republicans and Administration Democrats dealt John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, a crushing defeat yesterday by bottling up in a committee a labor bill he appeared at the Capitol to sponsor personally.

Less than 24 hours after Lewis used Speaker Bankhead's office as a conference room in which to apply pressure to a group of House members the Rules Committee virtually eliminated any chance that the measure would be considered before adjournment.

The committe refused to approve procedure which would have led to House consideration—and possibly a vote—before the final gavel falls. The vote was not announced but one member said privately, "It was worse than overwhelming."

Lamneck, Green Attack.

Last night Representative Lamneck (Democrat), of Ohio, declared Lewis' appearance at the Capitol and his subsequent defeat was an event "which at first gave pause and then laughter" to the Nation. And William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, denounced what he termed Lewis' "brazen invasion" of Bankhead's office.

In a public letter last night to all A. F. of L. organizations, Green said the Lewis episode was typical of the C. I. O.'s "all-around stupidity, feebleness and outright treachery to labor." He continued:

"All chances of adoption of these amendments, which were favored by the American Federation of Labor, were ruined by Lewis and his flunkies.

"They attempted to dictate to Congress in the same way they dictate to the C. I. O. Unions. Many members of Congress who had told

Father, Son Caught In Mine Shout Up 'Hungry, Not Hurt'

By the Associated Press.

Ashland, Pa., June 14.—"Hungry but not hurt" were the words shouted up the rock-chocked slope of a mountain coal hole tonight by a father and his 17-year-old son, trapped since early Monday.

Rescuers tunneled a new entry in an effort to reach 48-year-old Peter Shinskowsky and Peter, jr., who huddled together, without food or fresh water, 100 feet down in the mine they operated. They had not taken lunches to work with them Monday.

Experts of the Centralia Colleries Co., owners of the anthracite property, and leaders of the Independent Miners Association, to which the Shinskowskys belong, worked side by side. They said they hoped to reach the pair by tomorrow.

They were imprisoned by the failure of a makeshift device for lifting coal which tore out timbers and allowed the sides to fall in.

4-Year-Old Saves Brother on Ledge

Richmond, Va., June 14 (AP).—Traffic was halted at third and Grace streets today as horrified pedestrians stared helplessly at a year-old boy playing on the ledge of a third floor apartment window.

The spectators heaved a concerted sigh of relief as the baby's 4-year-old brother, Tommy Martin, went to the rescue, grabbed the tot's clothing and yelled for help, which arrived in time to haul the youthful adventurer to safety.

Senate Votes Postmasters Lifetime Jobs

Glass Assails Measure as Worse Than the 'Vice' of Patronage.

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the White House a bill providing lifetime appointments for first, second and third class postmasters, after hearing the provision vigorously attacked by Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia.

"I do not give a continental damn for patronage," Glass told the Senate. "I think it is a vice. But I think an indeterminate term of office, practically a lifetime tenure, for the postmasters of this country is infinitely worse than so-called appointments by United States Senators."

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, ranking Republican member of the Civil Service Committee, joined in denouncing the bill. She termed it "not a merit measure," but "a travesty of the merit system."

Talked to O'Mahoney.

Glass recalled that when the bill was first before the Senate, "my chief objection to it was that it established, as it does now, life tenure of office in the postal service.

"I appealed to the Senator from Wyoming (Senator O'Mahoney) to accept an amendment that I presented providing for the appointment of postmasters for eight years instead of four years, and the Senator from Wyoming, having charge of the bill, accepted the amendment and apparently from the addresses made, the entire Senate was in favor of that plan, because it carried a postmaster from the term of one President beyond the term of a succeeding President."

Finds Contradiction.

Glass said "there is but one postmaster in the entire State of Virginia that the senior Senator from Virginia recommended for appointment, and that was in his own home."

The Virginian charged that the conference report, approved by the Senate, contained "a distinct contradiction."

"In the first paragraph," he said, "it provides: 'That postmasters of the first, second and third classes shall hereafter be appointed in the classified service without term by

Senate Group Compromises Relief Inquiry

Gives Job of Checking Use of Aid Funds to Existing Campaign Unit.

By Robert C. Albright.

Congress last night voted final approval of the bulk of the President's $3,753,000,000 spending-lending bill as a Senate committee asked for a Senatorial investigation of "politics" in 1938 spending of these and other Federal funds.

A House change in the $212,000,000 farm parity price title of the Senate relief bill forced this section of the spending bill back into conference, after both Houses had voted approval of central features of the relief-recovery program.

Earlier yesterday the Senate Audit committee compromised proposals for a "politics in relief" investigation by proposing an inquiry by the existing Senate campaign expenditures committee.

The new plan, which advocates of a separate investigation called "worse than nothing," authorizes the Campaign Expenditures Committee to seek out political use of any Federal funds, including Federal aid money in States and subdivisions.

Steagall Carries Runoff Primary For Renomination

Montgomery, Ala., June 14 (U.P.).—Representative Steagall, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, was renominated in a run-off Democratic primary, nearly complete unofficial returns showed tonight.

In reports from 215 of 240 precincts, Steagall had 14,201 votes and his opponent, J. Hubert Farmer, youthful Dothan attorney, 11,004.

The New Deal was not an issue. The nomination is tantamount to election.

Steagall, of Ozark, represents the Third Alabama District and was the only one of the State's representatives forced into a runoff.

Exile U. S. Critics to Alaska, Kill Labor Party, Hague Urges

By the Associated Press.

Newark, N. J., June 14.—Deportation of alien objectors to the American form of government, and a "camp in Alaska" to House native-born dissenters, to "keep them away from the American people," were advocated in Federal Court today by Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

"The reds have no right to express their views if their intention is the overthrow or destruction of the Government," said the vice chairman of the National Democratic Committee.

"They are not American citizens, but undesirables," he declared from the witness stand in defending himself against civil charges arising from his self-styled "war on reds and radicals."

Throughout his second day on the witness stand—his questioning began Friday and will continue tomorrow—the tall, athletically-built political leader expanded his views on communism, the rights of employer as well as employe, and his methods of dealing with those he considers "undesirables."

Adjournment Nears.

By Sidney Olson.

Throttled by a last-minute midnight filibuster, the Senate's adjournment rush was stopped dead just before 1 a. m. this morning after a grinding 13-hour legislative drive in which one major measure after another was either passed, killed or tossed overboard.

Administration happiness over final machine-gun enactment of the long-beleaguered wage-hour bill, hailed as the biggest piece of social legislation obtained by the New Deal since the social security act, was definitely dimmed by a deadly filibuster in the Senate against the conference report on the flood control bill.

The House adjourned at 11:45 p. m. until noon today and the Senate recessed at 12:30 this morning until 10 a. m.

Status of 10 Measures.

The status of important legislation before Congress through yesterday was as follows when the two Houses quit:

Wage-hour bill—Passed and sent to the White House.

Spending-lending program—Conference report accepted by both houses, except farm parity price provision—sent back to conference.

Radio investigatoin—Killed by House, 234 to 101.

Monopoly investigation—Voted by House (237-33) already passed by the Senate.

Flood control—Conference report approved by House; still before Senate in filibuster.

"Life tenure" for postmasters—Passed and sent to White House.

RFC railroad loans—Abandoned.

Power Program at Stake.

At stake in the filibuster was extension of the Administration's far-flung power program throughout the country. Five Senators—all foes of the President's Supreme Court bill—Burke of Nebraska, O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Walsh of Massachusetts and King of Utah, all Democrats, and Austin of Vermont, Republican, fought bitterly against the Barkley amendment to the $375,000,000 flood-check measure.

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, amendment author and Senate majority leader, said grimly early this morning:

"We are going to pass this bill. It may take tomorrow; it may take all week; it may take all next week—but we're going to pass this bill."

House leaders visiting the chamber warned the filibustering Senators their fight was futile. One of them told Senator King not to waste his efforts as the bill, with the Barkley amendment in it, is an ab-

Pennsylvania Rift Is Healed By Democrats

Lawrence Makes Guffey Campaign Manager for Earle and Jones.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 14.—Political foes for months, Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence and United States Senator Joseph F. Guffey lined up today side by side in charge of the party's campaign to retain control of the State government in the November elections.

Brought about by weeks of bickering, the reunion of the two leaders was made complete at the State committee's reorganization meeting.

Lawrence was re-elected chairman, along with Mrs. Edith B. DeWitt, vice chairman and Paul Noftsker, treasurer.

Silent on McCloskey.

The chairman then appointed Guffey manager of the fall campaign for the nominees he once opposed—Gov. George H. Earle for United States Senator; Charles Alvin Jones for Governor; Leo C. Mundy for Lieutenant Governor, and Thomas A. Logue for Secretary of Internal Affairs.

As a concession to the Senator, Lawrence appointed Edward N. Jones, publicity director of the insurgent Democratic ticket which Guffey backed, as vice chairman to fill an additional post created today.

Lawrence declined to comment when asked what would be done about the finance chairmanship held by Matthew H. McCloskey, Philadelphia leader. McCloskey was the target of primary campaign blasts fro mthe Guffey faction, who referred to him as "a boss contractor."

C. I. O. Backing Expected.

Only one of the four candidates Guffey backed was present—Mrs. DeWitt. Absent were Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, candidate for Governor; Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia, for United States Senator, and Judge Ralph H. Smith, of Pittsburgh, for lieutenant governor.

Kennedy objected last night to a resolution of his ticket's county chairmen, to support the nominees, passed 61 to 4.

Jones said today he expected Kennedy and John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chief, who supported the lieutenant governor, to back the Democratic ticket in November.

He explained that Kennedy was not ready for such action last night and that "labor needed" more time to reach its decision.

Roosevelt Names Judge A. B. Maris To Appeals Court

President Roosevelt last night sent to the Senate the nomination of Federal District Judge Albert Branson Maris of Yadon, Pa., as a member of the third circuit court of appeals at Philadelphia. Maris, appointed to the bench at Philadelphia a year ago, was backed for the post by Senator Joseph F. Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania.

The nomination completes filling of vacancies in the circuit court from which three aged justices retired recently. Earlier yesterday a Senate judiciary sub-committee reported favorably the nomination of Judge William Clark, of Newark, N. J., for the second vacancy.

Clark's nomination was opposed vigorously by former Governor George S. Silzer of New Jersey, who said Judge Clark was linked with the Fahnestock divorce case and started to read charges based on letters and newspaper clippings. Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, insisted that he confine himself to "what you know." Representative Hartley (Republican), of New Jersey, defended Clark, and P. W. Maguire, special assistant to Attorney General Cummings, said he and the F. B. I. had investigated Clark and recommended him.

'Not a Case Lost,' Says Labor Board

The National Labor Relations Board presented this record of Supreme Court litigation to its critics yesterday: "12 victories, 0 defeats."

Board officials became sensitive about their success recently when the high court, through an unrelated action in a stockyards case, caused the board to alter the course of some litigation and thereby make itself in error. Officials denied any error.

Utility Directors Vote Its Sale to Knoxville

Knoxville, Tenn., June 13 (AP).—Negotiations for purchase of Tennessee Public Service Company lines by the City of Knoxville and the TVA advanced today, when directors of TPS approved the transaction.

Members of the Knoxville City Council studied final draft of the contract and will meet tomorrow to vote on it. Under it the city and TVA will pay $8,035,000 for the properties instead of the previously announced price of $7,950,000. The city will pay $5,483,500 and the TVA $2,551,500. The city's part of the price is $108,500 higher than that originally given.

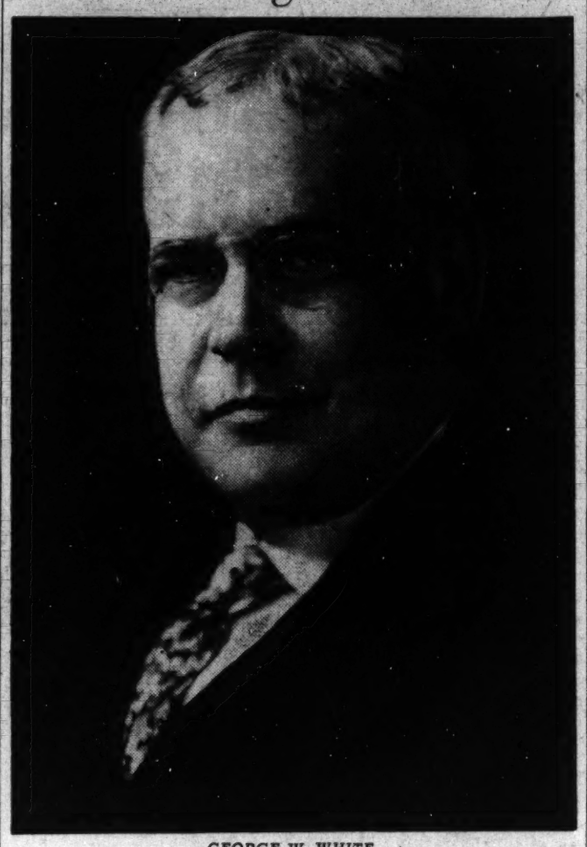
George White, Banker, Serves As Watch-Dog for Civic Funds



GEORGE W. WHITE.

By Christine Sadler

When the British were on their way into Washington in 1814, the Government issued 14 flintlock muskets to the Bank of the Metropolis. Fearful lest that be scant protection against fire-bent Redcoats, the cashier mounted a fast horse and took the bank's assets up to Hagerstown, Md.

After the scare was over, he rode the horse back again. The muskets had not been used but the Redcoats had been exceedingly busy. The young bank, organized in January of that year, pitched in with a $100,000 loan to the Government—as an aid in rebuilding "public edifices."

From that time to this, the bank—now the National Metropolitan Bank of Washington—and its presidents have taken an active part in activities affecting the District of Columbia. George Whitney White, eighth and current president, who keeps one of the muskets hanging in his office, is no exception.

A native of the District and a member of the Society of Oldest Inhabitants, he has long concerned himself with civic movements and kept an eye on development of the city.

The favorite enterprise, both of himself and Mrs. White, has been the Young Women's Christian Home, at 235 C street northeast. He has been active in work of the home since its beginning and its treasurer since 1903.

Other agencies and organizations with which he is now connected—to give an idea of the scope of his work, aside from banking—are found in the list of offices he holds. He is treasurer of the Emergency Hospital, treasurer of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, treasurer of the American Automobile Association, treasurer of the American Planning and Civic Association, chairman of the board of directors of the Potomac Insurance Co.

Taxation in the District of Columbia, he believes, is "getting burdensome" and should either be "spent more judiciously or decreased in scope." He does not consider that Congress does justice to the District in the matter of taxation, since the city's taxable property can be "taken away for Government purposes" and the property that is left has to bear the increased burden.

He would like to see the money spent particularly for slum removal and the development of streets. As far as possible he thinks slum clearance and rehousing should be done by private individuals and companies. He thinks the work of the Federal Housing Authority is all right, "except for occasional politics," and he likes the Alley Dwelling Authority. But he cares nothing at all for the "large barracks the Government has built at Greenbelt," does not believe Americans want that kind of housing. Private capital desiring to go into housing he assures that small houses are "the safest investment going."

Banks, in Mr. White's belief, are ready and willing today to make "any loan that is safe for their depositors' money;" but they are staying away from "bubbles."

He voted for District suffrage, but he would like to see some educational or property qualification attached to it. "I think we should have both local and national suffrage, but with certain limitations. I believe that with the vote we could get a better class of men to head our local government," he says.

Mr. and Mrs. White lives at 2800 Upton street northwest. They have no children. Mr. White has been with the National Metropolitan Bank 53 years and was made president in 1909. His father, George H. B. White, was cashier for the bank for a number of years.

Friday — C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, will be next in the "Working for Washington" series.

Commission Reconsiders Refusal of 2.5-Cent Rate for East.

By the Associated Press.

Eastern railroads yesterday were given another opportunity to present evidence in support of their request for an increase in passenger coach fares.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, which voted 6 to 5 some time ago to deny the carriers' application for a 2.5-cent fare, announced it had agreed to reconsider the decision. The present coach rate is 2 cents a mile.

The commission will conduct a new hearing June 27, when the Eastern roads, as well as opponents of the proposed increase, will be heard.

The commission's brief announcement yesterday merely said it had decided to reopen the case. There was no indication how the commissioners voted.

The railroads, in asking reconsideration of the commission's decision, said the record did not support the finding that a 2.5-cent rate "would in all probability have such an unfavorable effect on the volume of passenger traffic as to result in less net revenue to the railroads than at present."

Among briefs filed in opposition to the carriers' plea for reconsideration was one by the New Hampshire Public Service Commission.

Shoe Labor Ruling Set Aside by Court

Boston, June 14 (AP).—Asserting there apparently was nothing in the National Labor Relations act preventing an employer from making an agreement with a labor organization formed of old employes, the United States First Circuit Court of Appeals today set aside a Labor Board order in the case of a Lynn shoe company.

The court's decision, written by Judge Scott Wilson and concurred in by Judges George H. Bingham and James M. Morton, jr., said the board's finding of unfair labor practices by the Lion Shoe Co. was "without substantial evidence." The court also termed "unwarranted" the board's ruling that the company discriminated against the United Shoe and Leather Workers Union, an affiliate of the Committe for Industrial Organization.

Petition to Buy Railroad Denied

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission denied yesterday an application by the Associated Railways Co., composed of seven railroads operating out of Chicago, to buy and dismember the long-bankrupt Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad.

The commission said the plan "would disrupt many existing routes and channels of trade and commerce," and would require dismissal of about 2,000 employes, "causing them great hardship and possible loss of their investment in homes."

The Gallup Poll

Survey Shows That Most Doctors Favor Health Insurance to Pay Cost of Medical Care.

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, June 14.—The attitude of American doctors toward one of the most controversial public issues in medicine today—health insurance—has been measured by the American Institute of Public Opinion in a special preliminary survey of physicians.

George Gallup.

With health insurance schemes already operating in many cities, the issue may be expected to take on increasing public importance in the next decade. It was freshly raised two days ago at the San Francisco convention of the American Medical Association when a group of 11 health associations presented a resolution criticizing the A. M. A. for "opposing" the development of health insurance.

The institute survey, which covered representative doctors in all States, shows that:

1. More than seven out of every ten doctors polled favor the principle of health insurance, a system by which an individual insures himself medical and hospital care by making regular payments to a health fund.

The chief reason why doctors approve the idea, the survey shows, is that they think it will provide them with a more regular income, since they would draw their fees from the health fund instead of having to wait months for the collection of bills. Those opposed to the plan think it would tend to "commercialize" the medical profession, and that patients would "work the doctors to death" by demanding medical attention for every minor, and sometimes imaginary, ailment. A small percentage of doctors said they favored health insurance to pay for hospital care but not for doctors' care.

2. A large proportion of doctors—more than eight in every ten—think that the movement toward health insurance will grow in the next few years. Even many doctors who oppose the movement believe it will gather strength.

3. There seems to be little agreement among physicians as to whether health insurance, if widely adopted, would decrease or increase the income of the medical profession. Twenty-seven out of every 100 in the survey said they had no opinion on this question. Among the remainder who did have an opinion, approximately half said they thought doctors' incomes would be increased, while the other half said they would be decreased.

What Doctors Think

Following are the results of a preliminary survey among doctors on several important medical issues:

1. Do you approve of the principle of voluntary health insurance, where an individual insures himself medical and hospital care by making regular payments to a health fund?
   YES.....73% NO.....27%
2. Do you think the movement for voluntary health insurance will grow in this country during the next ten years?
   YES.....82% NO.....18%
3. If voluntary health insurance is widely adopted, do you think it will increase or decrease the income of the medical profession?
   INCREASE....51% DECREASE....49%
4. Do you think the standards of medical practice are raised when physicians practice in groups, as in clinics?
   YES.....53% NO.....47%
5. Do you believe many persons in your community go without adequate medical care because they are unable to pay doctors' fees?
   YES.....37% NO.....63%

Atlantic Shipping Warned Against Iceberg Danger

The Navy and Coast Guard flashed warnings last night to vessels in the North Atlantic that icebergs were drifting farther south than they have traveled for years.

Dense fog prevailing for the last week over much of the principal steamer route between America and Europe increased the perils to navigation.

The Coast Guard cutter Tahoe advised that ships shift their courses to the southernmost emergency "Track A." for the first time since 1935.

The Tahoe, one of three vessels of the International Ice Patrol guarding the North Atlantic steamer lanes, reported it was tailing a "very large berg" which was moving southward at the rate of 18 to 20 miles a day.

Richberg Urges Peace on Labor And Industries

'Economic Constitution' to Bolster Private, Competitive Business Asked.

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 14.—Donald R. Richberg, former NRA administrator, urged industry, labor and government today "to cease warfare and sit down around the council tables of peace."

"In all three groups," he told the Advertising Federation of America, "are exceedingly active and aggressive warmakers who want no peace unless they can dictate he terms.

"Some of these," he continued, "are hard-headed zealots who honestly believe that government or management or labor must boss the economic system. Some are narrow-minded, unscrupulous self-seekers who, in their desire for power or money, are ruthless enemies of any opposing private or public interest.

"It is the public clamor and private intrigues of these warmakers that break down every effort to draw peace-loving men together in a joint adventure of public service.

"We live in an age of confusion and insecurity," he said. "It becomes more and more difficult for government to preserve the peace as more and more people go to quarreling over how they should develop and control their common enterprises and how they should share the products.

"At the same time, millions and millions of people, suffering from unemployment and inadequate rewards of labor, become much more interested in changing the rules of the game than in preserving either peace or fair play. . . .

"What we need today is an economic constitution—a declaration of those fundamental principles under which a democratic people can maintain a competitive system of private enterprise that will offer to every person capable of self support the opportunity to earn a decent livelihood."

Stressing that there is no panacea available, Richberg concluded

"What we do urgently need is to consolidate the power of the people, regardless of party, creed or class, who want an opportunity to work together, to unite them in a league in a national drive against the bullies, rowdies and war makers in public and private life who are dividing the American people into warring classes when the overwhelming majority want to live and work in peace."

Kaplan Warns Liquor Officials On Patronage

The liquor industry was warned yesterday to "crack the head of the political patronage patriot every time he seeks to build up his political fences by exploiting the liquor agency."

The warning was given by H. Eliot Kaplan, executive secretary, National Civil Service Reform League, before the National Conference of Liquor Administrators in St. Paul. Referring to the "scandals" which "resulted from political interference with collection of liquor taxes and the breakdown of prohibition enforcement by incompetent politically appointed agents and administrators," Kaplan said that only rigid application of the merit system "can now save the industry and liquor law enforcement agencies from the bight of patronage which will bring exploitation and public criticism which first led to prohibition and later to its repeal.

NurseExpected To Take Stand Against Landis

The trial of James L. Landis, former rookie fireman, accused of murdering his pretty young wife last March, will resume in District Court today when Miss Virginia Lee Simpson, dark-haired nurse, is expected to testify against him.

Miss Simpson, the Government contends, is the "other woman" whom Landis planned to marry a short time before his wife, Mrs. Blanche Landis, 22, died from a beating.

The erstwhile fireman—he was dismissed from the department following his arrest—is charged with killing his wife with a brick and home-made sandbag. They had been estranged for several months.

A midnight rendezvous on a lonely road near Twentieth and Taylor streets northeast ended in Mrs. Landis' death March 24, according to Prosecutor Cecil Heflin. Landis was arrested soon after the crime when police discovered blood spots on his shirt and neck.

British to Let Franco's Fliers Go Unpunished

London

that he cannot continue to twist the lions' tail with impunity.

If Prime Minister Chamberlain shares this indignation he managed to conceal it today. A man beset with many grave difficulties, he had decided the safest thing to do was to do nothing at all. He concluded a long and involved statement on the matter in these soft words, which were as much a warning to greedy British shipowners, as to Spanish rebels:

"Effective protection cannot be guaranteed to ships trading with ports in the war zone, while they are in territorial waters, unless this country is prepared to take an active part in the hostilities.

"In the opinion of his majesty's government, they would not be justified in recommending such a course which might well result in the spread of the conflict far beyond its present limits.

"They must therefore repeat the warning they have already given to British shipping on the 28 and 29 of November last, that while they will continue to afford protection as hitherto to ships on the high seas, ships entering ports which are liable at any time to be the objects of military operations and attacks, must do so at their own risks.

Accused by Laborite.

"At the same time it is impossible that attacks frequently invloving loss of life and sometimes apparently deliberate on British ships, can be repeated without serious injury to the friendly relations which the Burgos authorities have declared they desire to maintain with the British government."

The Labor Party leader, Maj. Richard Clement Attlee, accused Chamberlain of abandoning principles for which Britain has stood for years. Chamberlain was accused further of "acquiescing in the kind of warfare that brought the United States in the field in the last war.

However, Chamberlain refused to see any paralell between torpedoing of American ships by German submarines and bombing of British ships by Italian and German planes in the service of Gen. Franco. He said the present situation was without precedent, as attacks from the air presented a new problem.

"Is there no effective action the government can take in order not to acquiesce in this degeneration of warfare?" asked Maj. Attlee, who suggested the British should export antiaircraft guns to the Spanish government. Chamberlain denied that he was acquiescing in anything, but he said shipments of antiaircraft batteries would be contrary to the British policy of nonintervention.

No Blame to Mussolini.

Chamberlain's denial that he was acquiescing in Franco's methods of waging war was drowned out by Labor shouts of "You are!"

Maj. Attlee proposed that Britain should protest, not only to Gen. Franco, but to Premier Benito Mussolini, whereupon Chamberlain retorted, "We regard Gen. Franco as entirely responsible for the action of the forces which acknowledge his command."

When Winston Churchill's son-in-law, Duncan Sandys, complained that the government's stand was inadequate, Chamberlain admitted: "I do not think any action we can take is practicable in the way of stopping these attacks."

His confession of helplessness brought on recommendations that the government should place an embargo on trade with Gen. Franco's territory, and should withdraw the British agent, Sir Robert Hodgson.

"We have considered that and do not think it would be effective," said Chamberlain.

Croft Backs Government.

The government found a welcome supporter in the Tory M. P. Sir Henry Page Croft, who argued that an excess profits tax should be imposed on British ships engaged in runing Gen. Franco's blockade. Many of these ships are British in name only, according to government information, and the risks they run are offset by the enormous profits they pile up when they succeed in crashing through this precious cargo.

Prime Minister Chamberlain revealed that two proposals which may improve the present situation are under consideration by his government. The first is for the establishment of safety zones for shipping in certain harbors. The second proposal, coming direct from the Burgos government, is that a port in the Barcelona government's territory should be selected outside the zone of military operations for the use of British merchant ships which could enter and leave it unhindered except that neutdal international commissioners would be on hand to guarantee that no war materials were being shipped in.

Both these proposals were greeted with division by the Labor benches which are demanding a free-for-all debate on the whole subject, with a view to throwing the fear of the British navy into the heart of Gen. Franco.

France "Fully Approves."

Paris, June 14 (U.P.).—The foreign office tonight announced that France "fully approves" of British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's decision to refrain from any retaliatory measures against the bombing of British mercants ships by Spanish nationalist warplanes.

Flood Kills 150,000 Chinese; Japanese Fear for Soldiers

China

toward Hankow, China's temporary capital. Heavy rains prevented large scale aerial operations in the campaign against Hankow, 215 miles upstream from captured Anking.

Some 136 miles below Hankow, the United States gunboat Monocacy stood by at Kiukiang to protect American citizens and property. The gunboat was one of the United States Yangtze patrol vessels ordered to remain at their posts despite a Japanese request that third powers remove their ships from a 200-mile stretch between Wuhu and Kiukiang.

Japanese warships from Anking steamed slowly upstream to within 35 miles of Matowchen, where Chinese have erected the first barrier barring river approach to Hankow.

While Japanese charged that Chinese deliberately had cut Yellow River dikes in an effort to wipe out Japanese forces along the Lunghai, Chinese asserted that major breaks were caused by Japanese bombardments along the river.

Centuries of silting have so raised the bed of the river that for long stretches through the northern Honan area its surface at low water is 15 feet above the level of the adjacent plains. Only the dikes, now broken, kept it to its channel.

Chiang Revising Government.

Shanghai (Wednesday), June 15 (U.P.).—Gen Chiang Kai-shek today declared martial law in the Hankow area and prepared to reorganize his government in advance of Japan's attack on the provisional national capital.

Military rule was declared effective throughout the Chiense-dominated areas of Hupeh Province of which Wuchang, one of Hankow's sister cities is the capital.

Foreign Support.

In the national government Chen Chien, former Ambassador to Berlin, was named vice minister for foreign affairs and it was understood that Eugene Chen, former perennial foreign minister of many revolutionary governments, would be named foreign minister succeeding Dr. Wang Chung-Hui. T. V. Soong was slated to be made minister of finance, succeeding his brother-in-law, Dr. H. H. Kung, who has been holding that portfolio in addition to his duties as acting premier. Kung may remain acting premier and take on the post of minister of commerce and industry.

The cabinet reorganization was viewed as preliminary to an intensive drive to win "positive support" from foreign powers.

Eugene Chen, born in the West Indies and educated in England where he practiced as a lawyer, is known as an able diplomat and a potent propagandist. His chief task will be to arouse the "democracies" to help the Chinese.

War Refugees Flee Castellon, Jam Valencia

Spain

The Valencia bull ring, many theaters, and every other building that could be cleared were filled tonight. Civil officials worked on plans to transfer many of the homeless farther south, out of the war zone.

Streets teemed with bewildered and hungry women and children who hunted refuge from bombs.

It was officially estimated that at least 40 were killed and 250 injured in raids on villages between Sagunto and Castellon de la Plana.

Almost certain death lay along the main Castellon highway. Machine-gun raiders would suddenly appear and every moving object would halt as the terror-stricken refugees threw themselves to the ground under the rain of bullets.

A few miles behind the despairing refugees, the government's harassed central army, striving to keep the victorious insurgent troops out of Valencia, took a new stand on the Mijares River, 5 miles south of Castellon de la Plana. Gen. Jose Miaja, civil and military commander of all government territory except Catalonia, deployed most of his forces to stream.

A Spanish government communique denied that Castellon de la Plana had fallen, but admitted the enemy was pressing hard into that sector.

The insurgents claimed their troops had passed Castellon and forced a crossing of the Mijares. Insurgent air scouts, reported, however, that the roads north from Valencia and Sagunto, between Castellon and Valencia, were alive with men moving up to the front for a renewed government defense.

[The United Press reported from Barcelona that the loyalist war office announced 11 German infantrymen had been captured in fighting on the Castellon front. They were the first German infantrymen taken prisoner since the civil war was started, a communique said.]

Insurgents Pause.

The insurgents paused north of the new line to consolidate their positions. Their planes, however, heaped new destruction on Barcelona, the temporary government capital, Sagunto, and Valencia. Four ships in the Valencia Harbor were set afire. The French freighter Brisbane was attacked and damaged a third time when bombers returned to Denia, 50 miles down the coast.

Fourteen government airplanes fought an hour-long battle with 46 tri-motored insurgent bombers over Sagunto after heavy government antiaircraft fire failed to stop the insurgent craft. Reports said one plane on each side was shot down.

[Meanwhile, the 9,000 soldiers of the loyalist Forty-third Division who have been stabbing at Franco from the snow-packed passes of the Pyrenees tonight began their flight across the mountains to France as insurgent troops closed in to cut them off, the United Press reported. A force of 2,500 fought with their backs to a wall of mountains near Rieumajour Pass in an effort to give their comrades a chance to reach French soil.—Editor's note.]

Franco to Free Americans.

Paris, June 14 (AP).—Spanish Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco was reported today to have accepted the proposal of United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers for an exchange of American prisoners captured in the Spanish civil war.

It was understood Harold E. Dahl, of Champaign, Ill., captured government flier whose wife appealed personally to Franco for her husband's freedom, was not among the Americans the general was willing to trade.

France to Raise Standing Army To Million Men

Professional Recruits and Added Conscripts to Fill Ranks by 1940.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 14.—France prepared today to maintain a standing army of a million men—the nation's answer to tension in Europe.

The cabinet announced it had adopted a decree increasing the number of officers and men, the third large increase in France's armed forces within three months.

In addition to a renewal of recruiting of an unannounced number of professional soldiers, preparations were made to take 4,000 captains and lieutenants into the army from the reserve forces. They will command in part several new divisions which will be created with the end of "war baby" classes of conscripts.

"War Babies" Through.

The normal French conscript class is nearly 250,000, but during the last four years the classes have been only about 140,000 because of a great drop in the birth rate during the World War.

Beginning the first of next year, the size of classes will return to normal, and the French army, now nearly 800,000 strong, is expected to approach 900,000. In 1940 it is to be 1,000,000, the figure at which it will be stabilized unless the present two-year term of compulsory military service is increased.

Recruiting of professional soldiers is designed mainly to meet the need of additional trained men to operate mechanized and motorized equipment.

Air Force Growing.

The air force will draft officers from reserve ranks and enlist mechanics to service the growing air fleet which will be swelled by the 100 American craft ordered May 16 and speedy ships to be built in French factories from American plans.

Army circles pointed out that Germany's army is now estimated by the French to number over 1,000,000, and will increase proportionately to the French in the next two years because Germany also had a "war baby."

In April France increased the number of army officers and the manpower of the navy air force, and on May 18 provided for recruiting of 60,000 additional colonial troops. The authorized army strength before today's decree was 785,759 officers and men.

Kennedy Goes to Races On Eve of Return

London, June 14 (AP).—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy went to the races at Ascot today prior to his sailing tomorrow for the United States, where he will report to President Roosevelt on the European situation.

Sir Thomas Inskip, co-ordinator of defense, and Anthony Eden, former foreign secretary, were among the guests at a dinner party given by the Ambassador last night.

Hague Urges Exile in Alaska For U.S. Critics

Hague

was the duty of police to protect lawful assemblage by minorities, Hague said he would flout New Jersey's equity tribunal "if the surrounding circumstances threatened the lives of our people."

Asked his "method of handling Communists," the mayor replied:

"Suppress them—just as we're doing in this case, denying them the right to public gatherings because of the danger of violence and bloodshed."

C. I. O. Begun by Reds.

The C. I. O., he said, began as a communistic movement aimed at the control of labor in this country.

"It was a move to gain control of the country," he said, "and I'm going to prove that Morris Ernst was the instigator."

A few feet away from the self-assured witness sat the smiling Ernst at the counsel table of the C. I. O., American Civil Liberties Union and others seeking an injunction to restrain Hague and fellow officials from interfering with their activities.

The American Labor Party, Hague said, "is communistic" and "is going to be wiped out."

Opposes Sweatshops.

Asked whether he had offered to lead a movement "to protect employers from organized interference with their business," he replied, "The man who provides the pay roll has as much right to protection as the man who receives the pay roll."

Proclaiming on the other hand his "utter opposition" to sweatshops, the mayor said any one paying wages of $6 to $8 for a 40 to 45 hour week "ought to be put in State prison."

Congressmen Won't Go.

By the Associated Press.

Representatives O'Connell (Democrat), Montana, and Bernard (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, refused yesterday to honor a summons to testify in the "free speech" suit brought against Jersey City officials by the C. I. O. and the Civil Liberties Union.

They notified Federal Judge William Clark at Newark that, because the wage-hour bill was under Congressional consideration, they could not leave Washington.

O'Connell and Bernard said the subpenas demanded information on any financial help they may have received on their trip to Spain last year. Both said they paid their own expenses.

McCall Denies Cash Murder Buts Admits Kidnaping Child

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

As Franklin McCall pleaded guilty.

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., June 14.—Franklin Pierce McCall pleaded guilty at a preliminary hearing today to the $10,000 ransom kidnaping of James Bailey Cash, jr., a crime that carries a death penalty in Florida, and the court arranged to hear evidence tomorrow.

A special grand jury also indicted the 21-year-old truck driver for murder in the 5-year-old Princeton lad's death, but McCall, arraigned immediately, pleaded not guilty to this charge.

McCall hinted at an insanity defense. His special guard, Clyde Tolson, quoted him as saying "I haven't been feeling right and I would like an alienist to examine me."

After several attorneys expressed unwillingness to defend the prisoner because they were prejudiced, Circuit Judge H. F. Atkinson appointed Jack Kehoe to defend him on the kidnaping count only. It was indicated McCall might not be tried on the murder charge.

A special grand jury heard testimony from James Bailey Cash, father of the victim, and Federal agents, and returned the indictments within two hours. McCall was arraigned immediately.

Dominican Order To Ordain Record Priesthood Class

The largest class of candidates for ordination to the priesthood in the history of the Dominican Order in the United States will be ordained at St. Dominic's Church, Sixth and E streets southwest, at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

The 43 candidates will be ordained by the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, assisted by the Rev. G. B. Stratemeier, O. P., of Catholic University and the Rev. L. M. O'Leary, O. P., of the Dominican House of Studies. The candidates will be presented to the bishop by the Very Rev. J. B. Walker, O. P., prior of the Dominican House of Studies.

Bakeries Warned On Eclair Making

Last year's epidemic of chocolate eclair poisoning which sent more than a dozen persons to hospitals will not be repeated this year if Health Officer George C. Ruhland can prevent it. Yesterday he issued these warnings to Washington bakers:

Don't permit anyone with throat, respiratory, hand or arm infections to handle bakery goods. Bakers should wash hands thoroughly. No smoking at work. Utensils should be clean and undamaged. Insist on purity of filling materials. Fillings should be cooked thoroughly and quickly cooled. Clean and boil appliances. Place warning stickers for customers on custard filled pastries.

And there was a final warning that eggs won't keep overlong and should be carefully guarded against spoiling.

Liner Job Given To Newport News

By the Associated Press.

The Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., which leads all other shipyards in awards from the Maritime Commission, had still another job today—reconditioning the liner California for $30,000.

The California, now tied up at New York, was one of three liners recently acquired by the commission from the Panama Pacific Line. The vessels will be used in a new service to the east coast of South America which the commission will inaugurate early in September.

The Newport News Co. will have 60 days in which to complete the reconditioning of the California.

Relief

would be the $2,915,405,000 direct appropriations and more than $800,000,000 in additional spending-lending authorizations in the relief bill conference report approved by the House yesterday by a 296 to 74 roll call vote.

The relief bill conference report was sent back to the Senate after the House concurred in a Senate amendment adding $212,000,000 to the measure for parity payments to farmers, but with one major change.

The farm subsidy plan was adopted, 231 to 128, on motion of Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, and over opposition by Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia. The House also accepted a cut to $500,000 in administrative expenses for the Rural Electrification Administration.

At midnight, the Senate followed the House in approving noncontroversial features of the spending-lending bill, but sent farm and rural power sections back to conference.

Cannon's farm parity motion carried with it a redistribution of the $212,000,0000 price subsidy, cutting payments to cotton farmers approximately $10,000,000 and dividing this among wheat and corn farmers. As approved by the House, the Cannon formula would pay about $79,000,000 to cotton farmers, $65,000,000 to corn growers, $59,000,000 to wheat producers, and the remainder to rice and tobacco farmers.

The Senate recently turned down a similar formula offered by Senator Pope (Democrat), of Idaho. Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, was instructed by the Senate to insist on the farm subsidy amendment in the form approved by the Senate.

Sponsor of the compromise plan for investigating "politics in relief" was Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland. He modified his earlier proposal for a separate investigation to meet objections of Senate Majority Leader Barkley and Chairman Byrnes, of the Senate Audit Committee.

Fearing the proposal even now would be lost in the rush toward adjournment, Tydings said he will ask unanimous Senate consent to call the bill up for immediate action.

But many of the signers of the original Tydings resolution, including Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, and Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, appeared to have lost interest.

"I don't think it amounts to anything," said Burke. "We might as well forget the whole thing as to do this."

Senator Hatch, who twice tried unsuccessfully to gain Senate approval of a statutory ban on "politics in relief" said the investigation proposed was a "poor substitute."

Hatch abandoned effort, for this session to write legislative prohibitions on political use of relief funds, but predicted "the next session of Congress will act."

"There will be other elections," said Hatch. "There is a principle involved in this and I will fight to attain it if it takes ten years."

Hatch is studying two legislative proposals. One would ban political activities by any person paid in whole or in part from Government funds. The other would make grants in aid to States conditional on States enacting legislation prohibiting political use of public funds.

Hatch said "constitutional questions" have arisen on both proposals and he wants the summer to study them.

Senator Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, said last night he had "agreed to go ahead" with the broader investigation proposed by the Audit Committee. He previously had indicated he might resign if his committee was forced to go into relief.

The Audit Committee voted Sheppard only $10,000 additional to the $30,000 already allotted his committee to conduct the enlarged investigation.

Sheppard said he will call his committee together after Congress adjourns.

Senator Austin (Republican), Vermont, a member of the Campaign Expenditures Investigating Committee that looked into "politics in relief" charges in 1936, said the proposed inquiry would be "mere repetition" of the former study.

"Our 1936 expenditures committee found evidence of political use of relief funds and recommended that legislation be enacted making such misuse of funds a crime. That recommendation is still before the Senate. It is silly to repeat the investigation. What we should do is act."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, called proposals to investigate "valueless."

"What we need is a policeman, not a coroner," said Vandenberg. "The Hatch and Austin amendments to the relief bill (proposing statutory bans on political activities) would have been the policeman. The investigating resolution merely provides a coroner."

Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, said his health will not permit him to serve on the committee. He said he would support the resolution, but couldn't understand "why we should investigate something we have approved of."

Other members of the Sheppard committee that would conduct the investigation are O'Mahoney (Democrat), Wyoming; Brown (Democrat), Michigan, and White (Republican), Maine.

Senator Byrnes, audit committee chairman, who with Tydings and Barkley engineered the compromise, said it will be fair to all Senatorial candidates running for re-election.

It directs the Sheppard committee to make "a specific investigation with respect to whether or not any funds appropriated by the Congress (whether for expenditures by any department, independent agency, or instrumentality of the United States, or by any State or political subdivision of a State of instrumentality of any State or political subdivision thereof) have been spent or are being spent in such a manner as to influence votes cast or to be cast in any primary, convention or election held in 1938 at which a candidate for Senator is to be elected."

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, who has criticized Senate failure to prohibit political use of relief funds, yesterday told the Senate of a Pittsburgh, Pa., judge, Judge Heber W. Dithrich, who sent two local political leaders to prison and gave four others suspended sentences for influencing votes of WPA workers.

Invoking a Pennsylvania statute, Judge Dithrich declared that "failure of Congress to proscribe politics in relief should not be construed as granting immunity to anyone from prosecution," according to a news clipping submitted by Wheeler.

House acceptance of the conference report on the $3,753,000,000 relief-recovery bill, came as Republicans put up a futile fight on the House floor, Representative Bacon, of New York, charging "it is a huge campaign fund in an effort to win the next election."

As finally agreed to, the vast spending-lending program gives the WPA $1,425,000,000 to spend in the next eight months, with the President given emergency authority to spend it all in seven months if contingencies arise. Only $25,000,000 is earmarked for direct relief in emergencies.

Lifetime Jobs for Postmasters Pass in Senate Despite Glass

Glass

the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.'

"In the very next paragraph, it says: 'Appointment to positions of postmaster at the first, second and third class postoffices shall be made by the reappointment and classification, non-competitively, of the incumbent postmaster.'

"In other words, that perpetuates the postmasters who have already been appointed or who will be appointed before the adjournment of the present session of Congress."

Glass argued that "no noncompetitive examination should be held in connection with such appointments. I think the examinations ought to be competitive, and I also think the person making the highest grade mentally, if there be no objection to him otherwise, should receive the appointment, whether he be a Republican or a Democrat or an alleged Democrat or a Progressive."

Mrs. Rogers' statement said the noncompetitive examination provided for is "a farce."

"And when the bill says that these presidential appointees enter the civil service 'without term' it means they are frozen in the civil service for life if the President so wishes," it added. "This is a far cry from the American way of appointment as a result of civil service examination free and open to all. . . .

"Even Representative Robert Ramspeck, the Democratic chairman of the House committee, admitted this bill does not establish a true merit system for postmasters.

"Writing to the Civil Service Reform League, President Roosevelt once said: 'The merit system in civil service is in no danger in my hands. On the contrary I hope it will be extended and improved during my term as President.' Since then President Roosevelt has done much by his actions to prostitute and scrap the merit system. He has put 213,376 noncivil service persons on the Federal pay roll as against only 64,801 civil service appointments. As a lifelong friend of civil service I denounce this bill as a red herring drawn across the trail of civil service progress in the Postoffice Department."

House Shelves CIO Measure as Rebuff to Lewis

Lewis

us they would vote for the amendments became so indignant at Lewis that they reversed their position. They sat down on Lewis so hard as to make him a completely ludicrous figure."

Lamneck's statement said:

"The American sense of humor, which is widespread, has saved this Nation from many crashes. And so I feel that it is going to prevent a Lewis cataclysm.

"There may be funnier things in this world today than John of the shaggy locks and weeping willow eyebrows setting up a one-day kingdom in the Capitol and then having his regal chair jerked out from under him, but I cannot conceive it . . .

Says Lewis Had "Gall."

"His frowns have lost their force. Perhaps his clouding up and threatening to reign will prove the clearing shower before the sunshine of industrial peace in our Nation."

Lamneck spoke of Lewis' "unprecedented gall" in summoning House members "to the throne-room to instruct them how to vote" on a pending bill.

He said loyal American citizens must have felt chagrin to have a man "seemingly determined upon the complete wrecking" of the nation's industrial life use the speaker's office and demand that representatives of a free people "come before him and bend their knees in craven supplication."

Lewis, Lamneck said, has been the "most destructive single force that ever has swept down on industrial America."

"He and his radical followers have introduced a brand of terrorism into the United States which knew no bounds," he continued: "Accomplishment of their objectives, regardless of what the results may be to the welfare of the nation, apparently was all that they had in mind."

The Ohioan charged that Lewis had never sought payment of adequate wages and industrial peace.

"He has sought and will continue to seek to stir up trouble between employer and employe and collect dues for himself," he said.

The legislation, which Lewis said he desired "with a vengeance," would have forced corporations whose contracts with the Government exceed $2,000 to conform to stipulated wage-hour standards and accept decisions of the National Labor Relations Board affecting them.

Violators would be subject to a denial of future contracts for three years and to a fine equal to, double or treble the difference between wages they paid and the scale Secretary Perkins had promulgated, depending upon the number of violations.

Rules Committee members swore themselves to secrecy as to what took place at their meeting.

Lee Pressman, C. I. O. general counsel; Tom Kennedy, Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania and official of the United Mine Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate, immediately left the Capitol to discuss their next move.

They said the only remaining chance of obtaining House consideration of the bill would be an attempt to suspend the rules, which requires a two-thirds vote of the 435 members.

Calendar Too Crowded.

Gardner Jackson, an executive of Labor's Nonpartisan League, the C. I. O. political outlet, said "there doesn't seem much chance of even doing that," but added that "a lot of work has been done already."

The crowded House calendar in the pre-adjournment rush, some House members said, probably would mean the bill could not be squeezed in even at the last minute.

The measure would rewrite the 2-year-old Walsh-Healey act, which compels corporations having Government contracts of $10,000 or more to conform to certain wage-hour standards.

Dr. Campbell, Astronomer, 75, Kills Self

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, June 14.—Dr William Wallace Campbell, 75, killed himself today because his mind was failing and blindness was hooding the eyes which gleaned out of the universe in 50 years secrets, that made him one of the world's greatest astronomers.

Dr. Campbell went to bed last night cheerful and calm. Today he arose at dawn, slipped on a suit over his pajamas and leaped three floors from his apartment window. A newsboy found the body.

Notes Blame Failing Mind.

Dr. Campbell wrote that he was troubled greatly by aphasia. In the last few weeks, the notes related, Campbell had "felt my growing weakness of mentality."

Another note said "my blind eye was lost to me in May, 1932, and my defective eye since 1932 is nearly blind."

Dr. Campbell was a former president of the University of California and director of Lick Observatory.

Except for lecturing at Yale, at the National Academy of Sciences in Washington, D. C., and elsewhere, and when directing astronomical expeditions to various parts of the world, Dr. Campbell resided at the observatory continuously from 1890 until his appointment as president of the University of California in 1923.

Substantiated Einstein.

Evidence which Dr. Campbell asserted substantiated, in part at least, the Einstein theory of relativity, was obtained on the Australian expedition he made in 1922.

Dr. Campbell organized the D. C. Mills expedition to Santiago, Chile, which established the Chile station of the Lick Observatory and extended its work over the entire sky. He also worked out the speed of the solar system through space as 13 miles a second.

Honors were lavished on him. He was appointed a Commander of the Order of Leopold II by the King of the Belgians and received numerous medals. He was elected to honorary membership in practically all the leading scientific societies of the world.

First 'Boss Sit-Striker' to Move to Georgia for Cheaper Labor

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, June 14.—The man who staged the Nation's first "boss sit-down strike" to combat a strike of his employes has decided to move most of his $1,000,000 business to what he hopes will be a more profitable location.

Walter L. Fry announced today he had arranged with an established Columbus, Ga., firm for facilities to manufacture the automobile seat covers which his company has produced here.

One cent was the company's profit per manufactured unit last year, Fry said, adding "we could not continue operating here at the high wage rate without going broke."

Fry said the company was "trapped among President Roosevelt's great experiment, Gov. Frank Murphy's labor policies and Michigan's high labor rates.

"The only possible solution," he said, "was to manufacture elsewhere, where wages are more in line with those of our competitors."

When C. I. O. unionists employed by Fry Products, Inc., started a sit-down strike in February, 1937, Fry "sat down" in his office and announced he would not seek any more business until the workers returned to their jobs. A compromise ended the deadlock after 96 hours.

Lamenting that "there is not an alphabetical agency to help the businessman," Fry said labor received "in one way or another" $1.68 out of every $2 worth of seat covers his concern manufactured last year.

Exhausted Boy Sees Brother Drown in Lake

Colored Youth Rescues Lad Who Had Leaped in to Save Younger.

It was the first day of vacation yesterday for Joseph Sita, 11, and his 8-year-old brother, John. So they went swimming.

But their fun had ended abruptly a few hours later. John's lifeless body was hauled from the muddy waters of Kingmans Lake, on Benning road northeast, and Joseph was sent to Casualty Hospital, exhausted and half-drowned.

And to Henry Morgan, 17-year-old colored youth, of 1638 Sixth street northeast, goes credit for saving Joseph from the tragic fate of his younger brother.

The two youngsters, students at Holy Name School, joined a group of several other boys who were swimming in the lake. John wasn't very strong and soon found himself in deep water, unable to paddle back to shore. He cried for help.

Joseph was standing on the bank. Without waiting even to remove his shoes, the older boy plunged into the water in a frantic effort to reach his brother. But he, too, was soon exhausted.

Morgan was fishing from a nearby wharf. He heard the youngster cry for aid. He leaped into a rowboat, saw Joseph disappear beneath the surface and dived in. A few moments later, Morgan had dragged Joseph to safety on the bank and returned to find John.

For several minutes, Morgan dived to recover the boy's body, but without success. John W. Thompson, who lives on a nearby houseboat, joined the search and finally located the youngster with grappling hooks.

John's death was the seventeenth drowning of the season, police reported. The boy was the son of John and Mary Sita, of 1202 G street northeast. His father is a tile setter.

Joseph was revived with artificial respiration and taken to the hospital. From his trembling lips, police heard the story of how John pleaded for help before he went down.

"He went in once," Joseph sobbed, "and then came out. I was standing on the bank. Then he went in again, but he went too far out and started calling for someone to come and get him. I jumped in to save him, but that's all I remember. The next thing I knew, I was lying on the ground and someone was pressing against my back."

Machine Guns Mow Down 3 In Ride Killing

Pa. Police See Gang War in Slayings in Ballroom of Empty House.

By the Associated Press.

Tamaqua, Pa., June 14.—A machine gun cut down three men today in the dusty ballroom of a deserted roadhouse.

One victim might have told why. He collapsed and died, desperately trying to speak.

Neither he nor his two companions were "given a chance." County Detective Louis Buono felt certain of that after he and State police pieced together, bit by bit, what they believed took place in the dim light of the Flag Day dawn.

"A gang killing," Buono said. "It has all the marks of a Philadelphia gang battle."

Two of the bodies were crammed into a small cloakroom opening off the dance floor. The third man struggled to a tea room 300 yards away.

"Oh, I—— I——" he muttered, then died.

All three were tentatively identified as Philadelphians.

"I think it happened something like this," Buono said. "These three were brought up here for a ride and were lined up on the dance floor.

"When the first bullets began to crack, one of them, probably the one nearest the door, made a break for it.

"The murderers turned the machine gun on him as he went out the door."

Bodies in Cloakroom.

The detective said the slayers apparently escaped in an automobile—the one in which the victims were taken on a death ride.

Police were called shortly after 6 a. m.

State Policeman Lester Lucas and Buono arrived to find a pool of blood spread over the dance floor. In a cloakroom, adjoining the floor, huddled the two other bodies.

Both had bullet wounds in the head, several in the chest. The man who died in the tearoom had been shot four times, once in the neck just below the ear.

Buono said two of the men were identified as Peter Bisciotti, 25, and Gustine Starace, 37, of Philadelphia.

Philadelphia police, seeking identity of the third, were told by Anthony Pugliese that it might be his brother, Leonard, 31.

Leonard, the brother said, often wore clothing owned by his cousin, Leonard Adducci. The man found in the tearoom had a letter addressed to Adducci in his pocket.

struggle toward success has been due to courage born of adversity.

"Self pity has no place in the life of anyone at all handicapped," said Miss Jennings yestreday at her home at 1511 Park road northwest.

Tall and willowy, Miss Jennings, who can barely see her outline in a mirror, has been educated through Braille and by readers. She completed her high school studies in Chicago, and then won a prize in her music classes, for she is an accomplished pianist and singer.

At George Washington she attended classes with the seeing students, and took her notes in Braille. And at the office she worked through dictaphone, straight dictation and the touch system, at which she is an expert.

"If I could see nothing at all, I still could do my work," she said yesterday.

In shadowland Miss Jennings has her ambition—a bright road leading her to invisible stars through helping others.

And she has her music.

Dr. B. T. Galloway Listed as Suicide

A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald after an autopsy was performed on the body of Dr. Beverly T. Galloway, 75, former Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

Dr. MacDonald stated a quantity of poison was found in Dr. Galloway's stomach. The elderly doctor was found late Monday night unconscious in a wooded ravine near the intersection of Daniels and Wise roads northwest. He was dead when a physician from Emergency Hospital responded.

Dr. Galloway, who retired from the Department of Agriculture in the fall of 1933, was said by friends to have been in ill health since a short time before the death of his wife a year and a half ago. He lived at 7106 Piney Branch road northwest.

Funeral services for Dr. Galloway will be held Thursday at the Takoma Presbyterian Church. Burial will be at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Ex-ICC Employe, Priest a Year, Dies

Word was received yesterday of the death, in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., of the Rev. Leo Ranker, O. F. M., who only a year ago today was ordained for the priesthood.

Father Ranker died after a brief illness. He was a former employe of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and was ordained for the priesthood at Catholic University on June 15, 1937. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Knights of Mount St. Sepulchre.

Funeral services for Father Ranker, who is survived by several brothers and sisters, will be held at St. Francis Church, in New York, followed by a burial in St. Bonaventure's Cemetery, Allegany, N. Y. He was a native of Tiffin, Ohio.

BUSINESS GIRL—1938 MODEL—Office manager Olive Tucker keeps disarmingly calm despite her nerve-nagging days of phones, buzzers, interviews. "If anyone needs healthy nerves, I certainly do," Miss Tucker smiles, adding: "That's one reason why I smoke Camels regularly. They never get my nerves upset." Later—much later—Miss Tucker skips to the roof-top gym for a quick work-out. Next—a shower—a rub—a Camel—and she's up and off again! Tired? Here's Miss Tucker's answer: "Camels give my energy a refreshing 'lift.'"

WELKER COCHRAN, who has won many important championships at billiards, voices his choice among cigarettes: "Camels give me real smoking pleasure. Under the strain of a championship match, Camels never make me feel jittery or unsure. 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel' too!"

DRAMATIC PHOTOGRAPHS are the specialty of camera-genius Margaret Bourke-White. Many points about Camels appeal to Miss Bourke-White, who sums up her preference for Camels in: "Sticking to Camels makes a big difference in the fun and contentment I get out of smoking."

JOE DI MAGGIO, country-wide idol of baseball fans, speaks for millions of smokers when he comments on his favorite cigarette: "I'm a steady smoker, and Camels don't irritate my throat. That shows Camels have real mildness all right. Watch the ball players pull out Camels!"

PEOPLE DO APPRECIATE THE COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN CAMELS

THEY ARE THE LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic

CIGARETTES MAY LOOK ALIKE—BUT WHAT AN APPEALING DIFFERENCE THERE IS IN CAMELS!

As a smoker, you'll be interested to read what Miss Tucker, successful young office manager, said to Miss MacGregor about the difference between Camels and other cigarettes (below).

"Olive, do you always serve Camels because you feel that there's a big difference between Camels and other cigarettes?"

"I'm very glad you've brought that question up, Helen. I've tried as many kinds of cigarettes as most people have, I guess, and I'm amazed at how different Camels are. Camels are extra-mild—they never bother my throat at all! Camels taste so good and rich, yet they never leave me with that 'cigaretty' after-taste. Really, in so many ways, Camels agree with me."

OLD MAN BUSINESS licked for another day, Miss Tucker entertains dinner guests—thoughtfully! There are lots of Camel cigarettes around her living room. Miss Tucker observes: "Camels are the favorite with my guests and are delightful for topping off a meal. During and after dining, I smoke Camels 'for digestion's sake.' That's another way Camels set me right!"

say these tobacco planters—and they know tobacco because they grow it!

"I know just what tobaccos the cigarette companies buy at the auctions," says Mr. John Durham, Jr., well-known planter. "One year after another, I've seen Camel buyers take the finest grades in the market—the best of my own crops and those of my friends. They took the best part of my last crop too. So, like most planters, I smoke Camels. I know the quality tobacco in them!"

"There's quite a difference between fine tobacco and ordinary grades," says Mr. Calvin Wiggins, who has sold tobacco to Camel for 20 years. "From my own experience, it's Camel who buys the best. Camel bought the really fine baskets of my last crop. I smoke Camels, myself. Most of my grower friends do too. I know, and they know, Camel uses costlier tobaccos!"

Planter Joe Brewer had a fine tobacco crop last year. He says: "As they have for many years, Camel bought the best lots, and paid me the best prices I ever got. Camel has been my cigarette for years. There's a real difference. Camels are the favorite smoke of planters. They know they're getting extra-quality tobacco in Camels." solute Administration "must" measure.

The Barkley amendment would allow the Federal Government, by payment of all project costs, to acquire complete title to all lands involved in any dam, reservoir or flood control project and would extend this power retroactively to allow the Government to acquire, by similar full payment, entire rights and title to any such project in which it has participated since May 15, 1928—ten years.

In effect, warned the filibustering Senators, this amendment would allow the Administration, by a roundabout device, to set up "little TVA's" throughout the Nation. Senator King said:

"If passed, this will break the back of the entire private utility industry. It is not a mere invasion of States' rights, it is a further and later step toward State socialism."

Backing the five Senators were Senators Maloney of Connecticut; Gerry, of Rhode Island, both Democrats, and Lodge of Massachusetts, Republican. Conferences this morning will determine how long the filibuster is to last, as the group assays its strength. Efforts to obtain the support of Senators Byrd of Virginia and Wheeler of Montana, both Democrats, had proved unavailing last night.

States' Rights Cry Raised.

For two hours before the Senate recessed Senators O'Mahoney, Walsh, and Austin, had slapped bitterly at the Barkley amendment to the flood-control measure, under which the Federal Government could acquire complete title to all lands involved in any required dams or reservoir projects.

Fighting this as an outrage against the States concerned, the trio was joined at the last minute by Senator Burke (Democrat), Nebraska, who threatened to raise the magic old cry of "State's rights" for "at least an hour's discussion."

The action came after a day that had seen the dying Seventy-fifth Congress whip through wage-hour bill, establishing for the first time in national history a ceiling over hours and a floor under wages.

Radio Inquiry Killed.

A proposed investigation of radio monopolies had been killed during the evening; a bill drastically strengthening the Walsh-Healey Government contracts act had been guillotined in the House Rules Committee; rail-aid legislation had been tossed overboard in the adjournment rush; nearly $10,000,000 had been added to the final deficiency appropriation bill by the Senate and a score of minor bills had been juggled through the intricate legislative hoppers of the Congress.

The conference report on the President's $3,753,000,000 recovery-relief program, shoved through the House earlier in the day, bogged just before midnight in the Senate when that chamber refused to concur in a slash from $1,000,000 to $500,000 in funds for the Rural Electrication Administration as suggested by the House.

Also differing were the formulae for payment of the parity-price benefits to farmers under the new farm act.

Filibuster Unexpected.

The filibuster against the flood control act, as effective as it was unexpected, was begun by Austin and Walsh in an attack on the power program of the Administration and the possibilities for its advancement under this measure. Although vigorously defended by Senator Norris (Independent), Nebraska, father of the Tennessee Valley Authority, Walsh and later O'Mahoney attacked the Barkley amendment as a direct infringement of State's rights.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, arose to suggest that a filibuster was in progress. O'Mahoney challenged that statement, but Burke arose to say that he intended to talk for some time.

Heavy background pressure by the Administration for rail-aid legislation failed to force through the bill expanding the lending powers of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make unlimited equipment and make-work loans to railroads without certification by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

La Follette, Borah Object.

The bill was tossed overboard by leaders in both houses after Senators La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin and Borah (Republican), Idaho, served notice they would object to any unanimous-consent request to bring un the measure. Earlier the bill had been stripped by a 5-4 vote in the Senate Banking Committee of the feature that made it most desirable to the RFC, a clause making retroactive the RFC's newly-sought powers in future railroad reorganizations.

Marine Probe Voted.

Opposed by the Administration, Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, fought unavailingly to save the radio monopoly investigation measure—but was defeated—standing vote, 209 to 65; roll call vote, 234 to 101.

After that hurdle the House passed by voice vote a measure authorizing an investigation of the American merchant marine, with a $10,000 appropriation, and struggled a head passing the O'Mahoney-Sumners $500,000 monopoly investigation and the Pope-Phosphate-resources investigation.

Leaders in both chambers steadfastly held to their program over all grumblings by weary and hungry members. Both Houses were fully represented and the galleries were jammed from noon until midnight.

Halting persistent rumors that sine die adjournment was planned for last night, Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, of Texas, took the floor of the House late in the evening to deny the report.

Passage of the wage-hour bill, establishing for the first time nationally the principle of a rock-bottom minimum wage and an absolute ceiling over the maximum workweek, was hailed in both chambers.

Three Eyed for Post.

Being discussed yesterday for the post of administrator of the act, the Associated Press said, were Isador Lubin, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics; Leon Henderson, who keeps Relief Administrator Hopkins advised of trends in industry, and Prentiss Coonley, former Chicago machinery manufacturer and now assistant to W. A. Harriman, chairman of Secretary Roper's Business Advisory Council.

Coonley served with the NRA from June, 1934, to September, 1935. He started as a dupty administrator and later became code administration director.

Henderson also served in a high post in NRA and in recent years has been regarded as an important administration adviser on economic affairs.

Lubin is credited with building up the vast research facilities of the Labor Statistics Bureau.

Victory for the Administration came only after repeated setbacks which were often termed "final" defeats—notably recommitment by the House at the end of the special session last December, and deadlock in the conservative House Rules Committee for many months both this year and last.

The bill finally enacted, although differing materially from the entirely inflexible Senate bill of last year, written by "Brain Truster" Ben Cohen, PWA attorney and introduced by former Senator Hugo Black, of Alabama, now Associate Supreme Court Justice, did preserve a fragment of that theory.

It permits industries boards, representing the public, industrial management and the employes in each industry, to recommend to a $10,000-a-year Labor Department Administrator the establishment of minimum wages not less than 25 cents per hour the first year, and not less than 30 cents the second year for seven years, after which a flat 40-cent limit should apply to all industries unless such a wage would "substantially" curtail employment.

Classifications to Be Set.

Classifications within industries would be permitted in the seven years, but varying wages according to the classifications could not operate sectionally only. After the seven years such geographical differentials could apply.

President Green of the American Federation of Labor said last night the wage-hour legislation was "far from perfect" but met "the fundamental requirements" of the federation.

He criticized the method for administering the law, calling it "cumbersome and undesirable," and said such differentials as the bill would permit "tread on dangerous grounds."

The federation, he declared, "never will be satisfied until the bill is perfected."

Abandonment of the rail-aid legislation came despite unofficial withdrawal by the railway labor heads of their objections to the measure.

After that withdrawal the Senate Banking Committee immediately reported out the bill, recommitted several weeks ago after Senators La Follette, Wagner, Wheeler and others had slapped at the theory of granting railroads Government loans for make-work projects when the carriers were insistent on a 15 per cent wage reduction to take effect July 1. But La Follette and Borah yesterday decided to oppose the bill anyway, blocking the necessary unanimous consent.

George H. Tinkham Goes to Africa to Be Sure Massachusetts Will Re-elect Him.

Since he is seeking re-election this year, Representative George H. Tinkham (Republican), of Massachusetts, is going to Africa as soon as Congress adjourns. While other members of the House are earnestly seeking votes at home, the bearded representative will be hunting big game again, apparently assured of the election day results.

TINKHAM.

In the past several campaigns he has spent the campaign period in Europe or elsewhere and always has returned to the House.

The entire Washington State congressional delegation yesterday took to President Roosevelt a scroll 10 feet wide and 25 feet long inviting him to the Young Democratic Clubs of America Convention in Seattle, July 14 to 16. The President's vacation plans call for him to sail from San Francisco July 15.

Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, told the Senate yesterday he was an object lesson that long working hours do not always impair health.

"I'm more than 80 years old and I used to work 18 hours a day," Glass declared during argument about the wage-hour bill.

Members of the Congressional committee to investigate the Tennessee Valley Authority said yesterday they might borrow a chief engineer from the Army in order to hold down expenses of the inquiry.

Members said economy was necessary because of the decision by Congressional leaders to limit the committee to an appropriation of $100,000. The committee had asked $150,000.

Chairman Donahey (Democrat), Ohio, said he expected to go to Knoxville with the committee staff about July to set up headquarters. Other members of the committee will go there about July 20, he added, and hearings will begin a few days later.

Pittman Seeks Condemnation Of Bombings

By the Associated Press

Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, introduced yesterday a revised resolution calling for Senate condemnation of the bombing of civilian populations by military planes.

Pittman, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he would seek action on the proposal today. It would authorize the Foreign Relations Committee to study the question to determine if there should be legislation at the next session to prevent the sale of American planes to foreign governments who use them in bombing civilians.

Meanwhile four peace organizations protested against Congress' adjourning "without fulfilling its constitutional responsibility to control policies involving the question of peace and war for the American people."

The New Local WPA Head.

With enactment of the relief-spending bill WPA activities will doubtless be expanded in the District of Columbia as elsewhere. Nearly 1,000 persons seeking jobs registered with the local WPA last week. The total number registered and awaiting interviews is 6,122. Ordinarily the WPA finds about 80 per cent of these applicants eligible for help.

Since the new program contemplates expansion of WPA activities in accord with the volume of unemployment and the projects available in each community, it is reasonable to suppose that a considerable addition will be made to the 13,500 men now on the rolls of that agency in Washington. Although this program is under Federal control, the local community has a vital interest in it. Especially in view of the revelations that politics have been injected into the administration of the WPA in many localities, civic groups may properly demand safeguards against similar abuses here.

It happens that Commissioner Allen, WPA administrator for the District, will be leaving Government service at the end of August. No doubt his active service will terminate somewhat before that date. A movement is on foot, therefore, to bring about early appointment of a new WPA administrator, so that he can take over this important function before the expansion program begins. Under the circumstances the change cannot be too quickly made.

The President has opportunity, in selecting the new WPA administrator for the District, to demonstrate the sincerity of his desire to eliminate politics from Federal relief of the unemployed. He can select a non-political head for this agency solely on the basis of administrative ability.

It is not anticipated that the new executive will be a District official. The custom of WPA is to name as State and regional chiefs persons entirely divorced from the local governments. For that very reason the President and Mr. Hopkins will have a free hand in choosing the best executive available.

The Wire-Tapping Dispute.

The controversy over wire-tapping in New York's constitutional convention commands the interest of citizens for beyond the borders of that State. There is a strong belief among various groups that to deny the Government the privilege of using evidence obtained by tapping wires is to strike a serious blow at law enforcement. Other citizens are no less firmly convinced that official espionage of this sort is a threat to democracy.

At present "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures" is guaranteed by the Federal Constitution and by every State constitution, except that of New York. But an almost identical provision is on the statute books of the Empire State. In view of these facts, there would seem to be no reasonable argument against writing this safeguard into the State constitution where it more properly belongs.

The sharpest point of disagreement at Albany is whether the constitution should also be modified to exclude from trials and hearings evidence obtained through unauthorized wire-tapping. District Attorney Dewey fears that the effect of the provision would be "to protect murderers and gangsters." Gov. Lehman supports the proposal on the ground that "it is today more important than at any other time in modern history that we maintain inviolate our civil liberties."

Mr. Dewey naturally resists the imposition of any handicap upon law enforcement agencies. The ruthlessness and ingenuity of the modern gangster tend to strengthen his argument. Yet it appears that he is looking at the problem from the viewpoint of the prosecutor rather than that of society as a whole.

To place the issue in proper perspective it should be noted that the proposal supported by Gov. Lehman would not entirely prohibit wire-tapping. It would restrain such snooping to cases where officers could obtain permission from the courts upon a showing of probable cause that the law was being violated. In short, wire-tapping would be governed by the same reasonable rules that the Federal Government has long applied to other forms of searches and seizures.

No other policy would appear to be consistent with the Bill of Rights. As the Supreme Court has pointed out, the guarantee against unreasonable searches and seizures would be meaningless if evidence thus obtained by the Government could be used against accused persons in court. New York's convention might well take note of the fact that some prominent cases were recently dismissed in Washington because the evidence had been obtained by illegitimate wire-tapping. Even if this provision should be excluded from the new State constitution, the Federal Bill of Rights will make the use of evidence from indiscriminate wire-tapping a very uncertain means of combating crime.

The controversy boils down to the simple principle that in the pursuit of criminals the Government must not violate the civil rights of persons presumed to be innocent. Justice Brandeis has stated the case in these words: "Decency, security and liberty alike demand that Government officials shall be subjected to the same rules of conduct that are commands to the citizen." To justify any other course would be to say that government should violate one law to uphold another.

Congress And The Railroads.

The failure of the Seventy-fifth Congress to legislate constructively for the relief of the railroads is inexcusable. The session approaches its close with the roads in urgent need of aid as earnings continue to shrink without corresponding declines in operating expenses. This policy of procrastination has made an inherently difficult problem much harder to deal with than would have been the case if Congress and the President had heeded the warning signals of last year.

Early in 1937, several months before the general public was aware of a depression in the offing, while the roads were still sharing the benefits of so-called recovery, signs of trouble ahead became evident. Mounting costs of supplies and materials began to cut into railway net earnings, bringing returns below the level of the preceding year. As the depression gained momentum, the deterioration in the financial position of this basic industry grew rapidly worse, assisted by wage increases estimated to have increased annual operating costs about $135,000,000.

Since the beginning of 1938 conditions have gone from bad to worse. The April earnings statements of the carriers, just made public, are particularly interesting because they show the disappointing results of the inadequate rate increases which the ICC grudgingly granted. Net earnings (that is, earnings before deduction of fixed charges) amounted to only $48,700,000—a drop of over 45 per cent from the preceding April. Particularly noteworthy is the fact that in no previous April since the postwar period, when the roads were suffering from the effects of Government operation, have earnings been so low. Even the worst depression years made a better showing.

That the situation is not entirely due to the shrinkage in volume of traffic is evident from the fact that gross earnings have not declined in proportion to net. In April the gross returns of the carriers were $40,000,000 above the level of April 1933, whereas net earnings were lower. The explanation lies in rising operating expenses, particularly in increased labor charges and mounting cost of materials and supplies and higher taxes.

Unless soon released from the combined pressures of rising costs and rigidly regulated service charges, it is a foregone conclusion that many more roads will be compelled to default. Already approximately one-third of the country's railway mileage is in the hands or receivers. It rests with Congress to decide whether that total is to be rapidly augmented.

As a matter of fact, if Congress waits too long the railway problem will be settled without its assistance. It is self-evident that roads unable to earn a fair return on invested capital cannot depend upon private investment support for needed capital. And without credit, without cash to meet indebtedness, the only alternative is Government ownership and control. Perhaps that is what some Government officials and legislators are waiting for. But it is scandalous to reach that development by inert drift.

There is chance of passage, before adjournment, of a measure liberalizing RFC loans to hard-pressed roads. But, while emergency loans may stave off the day of reckoning, they cannot avert it. On the contrary, in the absence of remedies for the fundamental ills that afflict the railways, policies that put them more deeply in debt to the Government are only a step toward ultimate Government ownership.

Mr. Lewis Takes A Skid.

If an economic royalist should march into the Speaker's office with a group of henchmen, and then summon Congressmen to tell them what to do about pending legislation, the cry of fascism would promptly and properly be raised. It is nonetheless fascism when the effort at dictation comes from a labor leader. The arrogant attempt of John L. Lewis to jam amendments to the Walsh-Healey act through the House was an intolerable affront to democratic procedure.

The only possible retort was the action of the House Rules Committee in tabling the demand by the miners' Mussolini for preferential status for this amendment. That should have been the upshot even if the amendment sought were desirable. Actually the proposal which the C. I. O. sponsors in so disreputable a manner is thoroughly undesirable.

Since the Walsh-Healey act is the law of the land, every legitimate effort should of course be made to exclude bidders who fail to conform to the labor standards set for firms given Government contracts. Similarly, firms refusing to engage in collective bargaining, or willfully and deliberately defying valid NLRB orders, should be deprived of the privilege of doing business with the Government. It is logical and just to insist that the Government have no business intercourse with those who have been judicially defined as lawbreakers.

There, however, is the rub. The amendment urged by Mr. Lewis would result in blacklisting all concerns certified by the National Labor Relations Board to be violators of the Wagner act. Punishment would be meted out in advance of court tests of the board's ruling. Such a proposal, depriving employers of protection against arbitrary administrative decisions, would have exceedingly dangerous potentialities.

In the hands of ignorant, venal, or irresponsible public officials the power to take names off, or put them on, a Government blacklist might be exercised with deadly effect. The measure, in short, is in character with the C. I. O. chieftain's dictatorial attempt to secure its enactment.

After The Czech Elections.

With the peaceful conclusion of the Czechoslovak municipal elections, held on May 22, May 29 and June 12, the question of constitutional reform in that racially heterogeneous republic is thrown into bold relief. For the voting, though not intended as a plebiscite, reveals that a very large part of the population is dissatisfied with the present strongly centralized form of government.

Because of its dangerous international implications disproportionate attention has been paid to the heavy separatist vote cast by the Sudeten Germans. The Henlein Party, with its Nazi affiliations, undoubtedly represents the greatest single menace to the Czech constitution as now written. But dissatisfaction with the organic law is by no means limited to the German elements. There are also strong centrifugal tendencies in the Slovak, Hungarian and Polish communities.

While final returns are not yet available, it appears that throughout Czechoslovakia the various separatist groups together polled close to, if not more than, half the number of total votes. This means that an enormous minority, or even an actual majority, of Czechoslovakia citizens favor a new form of government, with a much greater degree of local autonomy than is now granted. The democratic character of the country alone would indicate that big concessions will have to be made to so powerful a movement.

Beyond the mandate of the electorate, however, are the external pressures. The autonomy which Berlin stridently demands for the Sudeten Germans is not less strongly urged by Budapest in behalf of the nearly a million Magyars who were forcibly incorporated into Czechoslovakia. Prague is well aware that these pressures are more likely to increase than diminish. A tendency to yield to them is inevitable in view of the exposed position of the Central European democracy.

The Czech leaders take some comfort from the fact that the separatist movement among the Slovaks lost ground somewhat in the municipal elections, apparently securing about one-third of the votes cast in Slovak districts. A realistic viewpoint, however, will recognize that a Slovak separatism as strong as this is itself a serious threat to the present constitution of Czechoslovakia.

That constitution was based on the idea that Czechs and Slovaks together should form the dominant elements in the republic, holding much the same favored positions taken by the Germans and Hungarians in the old Austrian empire. That being the case, it is surprising that as many as one-third of the Slovaks are now favoring more autonomy for themselves. It shows how strong are the separatist tendencies with which the Czech leaders have to contend.

If it were not for fears that separatism will develop into separation, legislation providing much greater autonomy for the various national groups would undoubtedly now be quickly put through the parliament in Prague. But President Benes has reasonable fear that every concession made will merely pave the way to further demands from the strongly nationalistic groups.

His delicate problem is to meet demands which are entirely legitimate and strongly supported without playing into the hands of foreign capitals which seek to exploit the autonomy movement as a wedge to break Czechoslovakia into fragments which they would later absorb.

The world is in such a mess now we doubt if a newly hatched college graduate, given blanket authority, could straighten it out in less than 30 days.

Courtesy And The Pedestrian.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Britain is endeavoring to make streets and highways safer through a new institution called "Courtesy Cops." This special corps of policemen politely, but firmly, points out errors and omissions to motorists, cyclists and pedestrians. The idea seems to be working well. Not only do the warnings prove effective in instructing the public, but since lack of manners is responsible for much trouble on the roads, the courtesy of the "cops" adds example to precept in their teaching.

Manners can, perhaps, be carried too far. It would not do for the polished pedestrian and the polite motorist to pause in midstreet, each murmuring deferentially "After you, sir," until the well-bred "cop," introducing himself during a pause in the conversation, had diffidently elucidated the etiquette of procedure. At present, however, there is room for improvement; and if the new experiment can produce greater mutual consideration between walkers and drivers, as well as inducing the former to confine themselves to the recognized crossings, it will have done much.

The Patent Case Dissent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was particularly interested in your editorial, "Justice Black's Dissents," in The Post for June 11, because this editorial was unfortunate in criticizing Justice Black's dissent in a "complicated patent case" since one of the last acts of the Supreme Court before its recent adjournment was to grant a rehearing in this very case.

The editorial was correct in calling this patent case a complicated one so that it is impracticable within permissible space to discuss it in detail. It is sufficient for me to say that the "finer points of law" were ignored in the majority opinion and the opinion of Justice Black analyzed every aspect of the case.

In this connection I call your attention to an article in the New Republic, June 8, "Mr. Justice Black's First Year," by Walton R. Hamilton, professor of law at Yale, in which this same patent case is mentioned.

Mr. Chief Justice Hughes is an ideal judge from the point of view of experienced lawyers who are primarily interested in playing the game strictly in accordance with the rules which for the experts is controlling. For example, if the Chief Justice were playing contract bridge he would insist upon a new deal if the deuce of clubs were exposed. Mr. Justice Black would ignore the slip and go ahead with the game. ARTHUR S. BROWNE.
Washington, June 13.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is somewhat amusing, to say the least, that you should have selected for special attention in your editorial on Mr. Justice Black his dissenting opinion in the "General Talking Pictures" case.

It is true, as your editorial states, that the case was a complicated patent case and that Mr. Justice Black was the sole dissenter, but your editorial overlooked what is really much more interesting and significant—the fact that since the rendering of the decision the court has granted a rehearing and the case has been set down for re-argument on October 10 upon the issues discussed in Justice Black's dissenting opinion.

You may be interested to know, also, that in the opinion of some lawyers, at least, it was the majority opinion that was revolutionary in that a long line of decisions was apparently overruled. At least the court ignored them and they are not readily distinguishable from the present case. This is pointed out in Mr. Justice Black's opinion and was the ground upon which the petition for rehearing rested mainly. The situation, far from being of the character which your editorial intimates, may well be one where Mr. Justice Black's scrutiny of the majority opinion has prevented the court from perhaps inadvertently going astray in a very difficult and important field of the law.

Embargo For Japan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I most heartily thank the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris for his righteous action, and that of his church congregation, in calling for an embargo upon war materials to barbaric Japan.

What hypocrisy it is to only name an aggressor nation in this savage warfare, and then allow war materials to aid in this foul butchery of defenseless women and children! By all means, I agree with the Rev. Mr. Harris, this country should cut off diplomatic relations with Japan. We are not a people of cringing weaklings. If Japan doesn't like it because she can no longer buy her implements of murder from us, and we refuse to purchase her silks and other goods, let her come over here and show us what she expects to do about it. Then we can show her what we think of her on her way over—and a lot more when she manages to get here!

If we want to sell war materials, let us sell them in wholesale lots to China, so she may be more able to defend herself against her barbaric enemy, who stops at no sort of outrage to gain her unrighteous ends.

Every church in our country should voice the sentiments of the Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church of Washington, D. C. It is high time that all our people should vigorously protest against any aid to Japan.
H. B. BRADFORD.

Excluding The Poor?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: According to "The March of Time" being shown at a local theater, it is only after 10 years' preparation and the expenditure of approximately $15,000 that a person can qualify to practice medicine.

As I see it, that excludes all but the wealthy from the medical profession; therefore (with all due apologies to President Roosevelt), the very men who could understand the needs of and sympathize with the poor are excluded from this profession. It seems to me there is something wrong with a profession that excludes the poor no matter how intelligent, unselfish, and gifted they may be in every other respect.
VERONICA SMITH.

Biting Dogs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Findings of the Chevy Chase Dog Protest Club give me a laugh because of some private experiences. Once I was walking past a swank front out there when an almost German-shepherd leaped out in throaty protest that anyone should pass in other than a motor car. Whenever I faced this snapping brute he kept his distance, but each time I went on hot breath could be felt on thinly guarded calves.

I appealed to a group of Languid Louies under a side-lawn canopy, unmoved by a doubtless common spectacle. "If you folks have any influence with this hound I wish you'd use it," sez I.

"Hell, that dog ain't gonna hurtcha," yelled back Torpid Tim.

Reassured, I proceeded, until aware of a tug at the right calf, followed by rending a trouser material sold as tear-proof, but the meat escaped. I turned "full of tolerance and pervading respect" on frothing canine fury, intent on "conquering with love," as recommended by a correspondent in Monday's Post, and raised a foot protectingly. Man's Best Friend butted the soft part of his nose against this barrier, then ran off howling, leaving me an amazed victor. The Languids, finally moved, ran out yelling bloody murder, ready to swarm all over me for manhandling dear Rover, when a motorist popped his head out. "I saw the whole thing, buddy, and if that louse bit you, I'll be glad to go your witness," he said.

One of the owners, I'm sorry to report, took it out on the dog, which act I leave to the philosophy of our Monday philosopher.

If you want the lowdown on the dog situation ask meter readers. Ask why they wear leather puttees that would turn a diamond-back rattler's fangs. One I talked to blamed the owners who keep dogs penned up, overfed, underexercised, especially in steam-heated houses; but he also showed me a vapor-throwing gadget whereby he had met several emergencies when leaped upon suddenly in dark cellars and elsewhere. I. H. L.
Washington, June 13.

Democracy And Spain.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The pretense of believing in democratic principles of government and at the same time showing apathetic indifference to the subversion of those principles, so clearly indicated in our present attitude toward our sister Republic of Spain, cannot possibly deceive anyone. The political party, group or individual that assumes such an attitude can scarcely be considered as more friendly to democracy than are those actively engaged in an effort to destroy democracy wherever it exists.

Patriotic Americans are not unmindful of the silence that prevails in the fact of present dangers. Indeed, they are becoming more and more concerned as time passes, and are asking, "Is our Government disposed to look with favor at Fascism's success?" The present invasion of Spain by foreign troops is a desperate attempt by dictators to destroy democracy in that country, and the destruction of lives of noncombatants is clearly of little moment compared with the end desired.

The same is true of China. Can this great democracy of ours stand idly by while the dastardly work is going on? In this crisis is the voice of a vast majority of the American people in the interest of democracy in Spain to go unheeded, and the enemies of democracy be allowed to go marching on? Are such conditions as exist in the State of New Jersey but the prelude to widespread denial of constitutional rights to our people throughout this land?

Much of the talk about Communism, indulged in so freely, is evidently for a purpose and is in the interest of Fascism. Should not our Government rise to the importance of the issues involved and use its influence to uphold the principles of democracy, against which the enemies of liberty are now arrayed?
A CITIZEN.
Washington, June 13.

Scrap For Bombing.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Good neighbor America; peace-loving America; seat of the people who cherish freedom, liberty, intelligence and tolerance; citadel from which go forth Christian missionaries preaching the Gospel to the untamed heathen; America, the lover of justice, the nucleus for purity and reverence; great America, friendly America, trustworthy America—Bull.

Sure we say and attempt to do all of the prementioned things. It is the majority's wish that such ideals shall be carried through to a successful fulfillment. But what happens? What really happens? What are the facts? Daily from the ports of Baltimore, San Francisco, etc., go forth thousands of tons of scrap iron and other raw materials hell-bent for Japan. Scrap iron to be used for war mechanism, artillery, and bombs—bombs which fall on helpless civilian populaces like Shanghai, Suchow and Canton. And why do such conditions exist? Why all these gruesome monstrosities and social degradation?

The unscrupulous capitalists must reap their harvest. Is this justice? Can this be the good neighbor America? We talk of peace and abhor the thoughts of war, but we nourished those who plundered in 1914 and we are nourishing those who are plundering today. How long do you suppose Japan could carry on her military invasion of a poor and helpless people if it were not for the raw materials which we ship her?

The Secretary of State has issued a statement asking those manufacturers who ship Japan and Spain huge bombing planes to revise their shipments for the sake of humanity and peace. Should they have to be asked to stop? Doesn't their consciousness tell them that such action is an indirect violation of the most sacred of the ten commandments? Is money more important than men, the lives of whom are taken daily through goods which this country ships abroad.

I appeal to you, stop all this hypocrisy and cant. Do not deceive your fellow man, nor yourself. Consecrate yourself to a service which warrants the dissolvement of all such wrongdoing. Make this country an example for the rest of the world to cherish. Demonstrate your Christianity and gain the respect and love of every existing nation upon this earth.

Hot Pork Virgil.

IN recent years there has appeared and become popular a vague and indefinable food item called hot roast beef—hot pork—sandwich, depending upon the genus of the constituent meat.

Though the exact composition of the comestible is made mysterious by its protective and gristle-hiding mantle of gravy, basically it seems to consist of a single slice of bread, a light garnish of meat, and then the friendly covering of "sop." There accompanies this a molehill, of which no one could make a mountain, of mashed potatoes and a second slice of bread, cut diagonally as if it were the top of the sandwich laid back.

I am not complaining of the dish itself, but only of the name given it. No one, I am sure, would more quickly disown this messy and inefficient viand as a namesake than the bluff and hearty earl who gave his title to the sandwich.

It is well known that this nobleman did not invent the sandwich as a gastronomic delight, but simply as a convenient article that might be eaten without leaving the gaming table. It is not hard to picture him giving the eventful order that led to the discovery of the sandwich.

"Ho, varlet," he said, without looking up from his cards, "fetch a slice of cold beef, and not too thin if you value your ears. And no dishes, rogue; just put it on a loaf of bread, and I'll eat the two together." And returning to the game, "I'll up you five crowns."

There is no need to detail what would have happened if the flunkey had returned with the bread and beef on a trencher, swimming in gravy.

Now I am not one to carp at a wrong without indicating a remedy therefor. Hence, since the sandwich was named after its founder, I suggest that these culinary hybrids be called after the man first to write of them, 2,000 years ago.

When I was in high school, I followed hard in the wake of Aeneus as he rambled over the Mediterranean seeking the land where he should found his city. But, where the Trojan traveled by boat, I journeyed by means of a pony, and, I suppose, at the cost of as much mental suffering as he. Of that course in Latin, I remember but two things, the familiar, "Arma virumque cano," and the story of Aeneus and the Harpies.

The Trojan leader, as the story goes, landed his force on the Isle of the Strophades, where his men found and slew some cattle for a feast. Just as the wanderers were preparing to eat, a band of Harpies appeared and destroyed the food. This occurred three times. On the last the Trojans tried with their weapons to drive away the monsters.

Celaeno, the leader of the Harpies, then perched upon a cliff, and in the language of Dryden, pronounced this curse upon the Trojans:

What! not contented with our oxen slain,
Dare you with Heav'n an impious war maintain,
And drive the Harpies from their native reign? . . .
But know, that ere your promis'd walls you build,
My curses shall severely be fulfill'd.
Fierce famine is your lot for this misdeed,
Reduc'd to grind the plates on which you feed.

The Trojans were terrified at this curse, and so they might be for the picture of eating their dishes as well as the food spread upon them was not a happy one. By sacrifices and prayers they attempted to appease the Harpies, but without success. Haply, the curse was expiated in following fashion.

After reaching Italy, the Trojans prepared a thanksgiving feast, even as the early Pilgrims. Instead of using dishes, they spread out flat loaves of bread along the turf, and placed their food upon them. But let Dryden continue the story:

Beneath a shady tree, the hero spread
And, with his chiefs, on forest fruits he fed.
They sate; and, (not without the god's command,)
Their homely fare dispatch'd, the hungry band
Invade their trenchers next, and soon devour,
To mend the scanty meal, their cakes of flour.
Ascanius this observ'd, and smiling said:
See, we devour the plates on which we fed.

Immediately the Trojans took up the cry that they had fulfilled the prophecy and now could start building their city.

Though the founding of Rome was the direct outcome of this feast, is it not right to predicate the invention of the sandwich upon it as a consequence no less important? Both the food and the bread upon which it was placed were eaten. And, though there was no cover, it is clear that we have here a description of the one-sided sandwich.

The honor then should be split between the gaming earl and Virgil. Where the viand is two-sided, name it a sandwich; but where the meat lies open to the world, call it after the latter, a hot roast beet—or hot pork—Virgil.

Fair Enough

No Class B Americans.

THERE IS in this country a class of citizens who believe that the true American is a person of British, Irish, Scandinavian or North German stock and that all other Americans, even of the third or fourth generation, are here by their very kind permission and courtesy and owe a polite duty, as guests, to conform to their habits and ideas.

PEGLER.

I recently heard a speech by a noted American World War commander in which he advanced this thought and threatened if these others did not show the proper attitude, then they had a way in the Army of compelling obedience. He said that if "they" insisted on abusing the liberty which he, acting through his forebears, had established here, then the real Americans, of whom he acknowledged himself to be one, would have to take firm measures.

The distinguished officer seemed to regard the United States as a rather exclusive suburban country club which, in order to meet the overhead in a period of necessity, had admitted large numbers of class B members. He and his class, of course, enjoyed full membership and each owned a share of the stock. They were annoyed by the bad manners of the class Bs and were beginning to regret that they had been allowed to come in and, worse, given voting privileges.

The officer made no mention of the work for the benefit of the club which the class Bs had performed. The pick and shovel duty, all the hard and dirty tasks with which the class A citizens of the last few generations had been too smart and fastidious to soil their hands. He complained that the country was overcrowded, with 122,000,000 demanding food, cover and clothing, as compared with 50,000,000 50 years ago.

• • • •

THERE WERE ONLY a hundred or so in the audience and the flutter of applause when he finished his remarks may have been merely a tribute of politeness to the man rather than approval of anything in his speech.

It seemed a proper occasion for someone to remind the gallant soldier that he was in no position to peer down his nose at any other law-abiding citizen and, in fact, was himself in need of some reminding as to the meaning of liberty and Americanism.

I know it is trite to say so, but there are still many Americans, particularly in the upper economic and social brackets, who cannot be reminded too often that this is not, as they try to believe, an Anglo-Saxon or Nordic or Aryan country. We speak, read and write our version of the English language, we share Shakespeare with the British—whatever that may mean—and our laws are similar, but we brought in millions of Italians, Serbs, Poles, Greeks and Rumanians to do the strong-back work at a time when the cities and railroads were building, and they stayed, and their children and grandchildren are here, and nobody is going to send them back and nobody is going to make Anglo-Saxons of them. They are just Americans and it would be good to have it understood that no individual among these people owes any apology to anyone else on the ground that the other one's ancestors farmed a New England patch before the Revolution.

• • • •

THAT MAY BE a pleasant thought, and the class A members of the club are entitled to any happiness it gives them, but it has no value at the polls or elsewhere. Native Americans, of course, have no certificate of citizenship, but if they did have such the class A might be surprised and a little upset to discover that a man with a pure British name whose forebears fought in the Revolution rated precisely the same ticket as the others.

I discussed the officer's remarks with him after he had left the platform and tried to learn just how anyone would go about compelling "them" to show a proper appreciation of the American liberties without destroying the very liberties which he was so anxious to preserve. He couldn't give a very clear idea of the procedure and plainly was just out of patience with the active citizenship of peoples who have now been here long enough to feel they are Americans, not the docile greenhorns of old. Most ill-mannered of them, but it should have been realized back in the days of the heavy immigration that the newcomers would stay and breed and that some day about now their descendants would take their citizenship seriously, millions of them with no claim to nor desire for classification as Anglo-Saxons.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

"Uncle Sam, Men's Clothier."

It is now proposed that the Government take over the surplus clothes on the shelves of the men's clothing manufacturers to get that industry out of the slump. Discussions on plans to plow under every third pair of pants are under way.

• • • • •

A Government sluaughter of coats and vests is a possibility.

• • • •

It seems the industry is stuck with too many garments. So Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, has suggested to Uncle Sam that he do to pants what he did to pigs and potatoes.

• • • •

The idea is only complicated by the fact that you can't shoot a coat and vest.

• • • •

Washington would have to do something with all those extra clothes if it bought them. Roosevelt, with all his good intentions and desire to help everybody, can wear only one pair of pants at a time.

• • • •

Garner, of course, might do his bit by making his Texas farmhands change to a new suit four times a day, and Secretary Wallace might leap into the breach (or into the breeches) by a speech urging all farmers to wear sports suits while milking the cows. He might, in the interest of recovery, even suggest that the cows be supplied with overcoats in the smarter modes.

• • • •

One suggestion is that Washington buy all the surplus clothes and hold them until prices pick up. If they go out of style by that time, the Administration can pass a law forcing the Republicans to wear 'em.

• • • •

Uncle Sam had better go slowly. The men's hat factories are overstocked, too. And the men's underwear industry has its selling problems. It may be necessary to put the frank question to Uncle Sam: After all, are you a haberdasher or are you a government?

• • • • •

It would sort of seem funny to write your Congressman for a blue serge suit and vote for whichever party could qualify as the better tailor.

Winant's Job

His Election To Directorship Of International Labor Office Has Great Significance For America.

By Smith Simpson.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

THE DIRECTORSHIP OF THE INTERNATIONAL LABOR OFFICE to which John G. Winant has been recently elected, is a post which has gained world-wide prominence since its creation 20 years ago.

The office is one of the three bodies composing the International Labor Organization, the other two being the governing body and the International Labor Conference. The conference, meeting annually, directly achieves the object of the organization, by adopting treaties for the raising of labor standards and checking the enforcement of the treaties ratified by governments. Necessary for the development of such treaties is a vast amount of research, discussion, diplomacy and initiative. These things a permanent staff contributes: the International Labor Office. The office is run by the director, and the director is appointed by the governing body which is an executive council meeting four times a year.

Although selected by the governing body, the director of the office is no mere administrative agent. The governing body can remove the director of the office at any time. In that sense he is under its control. But the control is only over general objectives; it does not extend to methods of attaining those objectives.

One of the traditions which Albert Thomas created during his directorship was that the governing body should never interfere with the running of the office. The former decides what studies shall be made, what committees of experts shall be established, what technical conferences shall be called. But the operation of the office is exclusively within the jurisdiction of the director.

Director Has Many Things At Fingers' Ends.

THE GOVERNING BODY meeting more frequently than the International Labor Conference, and being an executive council, has considerable influence. But the director is even more on the job than the governing body. The director's post is an every day affair and its holder inevitably acquires familiarity with a wide range of affairs affecting the organization which others not so situated cannot. This is as true now as in the early days, when there existed the immense task of getting the organization under way.

While the I. L. O. has grown to maturity and is no longer an experiment, the scope of its work is steadily expanding. New programs are being undertaken each year, new committees are set up to formulate programs, and, with the world in a ferment of industrial and social change, new demands are constantly made upon the office by member countries. As the work and the usefulness of the I. L. O. grow in response to increasing demands, the job of the director grows as well.

The election of Mr. Winant invites a comparison of the office of director of the I. L. O. with that of the secretary general of the League. The secretary general also heads a permanent staff which has come to be recognized as exceptionally competent in technical questions. The secretary general is also on the job from day to day, maintaining closer contacts than any other single individual with the governments which are members of the League. Yet the secretary general probably has less influence than the director of the International Labor Office.

Two facts explain the difference: Albert Thomas and the representation of workers and employers in the labor organization. The first director was not a man to wait for others to act. He had been a man of action in French politics. During the war he had served as minister of munitions, a position requiring energy and administrative capacity of the highest order. These qualities Albert Thomas possessed and immediately utilized in building of the International Labor Organization into an independent, efficient and forceful international institution capable of going places and doing things. Under Thomas the directorship became a position of real leadership.

Thomas Did Not Scorn Politics Always.

IN THE INTERNATIONAL LABOR OFFICE the British-trained civil servants were appalled by the audacity of Thomas. One of them has written: "I came into the international service after some years in the British civil service. I brought with me, I hope, some of the qualities which British civil servants are supposed to acquire. I certainly brought many of their prejudices. I did not find it easy to accept other methods which seemed to me repugnant to some of the principles which in the British service were regarded as fundamental. And in particular I had a sane and holy horror of administrative methods which savored of political inspiration or interference."

Political influence and methods were recognized by Thomas to be necessary to a certain extent in forging a position of leadership. While Sir Eric Drummond, the first secretary-general of the League, carried out the niceties of the British civil service, Thomas established himself as a man of influence in the industrial affairs with which the I. L. O. deals.

But the difference in the two positions is more than one of original personalities. It arises also from a structural difference in the organization of the two institutions. In the League, governments only are represented. In the International Labor Organization, workers and employers are represented side by side with governments.

If Sir Eric had essayed the role of an "international leader" he probably would have been promptly put in the place he voluntarily chose to occupy. But in the I. L. O. Albert Thomas had the support of the workers' group and often of the employers' group. He did not have to view himself as beholden to the governments. Since the voice of the workers and employers combined equals that of governments in the I. L. O. and since both of these groups act as units, independently of governments, governments could not have put Albert Thomas "in his place."

One sees something of the position which the director of the International Labor Office occupies in the world by the reports of the director which are made each year to the International Labor conference. The report is a survey of world social conditions in which the director expresses his own views as well as detailed economic, financial and industrial information and diagrams. It is not a cursory survey, but a systematic and profound analysis, buttressed by tables and graphs. It is printed and distributed weeks in advance for study by conference delegates. The debate on the director's report is indeed one of the chief occupations of the conference.

The director's report has the world as an audience. It has a world conference to focus upon it the interest of the world. Therefore numerous people read it and newspapers comment on it everywhere. This world-wide interest is both a cause and a result of the director's important position.

U. S. Wanted Winant Chosen For The Post.

THE INTEREST OF AMERICANS in the election of Mr. Winant by the governing body has been increased by the interest which the United States Government took in his election. Well in advance of the election, Washington, through diplomatic channels, notified the governments represented on the governing body that it was interested in Mr. Winant becoming director.

The Administration in Washington is keenly aware that the improvement of labor standards in the United States cannot leave standards of competing countries out of account. Indeed our experience under N. R. A. showed that if a flat level of hours and wages are blanketed upon industry, foreign competition in some lines will intensify instantly. Consequently, it is to our interest to join actively in the efforts of the I. L. O. to effect a general improvement in labor and social standards throughout the world.

The interest of the Administration also can be viewed in the light of recent utterances of Cabinet officials, pointing out the impossibility of the United States building a permanent prosperity in a world threatened with war. The United States cannot follow the course of isolation, said the Secretary of State on June 3. In this light the election of Mr. Winant assumes unusual significance and the problems which he will encounter as director become of more than casual interest.

Drift Of 1937

By Lewis Gannett

A Melancholy Chronicle.

NINETEEN THIRTY-SEVEN: Year of disaster, year of confusion. Whitney H. Shepardson and William O. Scroggs's annual "The United States in World Affairs, in 1937" (Harpers, $3), prepared under the auspices of the Council on Foreign Relations, is even more cheerless than its predecessors. Toward the end the authors seem to see one faint gleam of hope: that the United States may be inching toward war, or something like war, with Japan.

As the year ended the United States was embarking upon a "rearmament" (precious word!) program, "directed, of course, toward the possibility of conflict with Japan;" the Department of State was taking "a strong attitude" with respect to the protection of American lives and property in China; and Washington was evincing a readiness "to take parallel action with other interested powers—particularly with the European democracies, and notably with Great Britain—in a common effort to uphold the principles of international law and restore order, not in Europe but in the Far East." Our authors see a faint hope that "unbridled nationalism might receive a check in at least one quarter of the earth."

It is worth noting that they assume that this hope depends upon close co-operation with Great Britain. The trusting faith in British democracy—mitigated only moderately by occasional cautious criticisms of British policy—and the almost complete ignoring of the possibility of co-operation with the other great satisfied power, Soviet Russia, is typical of the tone of the whole book, as it is of most academic liberalism in America, and of seaboard use of that pretty phrase, "collective securtiy." And I believe that the futility of all the peace moves of the last decade is due to this curious national astigmatism; unless and until Britain and Russia can learn to work together for world peace, American "co-operation" can be nothing but a tagging along at the not altogether clean apron strings of Mother England.

• • • •

MOST OF THE BOOK, however, is a reasonably objective survey of the drift of American foreign policy in 1937, and an extremely readable one, leaving the documents to a series of appendices which must be of great use to any one working in the field of foreign affairs. We headline readers lose the sense of continuity, and these annual surveys, picking up the threads of our national involvements with Europe, with South America, with our insular neighbors and with Asia may be not only salutary but startling.

For there is a drift. Mr. Shepardson and Mr. Scroggs, who have just completed their seventh such survey, have themselves paused to take breath, and are astonished at the changes they have chronicled. For in 1931 the world was still, if somewhat restlessly, looking backward; it was merely disturbed that the arrangements contemplated at Versailles required so much tinkering. By the end of 1937—and, in many ways, 1937 was the crucial year—the world was uneasily aware that the Versailles system had crumbled and was peering fearsomely into the future. The fear of a Communist world almost had vanished; the fear of a Fascist world was great.

In 1931 France had prevented a union of Germany and Austria; the Western world was still ready to subsidize the Versailles system with gold, even if the hopes of the Young plan were waning. Germany was still disarmed; Hitler seemed merely a fool agitator.

It was in 1931 that the great Japanese invasion of China began, and the Western world still thought it could stop Japan with words and resolutions.

In 1931 Mussolini's Italy was still a loyal member of the League of Nations, more suspicious of Germany than of Britain; the Berlin-Rome axis had not been born, nor was the coming invasion of Ethiopia suspected. And Spain was still Spain!

"The truth slowly revealed itself," our authors say, "that a world revolution was under way, that a world war was possible, and that the nations other than these three"—Germany, Italy and Japan—"were offered the choice of submitting to the rising tide of force or of resisting it."

• • • •

MEANWHILE, THE AMERICAN TENDENCY, they point out, was, insofar as public opinion was concerned, more and more to retire into isolation. This book chronicles with rare clarity and reasonable objectivity the debates about the neutralty acts, in which argument concerned merely the means of maintaining isolation. It accepts lightly the Administration's "neutrality" in Spain, commenting with asperity upon those "pacifists" who clamor for isolation but demand action where their own sympathies are involved. It notes the significantly greater readiness primarily of the Administration but also of the people, to move toward involvement in Asia. That, it suggests, is the most significant trend of the year.

The authors have respect for Secretary Hull's effort at appeasement by trade agreements, but they are little impressed by the results. They note that, despite all the talk of lowering tariffs, the most striking change of the year was an increased restriction upon imported sugar.

Looking southward, they remark that in the first three years of President Lazaro Cardenas's regime more was accomplished toward realizing the economic program of the Mexican revolution than had been achieved in the entire preceding decade. "Mexico for the Mexicans" is becoming a reality; but the reality inevitably conflicts with foreign interests. Two decades earlier such revolutionary progress in Mexico would have brought with it noisy demands for intervention; the calm acceptance of the Mexican program seems to Mr. Shepardson and Mr. Scroggs to indicate that "for the present 'dollar diplomacy' is as dead as the dodo." They may yet be glad that they inserted that cautious "for the present."

They might have remarked that since Great Britain and France have repudiated their debts, the argument for intervention in little countries has lost something of its cogency.

• • • •

SEEN IN RETROSPECT, the famous "quarantine" speech at Chicago and the Panay incident are even more alarming than they seemed at the time. The six months since the ends of 1937 do not seem to have accentuated the drift which these authors defined at the close of the year . . . That is the difficulty of writing history; before it is written it changes its course. Mr. Shepardson and Mr. Scroggs seldom fall into those "either . . . or" crystallizations of which some of our best-known commentators are so fond. Perhaps the business of writing current history has taught them that history almost never accepts neat dilemmas; it usually muddles through, like a river overflowing a marsh without cutting a single channel. And the memory of the impossible situations which, without being settled, have been evaded by such muddy muddling, is the only antidote to the reasonable gloom with which this well organized volume is filled.

A Voice From The Past

Tucked away in the back sections of the newspapers was a brief Associated Press dispatch about a man whom one had been disposed to rank with the Vanished Americans, Mr. Howard Scott, once the major prophet of Technocracy. Mr. Scott is as alarmed about the future of the country as he was when he and his little group of serious thinkers published their first jeremiads on the future of a machine-age civilization. By 1942, Mr. Scott declares, there will be 40,000,000 persons unemployed in the country; yet the machines will be turning out a third more goods than they are today. The only hope, the one salvation, lies in Technocracy.

Technocracy! What a nostalgic sound the word has. It first appeared back in the early thirties, about the time, one seems to remember, when "Brother Can You Spare a Dime" was the current song hit and the country had not yet learned to drink beer without fear that a revenue officer might interrupt the process. Technocracy produced a spate of books that kept the current events and literary clubs bewildered for several months. Then it disappeared as utterly, it had seemed safe to assume, as had Coue-ism, the Charleston, Mah Jong and similar nine-day wonders. But now it is back again, or will be if Mr. Scott has his way.

Ousted Faction Fights Martin On UAW Funds

Suspended Officers Notify Bank Withdrawals by Him Are Illegal.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, June 14.—Factions within the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers clashed today over control of the union's international treasury as an aftermath of President Homer Martin's suspension of five ranking officials.

Members of the anti-Martin faction said they had served notice on a bank where the union was reported to have $100,000 on deposit, that withdrawal without consent of George F. Addes, suspended secretary-treasurer, would be illegal. The union's latest financial report showed expenditures of $1,587,561 last year.

Larry S. Davidow, attorney for the union, said arrangements had been made with the bank to recognize the signature of Delmond Garst, executive board member who was named by Martin as acting treasurer. Martin's allies said the executive board had adopted a resolution transferring control of the Treasury to Martin and Garst.

The suspended officers, Addes and Vice Presidents Richard T. Frankensteen, Wyndham Mortimer, Walter N. Wells and Ed Hall, returned to Detroit today from Washington.

They said they would start at once soliciting support among the membership for a special convention to consider removal of Martin as president, presumably to be replaced by Frankensteen.

In Washington, Martin conferred for two hours today with John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, then boarded an airplane for Detroit.

The next round in the factional battle may come tomorrow at a special meeting of the international executive board called by Martin, ostensibly to consider an industrial insurance proposal.

Arrangements for a trial of the suspended officers may be made at that meeting, but Martin supporters here said the trial probably would not be held in the immediate future.

The suspended officers were admitted today to the international headquarters where Martin appointees had taken over their offices. Later, however, they said they had been ordered to leave and personal effects they took were searched.

Meyer, Morley to Talk At Testimonial Today

"My hubby is out of work," she said. "Anyway, I like it. I can be my own boss and knock off when I get tired."

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

Here is a communication from Harry G. Ritner, editor, The Washington Federal Bulletin, and a GAO employe, which would seem open to several answers from our customers:

"I have noted one sentence in particular in your column which I like very much. Speaking of employe unions, you said: 'They all worked together to get it through, just as they should do in all matters of a common interest. If a union wants to claim credit for anything in connection with it, it might point out that a willingness was shown to work in harmony with all other unions—that would be enough to boast about.'

"Just as the Moose or Elks attract some while the Red Men might attract others, so it is with Federal employes when they select one of the several employe organizations. And one thing is certain: If the several Unions do not petition Congress of their demands along similar lines, membership may be valueless as far as benefits are concerned.

"For the past years, credit has been taken by various unions for things they had very little to do with. I personally know of an individual who forced a change in a very important administrative procedure. And all the unions claimed credit. Please allow me to illustrate a lack of union interest in appropriation hearings, and how a proper presentation of facts before Congress will benefit membership. Members of Congress are human, but not mind readers; any proper petition will at least receive consideration.

"Hearings on the emergency relief appropriation act of 1938 and Public Works Administration appropriation act of the same year began April 20 last, and ended May 4. It is certain that representatives of the unions should have been interested, as the fate of all emergency employes was involved. ut I shall be frank enough to tell you that only one representative of unions appeared. (It is certain that I shall be criticized for this statement.) But it is a fact of record that Edgar G. Brown, president of the colored United Government Employes, Inc., did appear and made a very impressive statement which resulted in giving to his race exactly what he requested.

"For the past four years, the recorded hearings of the various sub-committees on appropriations carry very little from the union representatives, and members of the Congress should be acquainted with the employes' wishes to the end of improving working conditions. How else will they know? Lodging of petitions with the Speaker will not suffice. Let all unions pull together along common grounds.

"The five-day week for Federal employes will be ready for passage next session if properly presented. Credit for overtime is ready when and if all unions make joint, proper plea. Court of Appeals measure is ready when and if all unions make joint, proper plea. Representative Sirovich is the pioneer of the masure and will no doubt lead the battle if requested to do so. The Civil Service Commission should be strengthened. This will come through Congress granting "finality of decision" to the commission—and all the unions working together may accomplish this.

"This writer calls for more action and less lip service. Payment of dues should entitle members to every consideration."

Arrests Strike Terror Among German Jews

By Ralph Barnes.

Berlin, June 14.—Panic seized German Jewry today as police activities and spontaneous demonstrations expanded into the biggest anti-Semitic drive in the Third Reich since 1935. Summary arrests in Berlin continued on a sporadic basis throughout the day.

Reports from reliable sources indicated that police activities aimed at Jews in the capital were being duplicated in provincial centers. Arrests occurred in Koenigsberg, Essen and Braslau and in other widely separated points, although it is impossible to secure even approximate figures as to the number of Jews in custody at one time or another during the last few days in the whole Reich. Some wholly unconfirmed reports mention as many as 1,000 or more.

Meanwhile, a new "spontaneous" and unregulated boycott movement has been getting under way in Berlin, where signs such as "Don't Deal With This Jewish Pig," and "Germans Do Not Deal With Jews" are daubed on shop windows and sidewalks before Jewish shops in both the west and east ends of the city.

House Committee To Study Shipping

By the Associated Press.

The House authorized its Merchant Marine Committee last night to make a comprehensive study of labor problems and other phases of the shipping industry.

The cost of the inquiry was limited to $10,000. Chairman Bland (Democrat), Virginia, told the House the committee would have power to delve into all operations of the Maritime Commission and the subsidies it pays the merchant marine. Representative Culkin (Democrat), New York, a member of the committee, asserted, however, the study was not an investigation of the commission which, he said, was "functioning admirably."

Cab Driver Dies of Gas While Working on Car

Floyd Racey, 25, taxicab driver, was the victim yesterday of carbon monoxide poisoning while working on his automobile in the rear of his home, 2309 Thirty-sixth street southeast.

He was found slumped in the front seat by his wife, Mrs. Effie Racey. Members of the Fire Rescue Squad worked 20 minutes to revive the man. He was pronounced dead by a physician from Casualty Hospital.

Capital Transit To Remove Rails Before Station

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday authorized the Capital Transit Co. to remove an abandoned car track fronting Union Station.

Rearrangement of the tracks, which is to follow removal of the unused track, will not begin, however, until the commission approves transit company plans for the changes.

The commission also recorded a previous authorization permitting inbound rush-hour trips of the Hyattsville-Laurel bus line to leave the regular route at Ninth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast and proceed on the route of the Rhode Island avenue bus line.

This was approved sometime ago following request of bus patrons who wanted to travel to the Eighteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest terminal. The regular terminal for the Hyattsville-Laurel bus is Ninth street and Constitution avenue northwest.

Yard Art Students HoldExhibitToday

Pupils of the Yard School of Fine Art, who range in age from 6 to 60, will exhibit today from 4 to 6 p. m. at 2000 S street northwest. Over 150 students will be represented.

Miss Margaret Yard, director; William Mark Simpson, instructor in sculpture, and William S. Tyler and Miss Anne Totten, of the faculty, will be judges.

Rites Held at St. John's For Mrs. Lilly T. Taplin

Services for Mrs. Lilly Tyson Joliffe Taylin, widow of Horatio N. Taylin, were held yesterday at St. John's Church. Burial will be in Montpelier, Vt. She died Sunday at her home in the Westmoreland Apartments after a long illness. She was the daughter of Edward Jolliffe, of Clear Brooke, Va., and Virginia Page Jolliffe.

Mrs. Taplin was a member of the Colonial Dames of the State of Maryland and a charter member of the Club of Colonial Dames.

Warner Brothers Plan New 'Kennedy' Theater

Plans for a new Warner Brothers theater at Kennedy street and Concord avenue northwest were announced yesterday.

John J. Payette, Warner Bros. zone manager, said that arrangements for immediate construction of the new theater have been completed with Garfield I. Kass, head of the Kass Realty Co.

The new theater, to be known as the Kennedy, will include a semi-elliptical auditorium and will provide 1,000 seats on one floor. It will be air-conditioned throughout.

To Better Serve You—A Greatly Enlarged, New DELICATESSEN DEPARTMENT

A few years ago we installed a small delicatessen department which we believed was sufficiently large to serve your everyday wants. Frankly, we were much surprised to note the increasing patronage and demand this department created, so much so that it was too small to give you the service and attention you desired. So now we are happy to bring you a modern up-to-the-minute department — with the same highest quality food products — and courteous, helpful service. We thank you for your continued patronage.

Dentists Elect Dr. Brown to Head Society

District Group's Annual Meeting Names New Officers.

Dr. James W. Brown, a native of Fairfax County, Va., became president of the District Dental Society last night at its annual meeting in the United States Public Health Service auditorium. Last year he had been named president-elect. Dr. J. P. Burke was the retiring president.

Dr. W. Marion Falls was unanimously named president-elect for the coming year, and Dr. William Chase was unanimously elected vice president. Dr. Daniel F. Lynch, secretary-treasurer; Dr. W. Paul Hoffman, chairman of the oral hygiene committee, and Dr. E. T. Lane, chairman of the publications committee, began the last year of their three-year terms.

Three on Service Bureau.

New members elected to the executive committee were Dr. J. Walter Bernhard, Dr. Lawrence Smallwood, Dr. Manly Michaels, Dr. W. F. Birthright, and Dr. George Clendenin.

Three members were chosen by vote for recommendation to the District Commissioners to fill the vacancy now existing on the Board of Dental Examiners. They were Dr. Charles T. Bassett, Dr. E. T. Lane and Dr. J. P. Fitzgerald.

Life Memberships Awarded.

For the first time the society voted life memberships to the following 35-year members:

Dr. Edward B. Horen, Dr. Edwin H. Bogley, Dr. Rosalind M. Bane, Dr. Paris E. Brengle, Dr. A. D. Weakley, Dr. H. McNamee, Dr. Warren G. Price, Dr. Charles W. Cuthbertson, Dr. William H. Cogan, Dr. J. R. DeFarges, Dr. Ernest M. Colvin and Dr. M. M. Dolmage.

Dr. Brown was educated at Force and McKinley High schools here and attended the Missouri School of Mines for two years before graduating from Georgetown Dental School in 1917. That year he was commissioned in Dental Corps Army Reserves and established his practice here while waiting for assignment.

He makes his home at Falls Church, Va., and is retiring president of the Arlington County Rotary Club. He is also a member of the Washington Board of Trade and the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Husband Appeals To Police to Find Wife, 2 Children

Plainly despairing of success, Louis Berger, of 3210 Georgia avenue northwest, last night asked police to help him search for his wife, Blanche, 29, and their two children, Joseph, 8, and Frances, 6, missing since Saturday.

Berger, a wet wash laundry spotter, said his wife disappeared sometime after 1 p. m. Saturday, taking the children. She had only $2, he said, and has not been in touch with several relatives in Washington.

He was especially worried, he told police, because his wife had been morose and brooding since March, when she underwent an operation for cancer in a Baltimore hospital. She constantly recalled, Berger said, that a cousin had died soon after an identical operation several years ago and often expressed the fear her illness would end the same way.

Two Horne Girls Receive Awards

Miss Mildred Lucille Horne, a junior, and Miss Celeste Horne, a freshman at Greensboro College, Greensboro, N. C., both daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lloyd Horne, 5521 Colorado avenue northwest, have received scholarships for the highest academic records in their classes the past year, Dr. Luther L. Gobbell, president, announced yesterday.

Mildred Lucille Horne is president of the Greensboro College Honor Society, editor of the college annual, The Echo, a member of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet, and a member of Le Cercle Francais. Celeste Horne is a member of the Junior Honor Society and of the Glee Club.

Bar Indorses 9 for District Judgeships

Ferguson, Prettyman, Richardson Named for Appeals Court.

Three Washington lawyers were recommended last night by the Bar Association of the District of Columbia to be judges of the Court of Appeals. They are Abner H. Ferguson, E. Barrett Prettyman and Seth W. Richardson.

For the District Court the association recommended Charles W. Arth, George P. Barse, Arthur P. Drury, Jo V. Morgan and H. Winship Wheatley, as well as Brice Clagett.

Meeting in the Mayflower Hotel, the lawyers held memorial services for those of their group who have died in the past year.

The memorial committee was composed, of E. Hilton Jackson chairman; Jerome F. Barnard, Ralph P. Barnard, Charles Henry Butler, Francis L. Neubeck and Conrad H. Syme.

Presiding at the meeting was the newly appointed District Court Justice, Bolitha J. Laws, president of the association, assisted by E. Hilton Jackson, chairman of the memorial committee.

In its report, the board of directors reviewed the new lunacy law, which makes private insanity hearings formerly held in the open courtroom.

The association went on record, through its report, as favoring Washington men for the posts of justices when vacancies arise upon the District bench or new judgeships are created.

Nomination of Frank J. Hogan for the presidency of the American Bar Association was seen as tantamount to election. The report called especial attention to the fact that if Hogan is elected, he will be the first District lawyer to occupy the post.

Lundeen Lauds Contribution of Sweden to U. S.

Senator Speaks at Meeting Marking Tercentenary of Settlement.

Contributions of Sweden to the cultural, religious, economic and political progress of America were lauded last night by Senator Lundeen, of Minnesota, who spoke at the Department of Labor auditorium at exercises marking the 300th anniversary of the first permanent Swedish settlement in this country.

Emphasizing the fact that the first law courts, schools and churches in America were established by Swedes, the speaker, member of the District of Columbia Committee on the Delaware Valley Tercentenary Celebration, praised the accomplishments of the early settlers, among them John Hanson, first president under the Articles of Confederation.

Folk Wennerberg, Counselor of the Swedish legation, outlined plans for the tercentenary celebration at Wilmington June 27 when President Roosevelt will join in welcoming a Swedish delegation headed by Crown Prince Gustav Adolphus.

Music last night was furnished by the Newcomb-Bethesda Community Singers, the United States Marine Band Orchestra, and Mrs. Esther Celander King, who sang the favorite song of the Swedish nightingale, Jenny Lind. The band played the Swedish national anthem.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Arthur O. Hjelm, pastor of the Augustana Lutheran Church. The Rev. Knute E. Carlson, head of the Swedish mission in Washington, delivered the benediction. W. N. Morrell, chairman of the local tercentenary committee, presided.

The color guard of the Marine Corps marches down the Capitol steps to "The Stars and Striper Forever." Patriotic societies gathered at the Capitol last night for Flag Day ceremonies.

Knutson Warns U. S. to Keep Its Principles Unsullied.

Ceremonies at the east front of the Capitol last night climaxed daylong activities marking the 161st anniversary of the Stars and Stripes as the flag of the United States.

Flanked by the American flag, and the emblems of the 13 Colonies, Representative Harold Knutson (Republican), of Minnesota, called on more than 5,000 persons at the Capitol to keep "our flag unsullied and the principles of our Government intact, and to maintain the traditions of our glorious past."

Through the day, members of patriotic organizations led Washington school children in celebrations, while veterans and fraternal groups observed the anniversary in evening meetings.

Knutson Cites Liberty.

Representative Knutson, leading services conducted annually by the Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, warned against scrapping a Constitution which guarantees "rights and privileges enjoyed by no other people under the sun."

"Today the liberty of our people is endangered as never before and those who are indifferent to the trend of the times are evading their sacred responsibilities of citizenship," he said.

Suggesting the greatest danger to the Republic was in the indifference of its people, Knutson challenged a "philosopry that would have us believe that the less we produce the more we will have; a philosophy that teaches us to look to the Government at Washington to do for us the things we should do for ourselves."

Throughout the ceremonies at the Capitol, members of the Women's Relief Corps and other patriotic groups lined both sides of the steps with the American flag. A letter from the department commander, John M. Kline, was read by his assistants, Everett F. Warner.

Parker Presents Colors.

Percy Parker, colorbearer of the Department of the Potomac, G. A. R. presented the colors, and Mrs. E. Genevieve Craig, department patriotic instructor for the Women's Relief Corps, led the pledge of allegiance. Following the address, color guards of the Army, Navy and Marince Corps marched down the steps to the "Stars and Stripes Forever," played by the Army Band.

More than 400 persons last night celebrated Flag Day in exercises led by the Right Rev. Mgr. Peter Guilday, professor of history at Catholic University, in the Knights of Columbus Building, Tenth and K streets northwest.

Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart (Republican), of California, warned against dictatorships at a meeting of 300 persons at the Elks Lodge, John Dillon Fitzgerald, past exalted ruler, traced the history of the flag.

Senator Walsh Speaks.

Earlier in the day, Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, told members of the American Legion the "problem of our future is not merely to preserve material greatness and prosperity but to preserve the soul and spirit of America." He spoke at ceremonies at the New Interior auditorium, sponsored by Post 42, American Legion.

The ceremonies followed a school parade, led by Sons of the American Legion and Takoma Boys Band, which marched from the Thomson School, Twelfth and L streets northwest, to Constitution avenue and the Interior Building. In the parade were the National Guard of Honor of the American Legion and students of Force School.

Seas Will Be Dredged For Lost Soviet Fliers

By the Associated Press.

A portion of the Arctic Ocean will be dredged in an intensified search this summer for the six Russian fliers who disappeared en route to the United States last August.

The Soviet Embassy explained yesterday that the dredging will take place around the spot where Eskimos reported they saw the splash of a plane in Arctic Ocean wastes—even though the Soviet government does not believe this was really the missing plane.

Contracts Awarded For Four More Ships

By the Associated Press.

The Maritime Commission awarded contracts yesterday for construction of four more steel cargo ships to the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., Kearny N. J., and the Sun Drydock & Shipbuilding Co., Chester, Pa.

Each of the yards, already holding contracts for four vessels, received two of the new awards.

Commissioners to Ask Municipal, Juvenile Court Funds of PWA

Two Buildings Head 'Urgent' List Prepared for Ickes, Gallinger Hospital Addition Third on $18,150,000 Request.

A municipal court building to cost $1,500,000, heads the list of 15 projects which the Commissioners will ask of the Public Works Administration, as provided under terms of the enabling act passed Monday by the House.

Total cost of the projects, which include public schools, hospital additions, a new fire alarm headquarters, juvenile court, jail and municipal center, was estimated by the Commissioners at $18,150,000. Projects which the District officials termed "urgently needed" were selected from a list of "desirable" projects, cost of which was placed at $31,700,000.

The Municipal Court was listed first among urgently needed ones, and would be constructed on Judiciary Square.

Some Plans Advanced.

Although the Commissioners as yet have not forwarded the requests to Secretary Ickes, PWA Administrator, it is expected they will as soon as President Roosevelt signs the bill. District officials stated yesterday plans for some of the projects were in advanced stages. Others, however, have no sites, but surveys are being made of all available locations.

The new juvenile court, which would be erected near the District Court in Judiciary Square, is second on the list. This project will necessitate a loan and grant of $500,000. The Commissioners are requesting $750,000 for construction of the Gallinger Hospital ward building, long listed as needed by health authorities.

The Commissioners plan to request $2,570,000 for development of the new Municipal Center, north of Pennsylvannia avenue betwen Third and Sixth streets northwest. Although they declare $5,500,000 "desirable" to hasten completion of units of the Center, they said the $2,570,000 was "urgently needed."

First Unit Provided For.

Under the terms of the 1939 District appropriation act, $1,500,000 is provided for erection of the first unit of the Center, to house the Police and Fire departments.

A loan and grant of $800,000 is proposed by the Commissioners for construction of a new building at the Glenn Dale Sanatorium. Here again the Commissioners said it would be "desirable" to obtain more money, pending section of projects by Secretary Ickes. The new unit would house 200 additional adult tuberculosis patients.

Sixth on the list is the item for expansion of facilities at Gallinger. A sum of $875,000 is "urgently needed," and Commissioners state it would be desirable to have an advance of $1,000,000. Included in this project would be a ward to house 200 tuberculosis patients; a pectatrics ward; quarters for resident physicians and nurses, and a new heating plant.

$3,841,375 For Schools.

A fund of $3,841,375 would be requested to expand the public school building program. This would include construction of a new senior high, 3 junior high schools and 12 elementary schools.

One million dollars for a building to house the fire alarm system would be requested by the Commissioners. At present the system is located on the top floor of the District Building. A sum of $300,000 for expansion of the library building program is also on the tentative list of the Commissioners.

The appropriation act for the District for 1939 carries $80,000 for preparation of plans for a new main library in the Municipal Center site, north of Pennsylvania avenue and west of John Marshall place.

Reconstruction of the District Jail at a cost of $1,600,000 is tenth on the list. This would be started in the new fiscal year, provided for under the $125,000 appropriation for additions to the jail.

The Commissioners suggested a loan and grant of $2,750,000 for construction of District National Guard Armory. No site was suggested by the Commissioners, although it is expected the proposed armory would be erected near fedeally-owned property on East Capitol street. A sum of $1,483,625 for improvement of the sewer system is also among projects requested.

The final item proposes $300,000 for development of Lorton Reformatory.

Lieut. Cullinane, 39 Years on Force, Retired Disabled

Lieut. Dennis J. Cullinane, 63, of the Fifth Precinct, was retired yesterday by the District Commissioners after 39 years as patrolman, detective sergeant and precinct officer.

He learned of the Commissioners' action last night from a Washington Post reporter. Disability resulting from a fractured kneecap, complicated by a broken hip, was given as the reason for the officer's retirement.

Lieut. Cullinane was appointed to the department in August, 1899, and rode a bicycle over practically every Washington street until 1917, when he was transferred to a scout car. After five years, in 1922, he was made a detective sergeant and in 1930 was commissioned lieutenant and transferred to the Fifth Precinct. As a detective sergeant he hung up a record which earned a service bar for meritorious service and another for bravery, commendation on the floor of Congress, and the praise of superiors for "clearing up more murders than any other detective."

Lieut. Cullinane has two sons on the Metropolitan Police force. They are Jerry Cullinane, attached to First Precinct, and John Joseph Cullinane, attached to Eleventh Precinct.

"Crime School" Skillfully Mixes Sociology and Stark Melodrama

Those 'Dead End' Kids Again Are Actor-Comedians in Perfectly Played Roles; Bogart Reforms; Players Club Finale; Theater Notes.

ROLL "The Devil Is a Sissy," "Boy of the Streets" and "Dead End" all into one, add a dash of the corrective spirit of "The Big House" and "San Quentin," and you have a mild approximation of the Warner Brothers-First National production of "Crime School," which was unfurled for the drama desks yesterday afternoon and comes to the screen at the Earle Theater on Friday.

BELL.

In his original screen play, Crane Wilbur has attempted much the same task as was essayed by Walter Wanger in "Blockade"—the combination of a strong sociological document with the vital elements of exciting entertainment. "Crime School" unfolds an engrossing story of criminal youth at the same time that it shouts lustily for reform of our reformatories. The piece grows just a little grim at times and would deserve to be catalogued under the classification of "stark drama," were it not for the continuous flow of comedy through the action and the lines. You laugh before you have time to shudder.

This peculiarly deft serio-comic treatment is made possible solely by the appearance in the picture of those lusty young hellions known as "the 'Dead End' kids." They are six of the toughest and most natural young actors who ever have found their way before the cameras—something that probably never would have happened had they not previously found their way behind the footlights in Norman Bel Geddes' original stage production of the Sidney Kingsley melodrama that gave them their pseudonym.

The social stratum occupied by these youthful incorrigibles is accurately indexed by the mellifluous nicknames which they bear—"Squirt," "Spike," "Bugs," "Goofy" and "Fats.' Billy Halop is the only one who escapes this stigma of back-alley nomenclature. He is known merely as "Frankie"—and is the toughest one of the lot. If individual identifitcaion of these hardening young thugs is necessary, it will be found in the caption of their picture appearing on this page.

This is a strangely gifted gang of youngsters. In addition to being a competent actor in the play's moments of melodramatic intensity, each is a comedian of many parts. Each, also, is an individualist in style. No two of the lads are in the least alike; no two follow the same groove in method or pace. These six kids form an amazingly effective combination of variegated personalities and talents.

And they point both the sinister and the corrective qualities of this new study in an acute sociological problem more effectively than could be done by any other sextet of which we are aware.

The overdoses of violent physical punishment and the bravado of the incarcerated boys may be grossly exaggerated for all I know—believe it or not, I never graduated from reform school—but the net result is a stirring exposition of adolescent psychology and a fast-moving footage of screen entertainment that will fascinate those who have a taste for strong meat.

A lot of people get slapped around in this subject, but most of all the theory that propaganda and entertainment will not mix in the same film.

• • • •

As long as we are on the subject, it might be well to mention that Humphrey Bogart has turned over a new leaf since the last time he appeared with the "Dead End" kids, in Samuel Goldwyn's film version of that classic of New York's East Side docks. In "Dead End," he was "Baby Face" Martin, the killer, who tutored the lads of his boyhood neighborhood in the delicate technique of mayhem and murder; in "Crime School," he is the young assistant welfare commissioner who rescues the boys from their evil ways and brings them back into circulation in decent, if not especially polite, society. That seems to make it all even.

Following the widespread critical acclaim accorded her performance in "White Banners," the Lloyd C. Douglas screen drama scheduled for the Earle Theater the week of June 24, Fay Bainter has been assigned to the leading feminine role in "Forgive Us Our Trespasses," the next Douglas story to be filmed.

Edmund Goulding, who directed Miss Bainter in "White Banners," will serve in a like capacity when "Forgive Us Our Trespasses" goes into production in a few weeks.

Mr. Douglas, by the way, seems to be doing all right for himself in the cinema. "White Banners" is the third of his novels to be transcribed from the printed page to celluloid, "Green Light" and "Magnificent Obsession" having been the earlier two.

And Fay Bainter seems to be getting along nicely in the gelatins, too—which is not surprising to those who remember the splendid work she did opposite Walter Huston in the stage version of Sinclair Lewis' "Dodsworth." Much better than Ruth Chatterton in the filmization of the play, it seemed to me. That good an actress could get along anywhere, in any medium.

• • • •

That energetic young punster-publicist of the loewcal Loew organization, Ray Bell—no relation—is "going to town" on Walter Wanger's production of "Blockade." A dramatization of several of the more engrossing sequences in the picture will be broadcast by electrical transcription over station WOL at noon on Friday, with Madeleine Carroll and Henry Fonda, costars of the picture, speaking from the platters. Excerpts from Werner Janssen's musical score will provide the harmonic background.

On Friday afternoon, the fifth and feature race at the Charles Town race track will bear the label of "Blockade Handicap," in further celebration of the film play. The owner of the winning horse will be presented with the "Madeleine Carroll Trophy," which is being rushed East from Hollywood for the event, Miss Carroll being partial, so one is told, to the socalled sport of kings.

Perhaps the handsome cash prize Mr. Wanger has hung up for the best exploitation campaign on "Blockade" has something to do with all this. The other Mr. Bell already has won a trunkful of these awards.

The Players Club of Central Community Center will close its regular season tonight with a performance of "Moonshine and Honeysuckle," in Roosevelt High School Auditorium.

The play is Lula Vollmer's dramatic exposition of the trouble between the Betts and Gaddis clans in the Kentucky mountains. Eileen Fowler, director, and the Players have gone to great pains to costume and set their play authentically. They even went to the Virginia backwoods to learn first-hand how mountaineers act, dress, talk and comport themselves generally. A strong cast has been assembled for the leading roles.

"Moonshine and Honeysuckle," it is being bruited about, will be repeated later by this group as one of the bills on the Community Center's roster of summer festival programs, to be presented in the National Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds.

• • • •

Although I do not look upon "Sweeney Todd, or the Demon Barber of Fleet Street" as a play commensurate either with the ability or past reputation of the Roadside Theater, it does contain some hilarious laughs—and, as usual, in lines that evidently were written with a definite intention of achieving serious dramatic effect. It seemed to me on Monday night that the gem of the evening was the epigrammatic speech to the effect that, "Often there is vice in velvet, when there is virtue in velveteen." Mister, you said it!

• • • •

Speaking of laughs, there ought to be a few on the revival bill being planned for the Little Theater next week. "If I Had a Million," that whimsical fol-de-rol enlisting all the stars on the Paramount lot at the time of its production, and "Horsefeathers," starring the Marx Brothers, are announced—or will be—as the cofeatures. I always have held Charles Laughton to be the star of "If I Had a Million," in a bit he never learned at Old Vic's!

• • • •

Pharmaceutical-Department Note.

On second thought, that finely rounded Laughton "razzberry" may be what the British gallery-gods know as "Vic's salve!"

TOUGH YOUNG STARS COMING TO EARLE SCREEN ON FRIDAY. Left to right, they are Gabriel Dell, Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan, Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall and Bernard Punsley, known to fame as "the 'Dead End' kids," having played in the Sidney Kingsley drama on both stage and screen. In their latest vehicle, "Crime School," Humphrey Bogart again is their mentor, but this time on the side of rectitude and straingt living.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., June 14.—After all the publicity we've given Alfred Vanderbilt, he sneaks off quietly and marries darling little Manuela Hudson from Monterey. He allowed no one to scoop him—not even his mother.

HEDDA HOPPER

Well, thank goodness none of our picture girls will go around nursing broken hearts.

They were seen here and there with him just for the publicity they got out of it, too. Don't believe one of them has a 5-cent souvenir to show for their wasted hours.

Our only picture star who married into the social register was Mary Duncan, Mrs. Laddie Sanford. And how she's pepped up those parties. They cry for her.

There is great to do in London over a member of the royal family going into trade. Queen Elizabeth's niece, Cecelia Bowes-Lyon, has opened a shop in Park Lane, advising her customers how to dress, hiring their chauffeurs, finding homes and decorating their tables. In fact, any odd job they need done. Her slogan is: "Be prepared for—anything." She is, but the royal family wasn't!

Miss Rothschild, member of another famous family—a beauty if I ever saw one—and seen here and there on the arm of Wesley Ruggles—has opened a similar shop here, and doing all right, thank you.

No reissues of old pictures for Twentieth Century-Fox. But Sol Wurtzel is busier than a bird dog with fleas, teaming new combinations and new types of pictures. So far he's got the Jones Family series, Jane Withers, Mr. Motto, Charlie Chan—with Warner Oland on his way back from Sweden, wearing his shoes instead of carrying them around his neck. Sports dramas: the first one was "Speed To Burn," "Modern Girls," featuring Lynn Bari and June Land. "Adventures of Newsreel Men," with Brien Donlevy and Wally Vernon. I'm delighted Wally is getting a break—he's always been funny.

And for one of their specials Fox is bringing back George Bancroft from a personal appearance tour to do "Splinter Fleet," which will feature Nancy Kelly, that cute bit of femininity who's been playing in New York in "Susan and God."

Can you picture Jack Barrymore "Holding That Co-ed?" Not if Elaine happens to be on the set. But that's what he's going to do, with Marjorie Weaver. And George Murphy borrowed again from MGM. Don't know why they don't buy him instead of borrowing him. Metro never uses him anyway. He is grand with LaTemple and in John Stahl's "Letter of Introduction."

Fox also is doing some quaint and unusual casting, by putting romantic stars like Tyrone Power and Henry Fonda in "Jesse James." They're either going to clean up "Jesse" considerably, or make him a baby-faced killer who just couldn't help himself. If there's any shooting to be done, I believe they'd forget their guns and pick up the girl instead.

My son Bill and I had fun at a birthday party Tyrone gave for Uncle Francis Adams. Not a real uncle, but his business adviser and lawyer. Known him since he was a baby. Too bad every star hasn't one like him. Lots of court battles would never have been started.

Janet Gaynor, Annabella and Ty's sister, Anne, dancing attendance with the last named just back from Reno with a spanking new divorce.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Ameche will sail on the Queen Mary in July with a fleet of suiteases. They're going to do Europe as we used to do one-night-stands. Their idea is to bicycle. I'd advise them to settle for a cheap car.

Hope they won't be as disappointed over the Black Forest as I was. All my life I had dreamed and looked forward to seeing it. The little things we call hills here would put it to shame. As for mountains—well, California, here I stay! One good thing about it, though, they regiment the trees as they do their soldiers. Before one can fall down and go boom, there's another in its place.

When Claudette Colbert went across the pond she took her mother's companion with her. Claudette and Dr. Pressman wanted to lose themselves for a couple of weeks and left the companion in their suite at a Paris hotel, and said: "You just go ahead and have a good time—we'll be gone a couple of weeks."

They were away four weeks and went to all kinds of out-of-the-way places without being recognized.

On their return to Paris flowers and presents started arriving. Claudette, delighted, said: "Oh, aren't these lovely! Only to discover they were all for her mother's companion, who had obeyed instructions and had herself a whale of a time!

Amazonian Giant Sought for Film

Somewhere in the jungles of British Guiana is a 7-foot native giant for whom a screen job and fame are waiting.

The giant is wanted for a featured role in the vodoo sequences with Clark Gable and Myrna Loy in "Too Hot to Handle," and Lawrence Weingarten, producer of the picture, is sending an expedition into the jungles to find him and lure him to Hollywood.

Studio Hires 3,000 Extras For 9 Films

Heeding the cries of Hollywood's extras for more work, Twentieth Century-Fox will employ over 3,000 for nine productions which will be before the cameras this week.

Heading the list is the historical spectacle, "Suez," in which Director Allan Dwan will film Paris riot scenes, using over 2,000 players. Principals in the sequences will be Tyrone Power, Loretta Young and Annabella. Subsequent scenes depicting the famed canal's construction will swell employment to well over 5,000.

A congregation of movie hoboes, headed by Warner Baxter, Peter Lorre and John Carradine, will bring 250 more for scenes in "I'll Give a Million," which Walter Lang is directing.

Sonja Henie's spectacular skating numbers in "My Lucky Star" will include a chorus of 80 skaters, as well as more than 300 spectators forming background for the routines.

Initial scenes for "Ellis Island," with Don Ameche, Arleen Whelan and Gladys George in stellar roles, will add several hundred more extras to the studio pay roll when the cameras grind on sequences showing New York's famous immigration station.

The Ritz Brothers, having just returned from New York, will immediately begin production on Damon Runyon's "Straight, Place and Show," which David Butler will direct, using hundreds of players for race track scenes.

Other films still in production, all using extra talent, include "Passport Husband," employing 100 dress extras in a night club setting which features Stuart Erwin and Pauline Moore; "Meridian 71212," with Michael Whalen and Gloria Stuart; and "Always Good-bye," which swings into the fourth week of production with Barbara Stanwyck, Herbert Marshall and Ian Hunter.

Leaving for Callander, Ontario, this week where they will film scenes of the Dionne Quintuplets for "Five of a Kind," will be Director Herbert I. Leeds, Cameraman Daniel Clark, Scenarist Lou Breslow and Actor Jean Hersholt. Production will begin there on June 6.

Alma Mater.

Myrna Loy, having a day off from "Too Hot to Handle," visited several of her former teachers at Venice High School, to confer with them about the foreword she is going to write for the school's yearbook.

301 West Pointers Receive Diplomas and Commissions

Airliner Crumples on Peak Near Yosemite

Apparently crashing headlong into Buena Vista peak near Yosemite, Calif., while lost in a storm March 1, this TWA transport was torn apart with the loss of nine lives. Wreckage and bodies were strewn over a wide area less than 200 feet from the top of the peak. The plane's tail was left hanging in a tree.

New Liberty Limited Here for Public Inspection

The Pennsylvania Railroad's latest and most modern train, the New Liberty Limited, was open for public inspection yesterday and will leave on its initial trip to Chicago this afternoon. Loyalists' "Lost Division" Found in Mountains

U. S. Prepares To Spend, Build And Buy 'Now'

$150,000,000 a Month Held Likely Deficit Up to Labor Day.

The scope of the New Deal's biggest spending drive, whose most intensive period is described as from "now to Labor Day," was disclosed in Administration quarters yesterday while the $3,753,000,000 pump-priming relief and Public works bill was riding to passage.

Signing of the bill by the President, it is planned, will signal allotments of money, purchases of all sorts of Government supplies, increase of WPA rolls and buying of surplus commodities for distribution to needy unemployed on a gigantic scale.

The plan calls for immediate rolling up of the Treasury's "net deficit" to $150,000,000 a month, a contribution by the Government to the Nation's purchasing power in lieu of private spending. Over the last six months this "contribution" has been $80,000,000 monthly.

Deficits to Be Larger.

These figures represent outlay from the Treasury in excess of receipts from all taxes, including social security. Credits given the sinking fund and the social security reserve fund are not counted as outgo because this money is not being put into present circulation. Actually deficits will be considerably greater than figures mentioned.

One immediate objective is to clear industrial shelves of inventories so factory wheels will be more lively. Initiating this program, Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, announced yesterday adoption of the plan of Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, for a $10,000,000 purchase of clothing for distribution to reliefers. The clothing will be bought from manufacturers in all parts of the country for immediate delivery. Distribution will be handled by State public welfare departments.

Will Broaden Drive.

A White House order to Government purchasing agents is expected to broaden this phase of the drive, as departments and agencies are requested to buy or make commitments now for a year ahead.

The Department of Agriculture will enter the buying picture with $125,000,000 for purchasing surplus farm stocks. Buying of wheat for distribution in bread to relief rolls will be considered if the crop reaches record predictions.

The Public Works Administration next week will announce allotments of almost $500,000,000 of Federal-local construction projects, it was disclosed. These projects, submitted some time ago, have been approved and re-checked and are ready to go.

WPA Rolls to Grow.

Immediate and steadily rising additions to WPA job rolls are planned. Continued additions of 25,000 a week may be the rule. Those who lost jobs in the late winter and spring are counted as needing WPA work now.

The genreal theory of Government economists is that $1 spent immediately as a contribution to purchasing power is worth as much as $3 or $4 spent at the end of the summer. They claim that if downward economic trends are checked and reversed now, the jobless army will not grow and the expense of a climb will not be so great as from deeper in the line of economic activity.

Politics Are Forecast.

Political considerations are expected as WPA jobs, Government purchases and allotments will figure heavily on election day. New Deal economists argue that the Government cannot refrain from action just because politics will be charged.

Mr. Hopkins stated yesterday that purchase of men's, women's and children's clothing would make possible "immediate resumption of employment in clothing-making industries through absorption of existing inventories."

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, estimated that about 160,000 employes in the industry would be directly or indirectly benefited by the plan.

Must Erase Surplus.

"Once the present surplus has been eliminated," he informed Mr. Hopkins, "manufacturers would gain confidence, acquire new stocks and put people to work," a WPA statement said.

The Treasury announced yesterday it would contribute to the program by starting work this summer on 115 postoffices and Federal courthouses, costing $24,372,000, in addition to 221 Federal buildings, costing $61,000,000, already under construction.

Grapefruit juice to the extent of 500,000 cases will be bought during June, the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation announced. It said that the largest pack of juice in the industry's history threatens to make the market "chaotic" unless something is done.

WPA Pronounces 500 Here Eligible For Relief Work

More than 500 persons were pronounced eligible for WPA jobs here yesterday, according to Otto Cass, deputy administrator.

Of the 1,430 applicants, 506 were ruled eligible after personal interviews with case workers attached to the District WPA. Seven hundred applicants of this number were rejected as not being in urgent need, Cass stated. The remaining cases were suspended for further interviews.

There still remain some 6,000 persons on the lists awaiting interviews, and Cass estimated it would require a little over four weeks to complete the work.

The 506 persons declared eligible will be placed at work just as soon as projects are developed, Cass said. There are now 13,515 persons working on local WPA projects, he said.

Farley Turns Madison Pink

By the Associated Press

Postal officials said yesterday that the forthcoming James Madison stamp will be pink and similar in size and design to other stamps in the Presidential series. It will be of 4-cent denomination and will go on sale here July 1.

Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris

Figure yourself a dance that combines the Big Apple, the Joos ballet, "peckin'," undertones of Javanese temple dances and medicine man gyrations. Simple, eh? Well, that's what Roberta Jonay (White House pet) is doing on Shoreham's Terrace. We're told that little Roberta worked out this uncanny one all by herself. It's called the "Peacock Strut." Also at the Terrace are the Castleton Trio, handsome and humorous young dancers and Chester Dolphin, who juggles standing on his head. Barnee's rhythms are in the Maxim Lowe music spirit, smoothie, romancey.

A ring-tailed jive-popper has been caught by Bamboo Gardens. Meaning that Jack Schaeffer is up there dishing out the darnedest rhythms via trumpet, voice and feet. Jack's not hot, oh no! He's just a major conflagration. Witness that "Song of Jive."

Leo Lisee, emcee terrific, enlists flocks of his artist friends from the audience to add impromptu turns to the already big Bamboo show. Floor show funnage lasted for 55 minutes the other eve.

Steve Le Sieur (Powhatan Roof) plans to sponsor a contest for girl singers from the various Government Departments.

Tonight the Powhatan will flame with a style parade. Nifty items will be those play suits with detachable skirts which girl golfers usually detach as soon as they get away from the first tee.

Weather note: Breezes at the Powhatan are so brisk that the Le Sieur ork is using clothespins to keep its music together.

Now that Congress is adjourning, we can tell you that no end of solons will miss resting from legislative labors in Wardman's cocktail lounge. Who were they? Listen, why should we try to get in trouble when we can get in trouble without trying?

Remember, only four more nights of "Sugar" Kain's rhythms in the Metronome Room and then comes that (Johnny) Slaughter-ing sweetness.

When you have a sure thing, don't change the bet. That's Lotus philosophy. So they've held over their nifty floor show. But while troupers are the same, they've changed their acts.

"Harlem Carioca," as done by Manno and Strafford, is plentah reason for calling out the fire department. Johnny and Joy Armstrong do a take-off on mind-reading acts that should end all mind-reading acts.

Though pianist Dio Data (Mayfair) now likes to indulge in such modernistic tone fantasies as "Deep Purple," he once had different tastes. When he was still in short pants he won eight cups for piano solo-ing. And he received four of them for the soulfulness he put in that old tear-jerker, "You Made Me Love You, I Didn't Want To Do It." Such an infant precocity!

Scene: Hi-Hat. Enter a pair of newly-marrieds. When asked to name her favorite number to be done by the Four Swingsters, the bride coyly breathes, "Please Be Kind."

King Cole's clientele loves its nightly community sing with that good fellow, manager "Gal" Gallagher thumping the pianny.

Favorite American song of Vincente Del Garza is "Serenade." But you should also hear him in "Cuban Pete," that "keeng of da rhoomba beat," as Vincente puts it.

Proper wine glasses make all the difference in enjoying the bouquet of a good wine, says Peter Borras of the Madrillon. It's the same principle as that of the brandy snifter.

Style note for men: The Meyer Davis Orchestra of the Rainbow Room has ordered new suits to go with the to-be-glorified Rainbow. They're of navy blue silk, with bellows sport back, double-breasted and with white pearl buttons. Mother, my smoked glassses!

If there were more room and more pianos in the Mayflower Lounge, the Sidney Orchestra could have a keyboard quartet. Leader-violinist Harold Veo, guitarist Bob Simpson and accordionist Frank Corviello, as well as pianist Dick Koons, can all wring its best from any piano.

Anchor Room's "We Two" is "We Three," with Kathleen Kuhn patty-patting the bass, most unusual instrument for a girl. She's the wife of Clyde Kissinger of "We Two." These well-liked folks will say good-by to Anchor on June 21. They'll be at the President in Atlantic City for the rest of the summer.

The Pall Mall Boys, fresh from Manhattan, will be the Anchor Room's — attraction.

Now that the thermometer's soaring, Skipperette Sallie Boynton of the Show Boat (out Laurel way) is thinking seriously about having dining out on deck. Those Three Dees make music that is music. Get Ray Donahue to go romantic (vocally) for you with "Star Dust."

That modernistic bar at Brinkley's cost $5,000, is automatically refrigerated and has every gadget you can think of to aid in the making of good drinks—and they don't miss.

As one musical sun sets at Glen Echo, another is about to arise. Meaning that Tom Gentry and his orchestra will depart this Saturday in an aura of praise and good wishes. But come Monday, June 20, Echo will echo with the classic swinging of Larry Funk.

Music, Hawaiian style, six nights a week, and Happy Walker style on Saturdays. Cooking always Virginia style. It's not a program. It's an ideal. You'll find it at Griffith Farms.

Clayton Indorsed For Commissioner

William McK. Clayton, head of the Federation of Citizens Associations public utilities committee, was recommended by the Summit Park Citizens Association last night to succeed George E. Allen as District Commissioner.

The association, holding its last meeting of the season at the East Washington Heights Baptist Church, also asked that broadcasts from the local Traffic Court be given more time on the air.

Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools, was recommended for District Commissioner by the Barry Farms Citizens Association, which met last night at the home of the secretary, Levi G. Brown, 2846 Elvans road southeast.

8 Bids Opened For River Jobs In Washington

Potomac Work Is Speeded as President Approves Appropriations Act.

Eight bids, varying between $320,539 and $418,903, for the construction of the first two parts in the improvement of the river front along Washington Channel, were opened yesterday by Maj. W. D. Luplow, Army district engineer.

This was made possible through the allocation of $285,000 of Federal funds by Maj. Gen. Julian L. Schley, chief of the Army Engineers, for addition to the $64,000 "scraped up" by the District for the work.

A second installment of $285,000 became available yesterday when President Roosevelt signed the War Department civil appropriation act for 1939. To it the District government must add $64,000, making a total of $349,000 for expenditure in each increment or an amount of $698,000 which may be spent on the improvement.

At the same time the allocation of other funds for expenditure in the engineer district including the National Capital was announced. In Washington Harbor $7,000 will be spent for maintenance and operation of the Tidal Basin gates and other small recurring items. It is part of a $40,000 grant for examinations, surveys and contingencies in the district, a regular annual item.

To Take Eight Years.

Maj. Luplow also was granted $15,600 for work in Neale Sound, Md., opening from the Potomac, opposite Colonial Beach, Va.; $19,500 for operations in St. Jeromes Creek, which enters Chesapeake Bay near the mouth of the Potomac, and $15,700 for undertakings in Hoskins Creek, emptying into the Rappahannock River near Tappahannock, Va.

Funds for two years' work on the Washington waterfront were provided by yesterday's allocation. The complete program, as now scheduled, will take eight years.

The first of the improvement program, for which bids were received yesterday, calls for construction of the east halves of yacht basins 1 and 2 at an estimated cost of about $340,000, virtually exhausting the funds provided by the Army engineers and the District government last year.

Pier to Be Built.

Completion of the yacht basin will be undertaken with the money freed when the President signed the appropriation bill. The basins will occupy most of the waterfront at the head of Washington Channel, near the Municipal Fish Wharf. The third stage of construction work will include one of the commercial piers projected as part of the program.

The $196,962,887 nonmilitary War Department appropriation act approved by Mr. Roosevelt yesterday provides $70,020,000 for regular river and harbor work and $113,000,000 for flood control. Of the latter amount $31,000,000 was earmarked for work on the Mississippi River.

Five Youths Drowned.

St. Louis, June 13 (AP).—Five teen-age youths drowned late today in two separate swimming accidents, four in an abandoned clay mine pit and one in an unused quarry.

Reynolds Infant At Grandparents' Richmond Home

The year-old son of J. Louis Reynolds, tobacco heir, and his wife, the former Helene Fortescue, of Washington, was in Richmond last night with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reynolds.

The child was taken to Richmond by his nurse while his father was reported to be in Chicago preparing to fly to the Virginia capital. Whereabouts of his mother was unknown.

Marital troubles of young Reynolds and his wife have made news since their marriage here in 1936. Soon after the nuptials Mrs. Reynolds drove off with a butcher's truck and later she walked out on a play backed by her husband when the director told her she couldn't be leading lady.

More than a year ago Reynolds announced in a newspaper advertisement that he would not be responsible for his wife's debts.

Four Doctors Named to Staff Of Gallinger

Each Will Take Charge of a Division; Fifth Is Yet to Be Selected.

Paying annual salaries of $5,600, the jobs were created in line with the expanded health program inaugurated recently by Health Officer George C. Ruhland.

A fifth chief medical officer to supervise the obstetrical division of the hospital yet is to be named, the Commissioners stated.

All appointments are effective July 1, at which time the fifth chief medical officer, together with 10 nurses and five other employes, will be added to the present hospital staff.

The District appropriation act for 1939 provided for the new jobs at the hospital after several days of hearings before the House sub-committee on district appropriations.

Appointed yesterday were:

Dr. J. Ross Veal, chief medical officer in surgery; formerly with the Louisiana State University medical center.

Dr. Albert Sullivan, chief medical officer in medicine; formerly of New Haven, Conn.

Dr. Lewis K. Sweet, chief medical officer in pediatrics; formerly of the Children's Bureau, Labor Department.

Dominick Heads Sibley Internes

Dr. John Dominick last night was elected the first president of the newly formed Sibley Hospital Internes Association at a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel.

The internes, forming a group to work in the interest of medical men serving at the hospital and elsewhere, chose Dr. Richard Spire as vice president, and Dr. John Finnegan as secretary-treasurer.

Guests of honor at last night's meeting were Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, and Dr. Lewis Taylor, head of the Sibley staff. Both spoke briefly.

Six internes received certificates for having served out their internships. These were Drs. Spire, Claude Houck, Roger Williams, Nicholas Musso, Hayden Kirby-Smith and Blaine Menke.

Resident certificates were presented Dr. John Domm and Dr. George Tolstoi.

D. C. Junior Bar Section Holds Luncheon Today

The spring luncheon of the Junior Bar Section of the District Bar Association will be held at 12:30 p. m. today at the Hotel Hamilton. Members of the Woman's Bar Association and Junior Bar Section of the American Bar Association will also attend. Speakers will be Judge Nathan Cayton, of the Small Claims Court, and Judge Edwin M. Curran, of the Police Court. George Monk, chairman, Junior Bar Section, will preside.

Woodring Tells Cadets They've Much to Learn

Training Goes Right On, He Informs 301 West Point Graduates.

The United States must rely for defense upon its manpower and the full mobilization of its natural resources, Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring said yesterday in his commencement address at West Point.

"Our Army exists solely for defense, not for aggression. Its purpose is not to wage war but to preserve the peace," he declared.

"In an emergency our Regular Army will form but a small nucleus of the great citizen army needed to defend the country. The Nation must rely for its defense not only on its manpower, but also on the full power of its industrial resources and on the whole-hearted moral and material support of its citizens."

Woodring said it would probably surprise many people, "perhaps even some cadets," to learn that the graduates of West Point have not perfected themselves in military science.

Education Never Stops.

"They have been well-grounded in the fundamentals, but their education in the art of war will continue throughout their service," he explained.

After his address, the Secretary, who arrived at the Military Academy escorted by the armored cars of "streamlined" cavalry, presented diplomas as bachelors of science and commissions as second lieutenants to the 301 graduates.

An impressive part of the June Week celebration was the laying of a wreath at the foot of the monument to Col. Sylvanus Thayer, founder of West Point, by Brig. Gen. Samuel E. Tillman, 90, of Washington, the oldest living graduate.

Under leaden skies the line of old soldiers, led by Gen. Tillman, who graduated in 1869, followed the cadet band, playing "There's a Long, Long Trail A-Winding," to the Thayer monument. There the choir sang "Alma Mater," and the list of graduates who had entered Valhalla during the preceding year was read, followed by the blowing of "Taps" in their honor and the tolling of bells in the chapel.

Many From Washington.

Among the group of graduates who had returned to West Point for commencement were many from Washington, including Maj. Gen. Julian L. Schley, chief of Army Engineers; Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Coleman, and his son Lieut. F. W. Coleman; Gen. R. C. Davis, retired; Maj. Gen. Edward M. Markham, retired, former chief of Engineers; Maj. Gen. Willliam D. Conner, former superintendent of the Military Academy; Brig. Gen. William Cruikshank, Brig. Gen. Max C. Tyler, Maj. Gen. Charles G. Trent, Gen. G. V. McKiver, Col. L. F. Kilbourne, Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, and Maj. Gen. Kenzie W. Walker, retired.

The ambassador from Eucador, Eloy Alfaro, a member of the class of 1913, also was present at the exercises. Two of his sons, Eloy and Jaime, are students at the Academy and a third, Olmedo, will enter next month.

Gen. Hugh Johnson, Col. David McCoach, jr., new District Commissioner, and Maj. Raymond L. Shoecaker, also were in attendance.

Gen. Leconte, of the Swiss army, a graduate in the class of 1883, made special trip from Switzerland to be at West Point.

Other officers present included Gens. George P. Schrivener, E. D. Scott and William R. Smdburg, and Cols. R. H. Fletcher, F. K. Newcomer, W. H. Weber, R. M. Perkins, J. M. Levy, S. H. Barnes, E. M. Watson, Max B. Garber, C. D. Hartman, H. C. Davidson, J. W. N. Schultz, W. D. Crittenburger, Thomas J. Johnson, H. B. Cheadle, J. E. Oliver, J. B. Mattheson, C. W. Busbee and John H. Histor.

Lieut. Col. Beller's Funeral Set Today

Funeral services for Lieut. Col. John Erle Beller, 50, U. S. Army, retired, who died Sunday at Hopemont, W. Va., will be held with full military honors at 11:30 a. m. today in section 7 of Arlington Cemetery with Chaplain Ora J. Mohee officiating.

A native of Point Pleasant, W. Va., Col. Beller was graduated from West Point in 1910. During the World War he commanded the 16th Machine Gun Battalion. He retired from active duty in 1924.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Grace Beller, of Point Pleasant.

Airport

port commission which selected Camp Springs was guilty of "collusion."

Nichols was a member of that commission, which also included Senators and other Representatives, Frederick A. Delano, uncle of President Roosevelt; Col. Dan I. Sultan, former District Engineer Commissioner, and Gen. O. O. Westover, chief of the Army Air Corps. Delano and Col. Sultan, he said, had charge of the land options. And who, he asked, would say that they were not "honorable men"?

"Not a real estate man had been called before us when we decided on this site," Nichols said. "If there's corruption in this, let's have an investigation and send some of them to the penitentiary. I am willing."

House Is Stirred.

Nichols said that Scott had introduced a resolution to investigate the Camp Springs site at the request of a Washington newspaper, after three other members had refused.

The House, however, had been visibly stirred by Scott's hint of scandal and his final remark:

"If you gentlemen of the House want to pass a bill like this, you are taking on a responsibility that I refuse to shoulder."

The earlier debate had centered largely on the relative merits of a close-in field like the Washington-Hoover Airport, across the Potomac River, or the Camp Springs site, 10 miles from the downtown section.

Favor Hoover Field.

Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, argued that it would be more logical to enlarge the Washington Hoover Airport. This, he said, could be done by filling in a lagoon and taking over the nearby experimental farm of the Department of Agriculture.

Representative Melvin Maas (Republican) of Minnesota, a Marine Corps Reserve flier, agreed with Randolph.

"It would give Washington one of the finest airports in the United States," Maas said. "You go ahead with the Camp Springs airport and you won't have any air transportation in Washington."

Maas recalled that $7,000,000 in relief funds had been spent on the Floyd Bennett Airport outside of New York, but said the field was so far away from downtown that nobody would use it.

Cites Military Reasons.

Chairman Lanham of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds said it always had been planned to have two airports for Washington, one close in and the other in the suburbs. The existing airport near the Potomac, he pointed out, sometimes was covered with fog. Hence, he said, it was important to have one away from the river.

It was important, he said, not only for passenger traffic, but for military reasons.

Representative Nichols said that in bad weather it would be highly dangerous, if not impossible, to fly blind by radio beam and land at the Washington-Hoover Field.

Rickenbacker Quoted.

Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, said that Eddie Rickenbacker had been quoted in the newspapers as saying that the airlines from New York to Washington would be abandoned if the Camp Springs site was selected. He quoted Rickenbacker as saying the Camp Springs site was so far out that airplanes would have a hard time competing with the railroads.

Representative Nichols said that Rickenbacker had appeared before a House sub-committee and testified that two airports were needed for Washington, one close in and one far out.

Representative Greenwood (Democrat), of Indiana, said that there was nothing in the Camp Springs bill that would impede the development of the Washington-Hoover field. In establishing an airport at Camp Springs, he said, the Government was planning for the future.

Navy Had Objected.

Representative Phillips recalled that an attempt was made to jam through the Camp Springs bill on the closing day of the last session of Congress.

"Tonight, at the end of this session, they are trying to put it over again," he said. "I hope the House won't fall for this land grab."

Like other opponents of the bill, Phillips told how prices of land had gone up in the Camp Springs area and recalled that the Navy Department had been strongly opposed to an airport in that region, fearing that it would interfere with its radio receiving station there.

Representative Lanham, however, emphasized that the Navy Department had now withdrawn its objections.

Fight Has Been Long.

He said that the controversy was really one among the owners of real estate on various proposed sites, each group decrying the value of real estate owned by the other group and praising its own.

"If it be important that a model airport for Washington be established with any degree of speed, this bill represents our only chance. The bill already has been passed by the Senate," Lanham said.

Washington has been trying to get a model airport for more than 15 years. The agitation reached its peak amid the enthusiasm generated by Lindbergh's flight to Paris and his triumphal return to Washington in June, 1927. Lindbergh, along with other noted pilots, criticized existing facilities.

Accused Poisoner of 11

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

MARIA PETTIJEAN, 58, the "Widow Beckers of Liege," is shown outwardly calm at the opening of her trial on a charge of killing 11 persons by poisoning. In addition, she is charged with attempting to poison five others. The trial of the Belgian dressmaker and former nurse was expected to last a month, and 294 witnesses were to be heard.

Borah Urges Investigation of Farm Prices

By the Associated Press.

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, asked the Senate yesterday to make a sweeping investigation of speculation in farm produce, predicting it would save "millions upon millions of dollars" for agricultural producers.

Borah introduced a resolution asking $50,000 for an inquiry by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

He said that taking into consideration the devaluation of gold, prices of basic agricultural commodities now were "ruinously low" and near the bottom of "recorded history."

World Study.

Borah said the investigating committee should determine the influence of "seemingly inspired propaganda" and speculative operations in farm products upon the price paid the farmer.

When the farmer is marketing crops, Borah said, there is a flurry of propaganda about huge supplies and prices go down. As soon as crops have moved out of farmers' hands, he added, the reports stress rust, dust storms, lack of moisture, frosts and other price-raising matters.

"Someone must look into this," he said.

"Might Include Wallace."

Asked if the inquiry would include crop estimates from the Agriculture Department's experts, Borah said:

"Yes, we might include Mr. Wallace."

The Senator asked why the Government required speculators in securities to invest 55 per cent of their value while speculators in grains and agricultural products need invest only 10 per cent.

"We should determine just what the long and short traders do to the prices received by the farmer," he said.

Wheat Drop Cited.

Borah said he introduced the resolution at the request of "independent agricultural leaders of the country" who met in Washington early this month.

These included, he said, agricultural commissioners of several States and Farmers Union and National Grange representatives.

A memorandum filed with the resolution noted that wheat prices had dropped 73 cents a bushel since 1937.

Borah said that in view of the prospective 1,000,000,000-bushel crop the price decline represented a loss of $730,000,000 to the wheat farmers.

Congress sent to the White House yesterday legislation fixing the 1939 acreage under the crop control law at not less than 5,000,000 acres, compared with about 79,000,000 acres this year.

Ruby E. Campbell, SSB Employe, Dies

She leaves her mother, Mrs. Charles Campbell, Clay Center; a sister, Miss Mabel Campbell, New York City, and two brothers, Dean Campbell, Miami, Fla., and Ward Campbell, Omaha, Nebr.

The body will be sent today to Clay Center for funeral services and burial Saturday.

Mrs. Holmes Rites Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Irene K. Holmes, 61, who died Monday while supervising her pupils' recreation period at the Takoma Park, D. C., elementary school, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at her home, 120 Maple avenue, Takoma Park, Md., and at 10:30 p. m. at the Trinity Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Holmes taught at the school for more than 20 years. She was born in Washington and had been educated at Central High School and Wilson Normal School.

She leaves two sons, Thomas J. Holmes, assistant principal at Eastern High School, and Donald C. Holmes, of the Library of Congress.

Keep Bladder Free From Irritation and Stop Getting Up Nights

Look, Act and Feel Younger—Physically Attractive—Actively Alive

35 CENTS PROVES IT WHY PAY MORE?

When you flush out the poisonous waste and acids that are clogging the millions of delicate filtering tubes of the kidneys you are going a long way toward helping nature to purify the blood—this means you'll live a longer, happier and healthier life.

You help nature and nature will reward you — give you more energy — more ambition—increase your physical attractiveness— you'll feel younger—more active.

Irritated Bladder Often Causes Nervousness—Sleeplessness

Not only that, but your irritated bladder should start to function more properly and you'll sleep more soundly the whole night thru.

You can stop getting up nights.

But remember this: when you start to flush kidneys of acid and poisons and put healthy activity into them and also soothe irritated bladder get a tried and true kidney diuretic and stimulant such as Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules that work thoroughly and harmlessly — don't depend on harsh, drastic medicines that promise wonders in just a few days—better be safe than sorry.

A Grand Diuretic Druggists Assert

Your druggist knows all about Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—he has been selling them for years to people who want a good diuretic and stimulant that is safe and inexpensive—that always works.

There's other symptoms of kidney trouble that make life miserable—that keep you feeling irritable and out of sorts.

Backache, for instance, and dizzy spells—nervousness and those terrible leg cramps—often passage is scanty and frequent and smarts and burns.

You Wouldn't Let Your Bowels Be Clogged With Poisonous Waste?

Doesn't it stand to reason that your waste clogged kidneys need a good thorough cleaning the same as your waste clogged bowels?

And when you can clean them safely and without harm and improve your health while so doing, why not ask your druggist for a 35 cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and start to get rid of the excess uric acid which poisons the system.

Sciatica—Neuritis—Lumbago

You can't go wrong on this grand medicine for it has been helping people for over 50 years to correct their aches and pains and to help banish excess uric acid conditions—the aggravation of sciatica, neuritis, neuraglia, lumbago and rheumatism.

BE SURE AND GET THE GENUINE—ASK FOR GOLD MEDAL

Some other symptoms that point to clogged kidneys are puffy eyes—darkness under the eyes and moist palms.

But be sure and remember to ask for GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland—every drug store in America sells them. Adv.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

When Husband Objects to Young Wife's Untidiness And Waywardness, What Is She to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For some time my husband and I have been on the warpath. He is several years older than I, and in many respects is an ideal husband. He is intelligent, neat and helpful, but he is too orderly around the house and at his place of work. I throw things anywhere so long as they are clean, but he doesn't like that. He likes to see doors and drawers closed and everything in place. He doesn't like to see me going around the house undressed or in the process of dressing.

* * * *

I want to be free to run around a few years yet before we settle down, but I don't want to lose him, and he doesn't approve of the idea. For several nights I have come home after 1 o'clock and he doesn't like it. He accuses me of running around with other men. "No respected woman, married or single, runs around the streets at that time of the morning," he says. We have a child, 16 months old, and if it weren't for her, I think he would let me go and have nothing to do with me. What can you do with a husband of this type. PERPLEXED.

* * * *

DEAR PERPLEXED: The trouble in this case, as I see it, is not so much with your husband as with yourself. Any man who provides his wife with a modestly comfortable home and the means for maintaining it is entirely within his rights in expecting that it shall be kept in order, with a place for everything and everything in its place. He is justified in "going on the warpath" if his wife is such a lazy, indifferent, inefficient or disorganized housekeeper that both she and their home are in constant dishabille.

* * * *

Your first business, as the wife of a man who has something of a passion for perfection of detail, is to see that he has no reasonable ground for complaint against your own appearance or the appearance and management of his home. You won't find one worth-while man in a thousand who doesn't resent a badly kept house and a carpet-slipper wife. There may be some who keep their resentment to themselves, but their inner rebellion is nonetheless active and potentially destructive of marital happiness in spite of their silence.

* * * *

As a married woman and the mother of a 16-months-old infant, your wish "to be free to run around a few years yet" before settling down is a shocking indictment of your irresponsible attitude toward your maternal and wifely obligations. One gathers from your letter the well-nigh incredible impression that you expect your husband to remain at home of nights playing nursemaid to the infant while you go gallivanting about the town in search of excitement or diversion.

* * * *

Any woman as light-minded as this is not worthy of the high estates of wifehood and motherhood; and there is no doubt that she is playing fast and loose with her chances of keeping either husband or child. Any husband thus exploited, who chooses to seek legal redress and who could prove to the satisfaction of a court of domestic relations that his wife had been as flagrantly negligent of her responsibilities as you freely admit to being, would have little difficulty in obtaining his freedom as well as custody of the child.

* * * *

While I do not agree with your husband that "no respectable woman, married or single," ever puts foot on the streets after midnight, nevertheless I agree 100 per cent with the sentiment which provokes him to such a statement. What he means, of course, is that no married woman and mother of sound common sense and rightful impulses would seek her diversions in lone-wolf or bachelor-girl fashion. She would create a pattern of social life that kept her husband close to her side, and close to her in spirit. As the mother of an infant, she would bring her social life into her home for the greater part, making some practicable arrangement whereby she and her husband could go out together on occasional evenings. The last thing she would ever do would be give her husband reason to suspect she was "running around with other men."

* * * *

It must be, as you say, that your husband puts up with you only because of the child; because he feels that you do give her some sort of passable day-time care; and probably, too, because he is a monogamous-minded man who believes that marriage is, indeed, "for better or for worse," and that even though he got the worst of it, it is up to him to make the best of it. But I don't advise you to try his patience too far. Remember the proverb: "Beware of the wrath of a patient man." Once his reserves of tolerance have been exhausted, he becomes inexorable in his total rejection of the offender.

* * * *

In my opinion, you should go down on your knees in thankfulness that you have not already flung yourself with the length of rope he has given you. You should effect an instantaneous reform of your crack-pot waywardness; get more sleep of nights; get up earlier of mornings; and address yourself systematically to the job of running your home as it should be run. When that job is properly taken care of, you'll have less enthusiasm and inclination for "running the streets" at night, and that will be as it should be.

Tourist Travel Tempts the Thrifty

Modern youth, with a healthy urge to travel, invented Tourist Class. And since its inception by Cunard White Star it has been consistently improved... until today in such ships as the Aquitania there are staterooms on "B" Deck with private bath and toilet available to passengers for as little as $145.50. In the Queen Mary practically all Tourist staterooms have at least a private toilet. Many have private baths as well.

Tourist class rates start as low as $135... a revelation in comfort and economy in transatlantic travel.

CUNARD WHITE STAR

Pleasant Homes

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

IF THERE is anything that puts a damper on a crisp, cool summer room, it's a dark cavern of black fireplace. They very sight of it raises the temperature of a room degrees and degrees. Anyway, it feels that way. So we've been digging up ideas for making a fireplace contribute its share to the cause of coolness.

The most successful idea we know of is to have a panel of plyboard or compoboard cut to fit into the fireplace opening. Then cover this with a large scale floral medallion cut out of wallpaper or chintz.

Another way to get the same effect is to have a fire screen frame made with a pedestal base, so that it will stand up steadily. Cover this with chintz or needlepoint, and see what you have!

You can buy tilt top tables that make lovely fire screens when their tops are painted with attractive floral designs. Or you can buy interesting folding fire screens in lacquer or some other pleasing finish.

The decorators often take a good sized piece of white or figured paper (flowered wallpaper, for instance) and pleat it into a big gay fan and put this in the fireplace just back of the andirons and brighten up the effect.

But when all's said and done, nothing is half so nice as fresh flowers here, as elsewhere, so if you're a good hand with the garden and are assured plenty of cut flowers for the house, then by all means plan on having them in your fireplace in graceful arangement. Your best bet here would be to get a glass fish tank in a size to fit into the fireplace opening. This you can keep banked with greenery and large, dramatic flowers for a charming fragrant effect. Next best would be a large vase or bowl for flowers. Or even a fish tank filled with tropical fish indirectly lighted would stand out and contribute design and interest to this space.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By Ida Jean Kain.

THE ENTIRE muscular system comprises around 200 pairs of muscles, but you do not have to exercise every single one of them to keep a streamlined figure. As far as your figure and health are concerned, the most important are the four pairs which form the abdominal girdle.

When these muscles are strong their co-ordinated action controls the front line of your figure and keeps it nice and flat. Rolls of fat in this area are a sign that the muscles have gone soft and lax. Moreover, from the health angle it is of the utmost importance that these muscles be kept in tone to hold the vital organs in their proper position. It is the lower part of the abdominal wall which should be fairly taut, as otherwise the abdominal organs are allowed to sag. As fat is lost in this area, the muscles must be strengthened, and the overweight particularly should stress abdominal exercise.

Regardless of weight, however, the tendency is to relax the abdominal muscles in standing, sitting and walking, and this tendency increases with fatigue. To afford constant exercise and prevent sagging, make a practice of constantly pulling up with the lower abdominal wall.

You can strengthen these muscles through corrective exercises until they exert a natural upward pull. The preliminary abdominal exercise should be taken from a lying down position and preferably with the knees flexed and the feet flat on the floor to relieve any possible strain. The following exercise is easy to do and it is very effective:

POSITION: Lying on back on floor, knees flexed, feet on floor, arms folded across the chest.

MOVEMENT: Raise the body off the floor until the weight is resting on the soles of the feet and the shoulders, with the lower abdominal wall retracted. Hold, release. As the back is lowered toward the floor pull the small of the back in to touch the floor. Relax and repeat the exercise ten times.

POSITION: Lying on back with arms at sides, knees flexed and feet on floor.

MOVEMENT: Pull both knees back to chest, then kick the legs straight out in front of the body as you come to a semi-sitting position with arms out in front and with legs stretched straight out and off the floor. Relax, and repeat five to ten times.

Men's Sport Clothes Splash on Colors

New York (AP).—Men's business clothes may be conservative this summer—but don't let that inhibit you. Just stock up with a few of the brighter things for sports. You can express practically anything that way.

Fashion experts say loud checks and plaids in summer business wear have given way to solid colors, blues and grays particularly, varied with unobtrusive patterns and pin stripes.

Ties and shirts, for street and office, are no longer screaming. Colored shirts, with matching accessories, continue popular for daytime but the colors are quieter.

Learn to Tell Fortunes

AS FASCINATING as the Queen of the Gypsies herself—that's Madge since she learned simple tips on fortune telling.

To Jack, who yearns to roll in money, she says: "That Ace of Diamonds promises a trip soon, with money in it. The Seven of Diamonds, a wealthy friend who may give you a leg up. There's the Queen of Spades, a lucky card for men."

To romantic Mildred, "The King of Diamonds says an ardent suitor will soon be pursuing you. The Two of Hearts—a gift from him. The King of Clubs says fate will smile on you."

To Jane, who hoped her fortune would glitter with success cards, "An unusual honor is ahead, that Seven of Hearts says. Perhaps you'll be the national head of your sorority. The Six of Clubs, an exciting new job. The Nine of Hearts, your wish comes true."

Once you've learned the knack you can weave fortunes even around a campfire. A wheel-shaped spark promises a legacy; a drum-like spark hints a fuss.

In handwriting you can easily read personality secrets. A forward slant implies impulsiveness; wide spaces, extravagance. Our 40-page booklet, LET ME TELL YOUR FORTUNE, explains card fortunes, tea-leaf reading, numbers, dreams.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, LET ME TELL YOUR FORTUNE, to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

PATTERN 6149

By Alice Brooks.

THIS BOLERO'S got what it takes—to make you the star. Puff sleeves (so feminine!) and a lacy stitch that rolls off your hook with amazing speed! Use two strands of cotton. Pattern 6149 contains directions for making bolero; illustrations of it and of stitches; materials needed.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Department, 259 West Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Divorced Pairs Should Retain Good Manners

Rudeness by Ex-Spouses Only Makes Suffering for Others.

By Margaret Wallace.

ETIQUETTE problems of divorced persons are often quite perplexing, to judge from letters from a divorced man and a divorced woman received recently.

"All I ask is ordinary courtesy when I go to the home of my former wife to visit my four children," the man writes. "Instead of being treated politely, the entire family, with the exception of my children, tries to make everything as disagreeable as possible. They discuss my appearance and my business in audible voices and always disparagingly. The court awarded me one-half the custody of my children. I provide for them adequately and pay for their schooling and their clothes besides.

"Because I have no reliable person to leave in charge of the children and because I think it is very detrimental to children to have two homes, I have allowed my former wife to have the children, with the understanding that I can visit them for an hour or two or have them with me for a week-end or take them on trips, and so forth. I always try to be courteous when I go to the home of my former wife. She is polite enough, but her parents will not speak to me when they meet me in the hall, and even the servant is rude.

"I was very much embarrassed when I entered the living room recently to find that my former wife had guests. Although the room was small, she did not introduce me to her friends. They all stopped and listened to what I was saying to my children."

Makes Them Unhappy.

This man has the right to expect courtesy when he visits his children in his former wife's home. If he does not receive it, it would be better to meet his children elsewhere, for they will, without doubt, notice the rudeness and it will make them unhappy.

Under the circumstances, the divorced husband is a guest in the house and should be accorded all the consideration of a guest. Since the former wife's parents allow her former husband to come to the house to see her children, they should speak politely when they meet him face to face. It would have been good form for the wife to have introduced her former husband as "the children's father" to her friends when they were all in a small living room together. The better plan, of course, would be for the former wife to entertain her friends in a different room when her former husband calls on his children.

Ex-Husband Is Rude.

"My former husband will not speak to me when he meets me on the street or in the home of mutual friends," a woman writes. "We live in the same community and have many mutual friends, and even go to the same church. All my divorced friends are polite to each other and even appear on friendly terms when they meet. Is it polite for my former husband to pass me on the street without speaking? Is it polite for him to refuse to answer when I make a polite remark to him at a party?"

It is never polite for a man to refuse to speak to a woman he knows on the street, whether she be a casual acquaintance or a former wife. He should return her greeting and take off his hat and pass on. It is very rude for him to refuse to answer a polite question or respond to a polite remark at a party or anywhere else.

In this day and generation divorced people are often very good friends. The fact that they have been divorced does not give either one liberty to avoid the rules of ordinary politeness. Usually there are other people around who can be made uncomfortable. Poise and dignity and courtesy and tact will be very useful in avoiding awkwardness when divorced people meet. Anger and disdain and rudeness never helped anyone over an awkward situation.

Plaids, Polka Dots Vie as Favorite Summer Nighties

If you're still sleeping in a tea-rose crepe nightie trimmed in narrow lace, wake up. Times have changed and summer sleeping garb grows brighter by the minute. Plaids and polka dots vie with each other while culottes, peasant gowns and suspender pajamas are all out to win first place as the "very newest thing."

Bonita Granville, movie actress, favors culottes, fashioned in one piece with a halter top as summer's coolest and most youthful bedtime garment. She has them in figured cotton crepe, a mercerized polka-dotted material and silk crepe. Her favorite of the group is white silk crepe printed with bluebirds on the wing. She also has a matching zippered housecoat to go over this one.

Peasant gowns please Gale Page. She likes them in white voile and made with terrific fullness. They all have a wide girdle of smocking in pastel thread at the waistline. Some have deeply cut square necklines and short puffed sleeves while others have round necks with a draw string. They all fall dramatically to the floor and are definitely feminine with their many yards of cloudy material.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

The Purge.

She had left the house heavy of foot, leaden of spirit. Another day of seeing people, of hearing their metallic voices, of watching them promote their selfish ends. Oh, they were all such a mess! How many really 100 per cent, grade A persons did you ever find? How many who had honor, sportsmanship, generosity? Who really had civilized spirits?

Memories of yesterday rose to darken her mood—of people shouting and shrieking each other down above the din of a party, of their moving adroitly toward the more advantageous groups, of preening, of posing, of patronizing, of appraising each other suspiciously like strange dogs—well, that was social life for you. But it was the same everywhere—in the club bickerings, in the office maneuverings, yes, even at home, where everybody was always stepping on everybody else's toes. "Me-me-me, mine-mine-mine"—you heard it all day long everywhere you went.

* * * *

How ugly human beings were! And how stupid! She felt a sudden rage against the street car motorman, who clumsily was managing to hit every red light. And the bewildered, lumbering housewife, who held everything up by boarding the car at the wrong end. Why did such women ever leave home?

She looked about the car and her lip curled with contempt. There they all sat, each sprawled over three-quarters of a seat and glaring belligerently at any possible seatmates who approached. Well, that was people for you!

Looking out the window she saw the throngs hurrying along with their tight, harried faces, heads thrust forward, eyes tense, every movement, every thought centered on their own petty concerns. Not a relaxed body, not a face with any gentleness or light. Yes, they all had just one foot out of the jungle.

Well, the thing to do was to be a snob . . . a moral snob. To draw apart. And ruthlessly select—Still . . .

* * * *

She became suddenly aware that her own mouth was sagging, her eyes hard, her face dark and earthy. Well what right had she to select? Why—why she was a good deal of a rotter herself when you got down to it. Petty and despicable like the rest.

Still, in comparison with most of the others—no, she would not make excuses. She went on ruthlessly analyzing herself. Catty and unkind . . . secretly rejoicing in bad news of those she did not like . . . a coward, compromising when she should have fought, being expedient at the expense of principle; yes, boastful, exhibitionistic, selfish. How she despised herself; despised everybody!

She looked out the window. How futile they all were! Herself and all these other little human beings. She felt as if she were looking down on them from afar off. And then slowly a sense of pity crept through her heart.

* * * *

Poor, poor little people! So confused and pathetic! Struggling so hard over their little concerns. Plodding . . . hoping . . . dreaming. All having someone for whom they were fighting, all carrying images in their hearts of wives, husbands, children, sweethearts, fathers, mothers, all sustained by visions of some haven, bungalow, apartment, furnished room they would reach at night, of some easier and more pleasant life they would attain tomorrow.

Oh she felt so sorry for them all! What if they were mean and shoddy? They had such a hard time—the poor things. And they were all trying so gallantly. There was something noble in just being a human being, in making the fight.

Poor, poor people! The tears streamed from her eyes. Passengers around gazed at her curiously but she did not care. She felt warm and relaxed inside, as though something had broken and was suffusing her body. Peace came upon her. As she left the car it seemed that the outdoors was bathed in a heightened light.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

ALICE HUGHES

IT IS A STRANGE and disturbing fact that few New Yorkers realize what huge chunks are being bitten out of our tremendous rehousing problem at the present time. Until you have seen block after block of what are known as "old-law tenements" can you have the faintest notion how horribly many thousands of our people live. These rabbit-warrens are unsanitary, filthy and fire traps of the worst kind. The wonder is that any children can survive such starts in life.

It is an enormous problem, and one that will never be fully solved in our time—yet the encouraging thing is that blocks of them are coming down, and new, low-priced apartment buildings are rising in their places. Only the other day, in the dismal Red Hook section of Brooklyn, I saw no less than 161 of these dingy tenements falling. On the vacated property a new housing development for 11,000 persons will stand—clean, airy, inexpensive, modern! Such things are the real wonders of New York City—they make such show pieces as Radio City seem merely pretentious! There, in one of the worst areas of the Greater City, 15 square blocks will be built anew!

Of course, it isn't easy to get old residents to vacate even such awful dwellings. Filthy or not, they're home. But every family being moved out is properly taken care of, and the good work proceeds. This rehousing is not only important, it is absolutely vital to the life of the metropolis. And it goes on!

* * * *

Turn the page quickly, and listen to this line I find on a local society page—"It's pleasant in these times to hear of anyone biulding an elaborate country place." Oh, is it now, Miss High and Mighty? Somehow this snobbish little sentence seems to tie in with my story about the rehousing progress here—and not too pleasantly, either!

* * * *

Latest Tallulah Bankhead report has that explosive daughter of Alabama appearing in Mr. Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" at one of our summer theaters. I thought Talloo had enough of the Bard after the disaster with "Antony and Cleopatra."

* * * *

I have been studying the list of 50 novels on which to start housekeeping—chosen by our Prof. Walter Barnes, of New York University. Its titles run from a Jane Austen book to one by Thomas Wolfe, which is some gap to bridge. Fifty fine books they are, but there's not a single cook book in the lot, which would seem to me to be a bad oversight!

Here's another bulletin from our busy police ladies: Copette Barbara Potken was sitting quietly in a movie when she felt a knee-pinch. "Don't do that!" she said sharply. But she was not taken seriously, and as a result Mr. Nicholas Dhont went to jail for five days. Please note that I purposely passed up a chance for a terrific pun there!

* * * *

Mel and Harriet Rivard, two of our nicest Murray Hill neighbors, have just returned from 10 weeks abroad—and the high spot of the trip was the fact that by mere chance they were in Rome during Hitler's visit and managed to get way down front for that martial display.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Lesser Known Vitamins.

New vitamins constantly are being found. Until a short time ago we got down the alphabet as far as E with vitamins, and the most important ones appear to be A, B, C, D and E. These substances which are present in our food do not contribute to nutrition, but they influence in some mysterious way a number of functions of the body.

Vitamin H is one of the latest to be described. The story of vitamin H begins with the observations of certain biologists who found that trout, studied under experimental conditions, could not live unless fed fresh meat. Extending their observations they found that at least four animals, including chickens, dogs and men, required this vitamin. It influences growth and is necessary for growth. Vitamin H is also present in fresh tomatoes, in yeast and in cod liver oil.

Most herbiverous animals require a vitamin which is present in fresh grasses, notably in alfalfa. This grass juice vitamin does not seem to be necessary for men, however.

Vitamin K is the coagulation vitamin. A Danish worker, Prof. Dam, found that there was a dietary factor concerned in the property of the blood to coagulate. It is present in vegetables and especially grasses. The highest concentration of vitamin K occurs in alfalfa juice.

It has been used in concentrated form in the treatment of jaundice. It is a well known fact that patients with jaundice are liable to hemorrhages. Apparently bile in the blood tends to prevent the blood from coagulating. This is very important in those cases of jaundice due to gallstones, when operation is necessary. There is a great deal of danger in operating on such a patient due to the possibility of hemorrhage. The preparation of these patients with the use of vitamin K has resulted in a striking drop in the amount of hemorrhage which might occur after operation.

Vitamin J has been postulated as a factor which helps to prevent infection. It is found in fresh fruit juices.

The future of work in new vitamins is probably in the hands of the biologists rather than that of physicians. It has been the biologist, working with animals on a test diet, who has discovered most of the new vitamins mentioned here today.

The Distlers Entertain Residential Society

Bristols' Party Honoring Robert Scottens Draws Few of Same Guests.

By Hope Ridings Miller.
The Post Society Editor.

Residential society turned out in dozens yesterday afternoon for the cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Distler in their home on Kalorama Road. Diplomats and officials for the most part were missing (but not missed), while cave-dwelling Washingtonians, and persons who have lived here long enough to pass as cave-dwellers, came early and stayed late at one of the most pleasant events of the season.

At the same time, not so many blocks away, another party was going full force as Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol entertained a smaller gathering in compliment to Robert Scotten, Counselor of the United States Embassy in Brazil, and Mrs. Scotten. Several of the guests were on hand for both functions before the afternoon was over.

The spacious rooms of the Distler home were decorated with tall vases of larkspur, pink carnations and roses. Gay cretonne covers on the drawing room chairs and sofas added an extra dash of color to the setting. Doors to the grass-carpeted lawn to the rear of the house were flung open, and soon the porch and the garden were filled with guests who lingered in the cool shade of the trees and the awning-covered terrace.

An air of informality was in evidence from the beginning, as the host and hostess received their guests, here, there and everywhere—wherever they happened to be. Young Walter Distler, jr.—"Buddy" to his parents and friends—took his stand near the door during the first half of the party and did his share toward greeting the guests. Mrs. Distler divided her time between receiving in the drawing rom and in the dining room, both of which soon were well filled. The table in the rear hallway, where Scotch and soda, tomato juice and planter's punch were served, and the table on the terrace, where punch was dispensed lavishly, were supervised by Mr. Distler.

Mother and Daughter Wear Similar Frocks

The hostess wore a street-length frock of rose and white print, fashioned with a white embroidered square yoke and cuffs to match on the puff sleeves. The narrow rose velvet sash was tied in a bow in front. Anne Distler, ypung daughter of the host and hostess, had on a dress similar in material and style to that of her mother, and set off with a velvet sash of the same shade as her mother's.

The long table at one side of the dining room was centered with a tall bouquet of pink larkspur, carnations and fern. Coffee was served there; also, wafer-thin sandwiches, hors d'ouvres, hot rolls filled with minced ham, olives, pickles, and no end of other tea-time dainties.

In the company were many friends of long standing who had many things to discuss in the two brief hours allotted for the party. In fact, when 7 o'clock rolled around, the majority of the guests were still on hand, and the party continued merrily for almost an hour more. Vacation plans and vacation-time visitors seemed to be the chief topics of conversation . . . with just about eveyone on hand either planning a trip or expecting house guests before summer rolls in full force.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Newton have returned to Washington after spending several days at the Greenbrier in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

To Celebrate Wedding Anniversary This Week

Mr. and Mrs. Distler themselves will be off for a brief trip this week-end, and plan to celebrate their fifteenth wedding anniversary on Saturday in New York.

Among the guests yesterday were several neighbors of the host and hostess. Early arrivals included Mr. and Mrs. Tilhman J. Hendrick, she in a stunning India print crepe frock worn with a wide brimmed brown straw hat; and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dodge, the latter in a brown and white print dress, cut on tailored lines and worn with a matching hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Percival Ridsdale were others glimpsed in the crowd; also, Mrs. Buchanan Merryman, in a black and white frock, worn with a small black hat; Mrs. Royal McKenna, Mrs. Louise G. Caldwell, in a snappy bluebonnet blue ensemble, arriving with Mrs. Grace Vickers; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Orme, Mrs. Thad H. Brown, talking with Mrs. Charles L. McNary; Mrs. Carl Droop, in a tailored cinnamon silk frock, worn with a wide-brimmed hat; Mr. and Mrs. George R. Holmes.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Crosby, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, in a blue and white ensemble; Dr. and Mrs. Philip Caulfield, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Nevius, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cotter, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Montgomery, Mrs. Hosea William Jones arriving with Miss Hazel Edgar, Mrs. Fred Britten, who seemed to know everyone there; and many, many others.

All Prepared For Benefit Garden Fete

Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. Corcoran Thom, Miss Elizabeth Shouse and Mrs. Daniel C. Long, snapped in the garden of Mrs. Joseph Leiter's residence as they aid in plans for the party to be given there tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the Thrift Shop. In case of rain the fete will be postponed until Friday.

Mrs. Winder Will Be Bride

Mrs. George Howe announces the engagement of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Howe Winder, to Wallace Donald Brock, of Washington and Miami, Fla.

Mrs. Winder, who has distinguished English and early Colonial ancestry, attended the Castle School at Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson; the Cathedral School of St. Mary's at Garden City, Long Island, and Columbia University. She is the widow of William Tucker Windor of North Carolina.

Mr. Brook attended the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.; Vanderbilt University and the Georgetown School of Foreign Service.

The wedding will take place during the summer.

Mrs. Adams Now In California for Avery-Oden Rites

Mrs. James Warren Adams, who left her apartment at the Woodley Park Towers some time ago, now is at Berkeley, Calif. Today she will attend the marriage of Miss Margaret Avery and Lieut. W. N. Oden at the chapel of the Presidio at San Francisco.

After a visit with the bride's parents, Col. and Mrs. Ray Longfellow Avery, at Berkeley, Mrs. Adams will visit Miss Sue Chamberlin at San Francisco. She and Miss Chamberlin were roommates at Wheaton College. While in the "bay country," Mrs. Adams also expects to visit other friends. Later she will go on to Portland and Seattle. In August she will go by way of Vancouver to the Canadian Rockies, spending most of the time at Banff and Lake Louise for the remainder of the summer.

Last week Mrs. Adams was at the Grand Canyon in Arizona before going to Coronado. She left the latter city early this week by way of Hollywood. She expects to return to Washington in October.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

THE LISTS of "ten bests" that issue periodically from the lips of couturieres and Elsa Maxwell don't always, we have decided, give honor where honor is due.

DUDLEY HARMON

Chic, glamour, or "chien," whatever that latest tag may mean, are not the only attributes necessary to get your name on a list. In Washington are a number of women who, while they may have these qualities, have something more important besides — intelligence, cleverness and personality, which lift them out of the "little brown wren" class. In other words, they are "the tops" in the opinion of many who count, and are presented in his column today and tomorrow before they all scatter for the summer.

• • • •

MRS. NICHOLAS LONGWORTH: Although a number of years have passed since she indulged in the escapades which made her famous as "Princess Alice," she is still the town's most entertaining person. She gets your name when you are introduced to her, and remembers it afterwards. You get the impression in talking with her that you are unusually interesting. Entertains only at small informal parties where she amuses the guests with imitations of her cousin in the White House.

The past winter Mrs. Longworth has spent commuting between Cincinnati, where her young daughter is in school, and Washington, where she spends just about every other week keeping her ear to the political ground.

• • • •

MRS. CORDELL HULL: As the wife of the Secretary of State, she is deluged with invitations, yet has no social secretary. When she gives a dinner she attends to every detail herself, even to arranging the flowers, which are always pink roses. As her husband goes nowhere, she feels it doubly her duty to go everywhere, and is conscientious to a degree about accepting invitations. You can get her to the telephone without having to fight your way through a battalion of butlers and secretaries. Completely friendly and unassuming, she is also one of the best dressed women in the Capital, running to smart, simple black costumes with furs. She runs a big apartment at the Carlton with one maid, likes to play croquet in her leisure moments. She still has the soft Southern accent of a Virginia background.

• • • •

MRS. ROOSEVELT: The thousands of miles she travels, the thousands of words of copy she turns out ever year, the thousands of people she meets from all classes caused the most cynical newspaper columnist in the country to name her the woman of the year. But did you know that she is also chief among good sports, as those who have seen her perform in off-the-record stunts at press parties discovered? Anyone who has been entertained at the White House knows of her graciousness as a hostess who has introduced beer and other informalities to parties which otherwise might be stiff indeed. Her evening dresses are among the loveliest seen at Capital functions and set off to advantage an unusually good figure.

• • • •

MRS. ARTHUR VANDENBERG: More people in the Capital call her by her first name than any other Senator's wife. Is the most friendly person in Washington. Likes to talk about the days when she was a reporter on the Chicago Tribune, and wouldn't mind having a job now if household and social duties permitted. Some of her closest friends and newspaper people, who are all agreed that she is one of her husband's best bets for the Presidency—although without any arriere pensee.

• • • •

MRS. HOMER CUMMINGS: The wife of the Attorney General would rather converse than eat. She likes people who "do things" rather than those who are merely ornamental or socially prominent.

Guests Seated In Aztec Garden Hear Cuba Band

Visiting Musicians Give Pan-American Concert; Dr. Rowe Is Host.

By Elizabeth Ford.

For the second time in 24 hours, the Cuban Navy Band marched smartly into a bright spot in the social limelight and appeared in a program at the Pan American Union last evening. With the music scheduled to go on the air at 9 o'clock and with a small army of broadcasters encamped in Dr. Leo Rowe's marble halls, distinguished late arrivals missed the opening number, but were ushered to seats in the Aztec Garden between intermissions.

The big building on Seventeenth street ran the Cuban Embassy a close second in furnishing a perfect setting for the band's appearance in Washington. The event opened the union's eighty-seventh series of concerts and is the first of a group scheduled for this summer.

Dr. Leo Rowe Greets Guests

Guests, greeted at the door by the director general, Dr. Rowe, who had a busy time of it shaking hands with everybody, were ushered through the cool, dark patio, with its palms and illuminated fountain, and out onto the esplanade at the back of the building. Here seats had been arranged for a capacity gathering of 1,500, and by the time Lieut. Charles Benter, of the United States Navy Band, guest conductor, raised his baton for the fourth number, practically every seat was occupied.

In contrast to the pieces played Monday evening at the Cuban Embassy, many of which were of European origin, selections on the band's second program were all American. Cuba was most frequently represented although Mexico, Brazil and the United States also contributed to the musical fare. Strains of "Dixie" in the "Southern Rhapsody" had even the diplomats politely tapping their feet and keeping time. Ernesto Romeu, son of Capt. Armando Romeu Marrero, leader of the musicians, appeared again as soloist with the organization and sang a lilting Cuban melody, followed by a thunderclap of enthusiastic applause.

Cuban Envoy Comes Early

Among early arrivals were the Ambassador of Cuba, who escorted his niece, Senorita Ana Maria Carribia. If it were possible she looked even more attractive last evening than Monday when she received with her uncle at the Embassy fete. Her graceful white evening dress, topped by a green bolero coat, set off to perfection her slightly auburn hair and fair complexion. Also from Cuba were the Military Attache, Maj. Felipe Munilla and Senora de Munilla, she in green.

Of those representing the Congressional set, Mrs. Charles McNary made a striking appearance, wearing black chiffon. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Mary Morton. Senator McNary was unable to attend because of a night session at the Capitol. The McNarys will leave June 24 for their ranch in Oregon.

Residential Set Present at Affair

Included among the many from residential Washington were Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol, who wore blue lace; Mrs. Ollie James, who was in green; Lewis Moneyway, Dr. Thomas Cajigas, who was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Ana Cajigas, in blue, and Baroness von Below.

Also present were the Greek Minister, Demetrios Sicilianos, and the Lithuanian Minister and Mme. Povilas Zadeikis, and many others from diplomatic and official groups.

Miss Register Wedding Guest

Miss Eleene Register, a bride-elect in her own right, will come from Savannah, Ga., this week-end to attend the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Allyn Cremen to John Earl Everhart Saturday. Miss Register's marriage to Miss Cremen's brother, John F. Cremen, jr., is set for July 9 at Savannah.

Miss Register is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John E. Register. She attended Holy Cross Academy and Dumbarton College in Washington and spent much of her time here last season after arriving to attend the debut of her friend, Miss Regina McKeever.

MISS JULIA DEANE METCALF.

George Washington Art Teacher Will Marry Chevy Chase Student of Architecture Some Time This Summer.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Clyde Hill Metcalf, of Chevy Chase, announce the engagement of their daughter, Julia Deane Metcalf, to Donald Chenoweth Kline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Everett Kline.

The bride elect attended George Washington University and then went to Mills College, Calif., where she received her degree. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Following her graduation from Mills College at midyear, she and her parents made a tour of Europe, where she continued her study of art and architecture. This year, she has been studying at the Abbott School of Art.

Mr. Kline attended George Washington University, where he specialized in art and architecture. Following his graduation there, he studied at L'Ecole Americaine in Fontainbleau, France. He is now professor of art and architecture at George Washington University, and assistant editor of art and architecture for the Federal Writers' Project.

The wedding will take place some time this summer.

Miss Helen Elizabeth Bell Married to Lieut. Leverton

St. Mark's Methodist Church in Atlanta, Ga., last evening was the scene of the wedding of Miss Helen Elizabeth Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Robinson Bell, of Atlanta, to Lieut. Joseph Wilson Leverton, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Leverton, of Washington. The Rev. John Brandon Peters performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Piedmont Driving Club for members of the wedding party and out-of-town friends.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white Duchess satin made on princess lines and trimmed with tiny corded rosettes of the same material. Her veil of illusion, caught in a cap of pleated tulle edged with orange blossoms, fell over a long satin train, and she carried orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. O. D. Waters, jr., the former Miss Lucille McGehee, of Washington, served as matron of honor, wearing aqua chiffon made with a shirred bodice and carrying talisman roses, snapdragons and daisies. Miss Margaret Preacher was the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Ida Akers, Alice Armstong, Rachel Burton, and Julia Hoyt. Miss Mary Frances Burke served as flower girl. All wore gowns like that of the matron of honor and carried similar bouquets.

Lieut. O. D. Waters, jr., U. S. N., was best man, and the ushers were Lieuts. R. C. Williams, Carson Hawkins, George Greene and L. M. Mustin and Lieut. Comdr. B. R. Harrison and Ensign Felix DeGolian.

Assisting at the reception which followed the ceremony were the Misses Isabel Boykin, Sibylla Pringle, Sarah Lewis, Mrs. George Valentine and Mrs. W. L. McDougall, all of Atlanta.

After a motor trip through the Southeast, the couple will live in Annapolis. When she left on her wedding trip the bride was wearing a powder blue ensemble with a fox collar, Dubonnet accessories and a corsage of deep red orchids.

Among Washington guests were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leverton, and J. F. Leverton, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. McGehee, William McGehee and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lemon.

Eben Comins Back In South America Drawing Natives

Eben F. Comins, who left Washington recently, has gone to Peru and Bolivia to continue his drawings of the Indians.

The results of this trip will be shown first at Wellesley College and then at the Currier Museum, Manchester, N. H. He expects to return about the 1st of November.

Mr. Aspinwall to Fete Miss Helen Howison

Clarence Aspinwall will give a dinner Friday evening at the Chevy Chase Club in honor of Miss Helen Howison, assistant treasurer of the company of which Mr. Aspinwall is president.

The event will commemorate her twenty-fifth anniversary with the company.

James E. Fox, of Woodside Park, Md., announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Anna Bell Fox, to Carlyle M. Sole. Mr. Sole is the son of Mrs. Lola V. Sole, of Washington. The wedding will take place on Saturday at the home of the bride-elect's sister, Mrs. Lorraine S. La Rue, of Rockville.

Recital Set Tonight By Alice Ingersoll

Miss Alice Ingersoll, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Royal Ingersoll, will be presented in a piano recital this evening by Fanny Amstutz Roberts, president of the Washington College of Music. The event will take place at the college.

On Saturday evening, Miss Ingersoll will receive the second-year certificate in piano at the thirty-third annual commencement of the college. Next week she will leave with her parents for California, where Admiral Ingersoll is to assume duty in command of a cruiser division.

Return to New York.

Miss Craighill Is Wed to Cleric In Leesburg, Va.

Rev. Wickersham and Bride Will Live in N. Y. After Trip to England.

An all-white wedding was that yesterday evening at 7:30 in Leesburg, Va., of Miss Elizabeth Wistar Craighill, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. G. Peyton Craighill, of Leesburg, to the Rev. George Woodward Wickersham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius W. Wickersham, of Cedarhurst, Long Island. The bride's father officiated.

Tall white tapers and Madonna lilies decorated St. James Episcopal Church, where the ceremony was performed. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Walter J. Laird, of Wilmington, Del., wore the wedding gown of her aunt, Mrs. W. C. Bell, of Alexandria. Fashioned of ivory Philippine gauze with a lace fichu, it had a long lace veil held in place by a cap of the same material. The bride carried cream colored gerberas and lilies of the valley.

Bride's Sisters Are Matrons of Honor

The attendants were gowned in white organdy redingotes over yellow, salmon and blue satin slips, and carried mixed garden flowers. The bride's sisters, Mrs. Philip T. Rochelle, of Chester, N. J., and Mrs. Lucius N. Cron, of West Point, served as matrons of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Mary Winston White, of Franklin, Va.; Nancy Rogers, of Leesburg, and Rosalie Nelson, of Winchester. Miss Rosalie Wickersham, young sister of the bridegroom, served as flowergirl, wearing a white organdy frock with a blue sash, and carrying a white basket of garden flowers.

Cornelius W. Wickersham, jr., served as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Harry Luz, of New York; Edward Davis, of Cambridge, Mass.; Arthur Willis, of Brookline, Mass., and Douglas Richmond, of Boston. MacDonald and Lloyd Craighill, brothers of the bride, were pages.

Bridegroom Is Graduate Of Harvard

The bride attended the Oldsfield School, and her husband is a graduate of St. Mark's School, Harvard University and the Virginia Theological Seminary.

Among Washington guests at the wedding were the Rev. and Mrs. F. Bland Tucker. Others from out-of-town included the bridegroom's parents; Mrs. Cornelius W. Wickersham, jr., and Miss Rosalie Wickersham, of New York; Mrs. Cosby Bell, of Alexandria, Va., and Mrs. William H. Laird, of Baltimore.

2 Clubs Hold Last Parties Of Season

Entre Nous, Park View Groups Both Hosts to Mrs. Biddle.

Mrs. Charles Keyser Is Given Federation President's Pin.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Two of the organizations in the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday held their closing luncheon. The Entre Nous Club, which was founded 12 years ago by its president, Mrs. Charles P. Keyser, gave its annual birthday party in her honor, at 2400 Sixteenth street, and the Park View Woman's Club celebrated its fifteenth aniversary at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women. Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, retiring president of the District Federation, divided her afternoon, attending each party for a short time.

The tables at the Entre Nous Club luncheon were decorated in red, white and blue flowers and flags in observance of Flag Day. Mrs. Keyser's birthday falls on June 10, but the club postponed this year's luncheon until yesterday owing to the earlier date's being that of the Petworth Club's luncheon, at which Mrs. Keyser also was a guest.

Mrs. Biddle Gives Pin to President

A feature of the program which came as a surprise to both the guest of honor and other members of the club was presentation by Mrs. Biddle of the federation pin which she has worn during three years of her presidency, to Mrs. Keyser. She gave it, she said, as a token of appreciation for Mrs. Keyser's assistance and loyal support as treasurer of the federation, an office from which she now retires to become auditor.

Guest speaker of the occasion was Mrs. Arletta Ahrens, who talked on her recent trip along the west coast of South America. Mrs. Alan Maxwell and Mrs. Keyser's daughter, Mrs. L. H. Rea, wore the picturesque costumes of Ecuador and Peru which Mrs. Ahrens described. The program also included vocal selections by Miss Phebe Stine, retiring president of the Capitol Hill History Club, accompanied by Hazel Brown Pier.

Mrs. Charles Emery Ferguson, vice president of the club, was chairman of the luncheon committee. Other members who assisted in the arrangements were Mrs. James Underwood, Mrs. Miles Trowbridge and Mrs. Robert Lyons.

Guests at the head table, in addition to the president, Mrs. Biddle, and those who took part in the program, were Mrs. Philip Ashford, who offered the invocation; Mrs. Howard Hodgkins, director from the District to the General Federation; Mrs. Frank Mulkern, Mrs. Fred Wiley, president of the Jacksonville, Fla., Woman's Club; Mrs. Leonidas C. Dyer, wife of former Representative Dyer, of Missouri, a charter member of the club, and the officers, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Charles Dasher, recording secretary; Mrs. William Sault, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Otis J. Rodgers, treasurer; Mrs. James Underwood, auditor; Mrs. Robert Lyons, historian, and Mrs. Claudia Rice Scott, publicity chairman.

Founder Guest Of Park View Club

Mrs. Edward T. Perkins, founder of the Park View Woman's Club, and Mrs. Ellis Logan, organizer, were guests of honor with Mrs. Biddle at its anniversary luncheon. Mrs. Lawrence E. Murray presided and presented Earl Godwin as speaker.

The luncheon was a departure from the club's customary plan of having a banquet at the end of its season. Mrs. Fred S. Walker was chairman of arrangements for the affair, assisted by Mrs. T. E. Griffith, Mrs. Harvey Haum and Mrs. Glen C. Leach.

After a talk on world events by Earl Godwin, guests went from the dining room on the second floor, where luncheon was served, to the lounge below for a musicale. There were vocal selections by Anne Yago McGuffey, mezzo soprano, who sang old-time songs, and accordion and mouth-harp numbers by Mrs. Warren Wagner, one of the past presidents of the club, and her husband.

There were places for 60 guests at the luncheon. They were seated at a U-shaped table with flags and patriotic colors used as decoration. Past presidents who were there included Mrs. Margaret Felton, Mrs. Thomas Faris, Mrs. George Evans, Mrs. Pierce Ashburn, Mrs. Maurice Smith and Mrs. Wagner.

Officers in addition to Mrs. Murray, included Mrs. William O. Hancock, first vice president; Mrs. Fred S. Walker, second vice president; Mrs. George Jones, recording secretary; Mrs. D. Edward Clarke, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert Jonscher, treasurer, and Mrs. George A. Corbin, parliamentarian.

The club during the winter season has monthly meetings, in addition to luncheons held three times during the year by the education committee and the sessions of the art, literature and bridge groups. The education luncheons are to raise funds for the philanthropic work carried on by the club, including aid to the Langdon School for Crippled Children.

Two Federated Clubs Close Season With Luncheon Parties

IN THE upper picture are Mrs. Ellis Logan, left, organizer of the Park View Woman's Club; Mrs. Edward T. Perkins, the founder, and, at the right, Mrs. Lawrence E. Murray, the club president, photographed at the closing luncheon yesterday. It was held in the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women with 60 guests attending. Mrs. Logan is a past president of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs.

THE lower picture shows Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, retiring president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, placing on Mrs. Charles P. Keyser's blouse the president's pin she has worn during her term as head of the federation. At the right is Mrs. Leonidas Dyer, wife of former Representative Dyer of Missouri, and a charter member of the club. Mrs. Keyser is founder and president of the Entre Nous Club at whose final luncheon the presentation of the pin was made.

Gustav Davidson To Read Poems to Group Tomorrow

Gustav Davidson will entertain the poetry group of the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women tomorrow at 11 a. m., reading from his own poems and discussing poetry.

Mr. Davidson is the author of four volumes of verse, "Melmoth, the Wanderer," "Twenty Sonnets," "Half Century of Sonnets" and the latest, "Songs of Adoration." He also has contributed frequently to magazines and newspapers.

He came to this country from Poland as a very small child. He holds two degrees from Columbia University and has traveled extensively, spending some time in the South Sea Islands and others of the less frequented spots on the globe. He is now in Washington on special work at the Library of Congress.

Mrs. Richard Hogue, former president of the Washington Branch, will preside at the meeting, and afterward the group will lunch together.

Lunchon Aids Jewish Charity

Hebrew Sisters Aid Circle Nets $900 for Relief Fund.

The sixth annual donor luncheon of the Hebrew Sisters Aid Circle was held yesterday in the large ballroom of the Willard Hotel, with 250 members and guests attending. Proceeds, approximately $900, will be added to a fund from which the organization gives assistance to needy Jewish families in the city.

Mrs. K. Keren is president of the society, which has been active in Washington nearly 30 years. It provides for persons who have applied for relief and are waiting to learn disposition of their cases and supplements relief where it is not adequate to care for all members of a family. Other officers are Mrs. Hyman Solomon, first vice president; Mrs. A. Moiger, second vice president; Mrs. Issac Cymes, treasurer; Mrs. Moses Bobys, financial secretary; Mrs. S. H. Pemstein, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Sam Schlosky, chairman of relief.

Mrs. Morris Gewirz, president of the Women's Auxiliary of B'nai B'rith, opened the program with prayer and Rabbi Harry Silverstone gave the blessing of bread. Dr. Alex Horwitz, as guest speaker, devoted his talk to a discussion of the work of the organization and praise of the women's activity in such philanthropy. Rabbi Silvertone followed with remarks in Yiddish. Barnee, of the Shoreham, sang Yiddish songs.

On the committee for the luncheon with Mrs. Joseph Cherner were Mrs. A. Lapkoff, co-chairman; Mrs. Simon M. The Washington section of the National Council of Jewish Women was one of many organizations which held luncheon parties yesterday afternoon. This group, of which Mrs. Mark Lansburgh is president, sponsored a benefit at Woodmont Country Club near Bethesda to aid the center camp, maintained for underprivileged children.

Mrs. J. S. Kann was chairman of arrangements for the affair, at which 500 members and guests were present Tables were set on grounds of the club, which is situated on a high hill. After the luncheon many women remained to play bingo and bridge.

On the cimmitte assisting Mrs. Kann were Mrs. Alexander Wolf, Mrs. David Gross, Mrs. Benjamin Brill, Mrs. Abel Sachs, Mrs. Arthur Neuman, Mrs. Charles Cohn, Mrs. Elizabeth Kahn, Mrs. Edward Sonneborn, Mrs. F. Stevens, Mrs. Lazlo Detre, Mrs. Harold Levi, sr., Mrs. Alvin Newmeyer, Mrs. L. B. Schultz, Miss Bert Israel, Miss Florence Cohn, Mrs. Carrie Kretchel, Mrs. Charles Lully, Mrs. G. I. Kass, also assisting as waitresses were Mrs. Simon Eichberg, Mrs. Eugene Young, jr., Mrs. Harold Levi, jr., and Mrs. Samuel Kaufman.

Among those atending were Mrs. Lansburgh, Mrs. Abram Simon, wife of Rabbi Simon, Mrs. David Stone, president of the Sisterhood of Eighth Street Temple, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. Morris Eisman, Mrs. William Ilch, Mrs. Herbert Jacobi, Mrs. Birdie Samuels, Mrs. Pauline Gusdorf, Mrs. Simon Lyon, Mrs. Leo Baum, Mrs. I. Goldheim, Mrs. Sidney Reitzstein, Mrs. Ella Kann, Mrs. Herbert Simon.

Mrs. Cheatham Will Go to N. Y.

Attends Committee Meeting at Camp Edith Macy Tomorrow.

Mrs. B. F. Cheatham, of Stratford, Va., member of the Girl Scout national board of directors and an associate member of the Washington council, will attend the final meeting for the season of the executive committee at Camp Edith Macy, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., tomorrow. Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, of Montclair, N. J., vice chairman of the national board, will preside.

The camp is one of four Girl Scout national training schools where courses are given to volunteer and professional women who are interested in recreational leadership. These courses are given by members of the Girl Scout national staff, specialists in the program, personnel and administrative techniques of group work, and by others qualified to direct this type of national training. During the season, which opened on May 23 and ends September 5, many prominent speakers address students at Camp Macy on sociology, group leadership, arts and crafts, music, and other interests and activities which are included in the Girl Scout program.

Members of the national executive committee who attend the meeting, will visit and name the new unit which has been completed at Camp Macy.

Takoma Group Talks Politics

Voting to affiliate itself with the Women's Democratic Club of Montgomery County and the United Women's Democratic Clubs of Maryland, the newly formed Women's Democratic Organization Club of Takoma Park, Md., endorsed all the candidates on the organization ticket for primaries at its first public meeting held at the Takoma Firehall, Carroll and Denwood avenue, last night.

The club, which has about 50 members, was organized following a rift in the Takoma Park Women's Democratic Club headed by Mrs. Charles Y. Latimer, when the annual election of officers was held in April.

Robert Peter, former State's attorney, chairman of the Democratic organization in Montgomery County and candidate for the State Senate, complimented Mrs. Alice Lyddane, the new club's president, and the women for selecting the word, "Organization," in its name. He spoke in support of Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, for governor. He said he will be glad to vote for Herbert O'Conner, a few years from now.

He questioned the co-operation of the county government with the State, attacked the school system and stated that the county was "left out in the cold" in getting its share of new roads.

An attack on Gov. Harry W. Nice for neglecting Montgomery County was made by James W. Gill, a candidate for the House of Delegates.

"The county situation is administered by a group of petty dictatorships," he said. "The county commissioners are playing politics with every action they take and the average citizen has lost confidence in the present county government," Gill concluded.

Tommy Explains.

For youth the world has pressing need,
And ever youth the call must heed.
—Old Mother Nature.

"Don't be sore, Sammy," said Tommy.

Tommy, who is, as you know, Farmer Brown's boy, saw that his cousin was somewhat peeved because he had not been shown the nest of Mrs. Peter Rabbit until now when it was empty.

"Don't be sore, Sammy," said Tommy. "I didn't show you this nest because I didn't dare to."

"I wouldn't have hurt those little Rabbits and more than you would. Sue saw them and I think you might have let me see them," retorted Sammy.

"Sue wouldn't have seen them if she hadn't found the nest herself," replied Tommy.

"And I found it by accident. I wasn't looking for it," said Sue.

"I found it the same way, and after I found it I didn't visit it again. If you keep going to a place, you can't help making a trail. Somebody, out of curiosity, is likely to follow it, and that somebody is more than likely to be someone who is hungry for tender babies," explained Tommy.

"If you ask me, that Rabbit was crazy to make her nest 'way out here in the open when there are such good holes in the ground she could have used if she was too lazy to dig one for herself," said Sammy.

Tommy shook his head. "Wise, not crazy, said he. "I used to think as you do until I learned how difficult it is to find a Rabbit's nest. Holes in the ground are not so hard to find. Rabbits are no fighters and Mrs. Peter would be helpless to stop an enemy from coming down into a hole after her babies."

Johnny Chuck's babies are born in a hole in the ground," interrupted Sammy.

"Sure," replied Tommy. "And their mother is a wicked fighter, quite able to stop anyone trying to go down after those babies. That's the difference. So Mrs. Peter hides her babies by making her nest where nobody would expect a nest to be. This time it is right out here in the open. Once I found her nest in the garden. Notice that there is a little hollow in which she made the nest. She scratched that out herself and it is just deep enough so that when the babies lie flat and keep their heads down, even when they are big enough to be ready to leave the nest, no part of them will be above the level of the ground. I've known the cutter of a mowing machine to go over a Rabbit harm one of them. See how Mrs. Peter lined this hollow with grass roots, grass and fur. It makes a nice comfortable bed. Then she covers them with this sort of blanket of grass and fur and they are completely hidden. Aren't they, Sue?"

"Indeed they are," replied Sue. "I stood right over this nest and didn't see a thing but this grass and fur. Tommy, where did Mrs. Peter get that fur?"

"From her own breast. She pulls it out with her teeth," replied Tommy.

"Doesn't that hurt?" This was from Sammy.

Tommy grinned. "Try pulling out some of your own hair," said he. "This sort of blanket keeps the babies warm as well as hidden," he continued. "As far as I have been able to find out, their mother keeps away from them during the daytime. She goes to them after dark to feed them. I suppose that during the day they just sleep. Anyway, they keep still, and that is the important thing. If they moved much they would be likely to uncover themselves and a Hawk might see them."

"What happens when they are big enough to begin to run about?" Sammy asked.

"They leave the nest and scatter. They don't come back to it. It is each for himself then. I have an idea that their mother keeps track of them for a while and perhaps feeds them some, but I don't know this."

"Where do you suppose they are now?" Sue asked, looking about as if she expected to see them in the grass.

"In the Old Briar-patch by this time. Come on over there and perhaps we can find some of them," said Tommy, and led the way.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

WHEN CORA HARRIS was living in Nashville and writing such best sellers as "The Circuit Rider's Wife" and "Eve's Second Husband," she described Nashville as a delightful Southern city in the Harpeth Hills completely surrounded by larkspurs in the spring.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Emma Sisson, dean of women of Ward-Belmont College in Nashville, was honor guest of the Ward-Belmont Club of Washington at a tea at the home of Mrs. Raymond Zimmerman, in Foxhall Village, and decorations throughout the attractive home were larkspur.

Mrs. E. P. Richardson, president of the club, assisted Mrs. Zimmerman in receiving. Refreshments were served in the dining room and in the sun parlor during the afternoon.

Mrs. Farley to Drive It Today at Start of Trip to Chicago.

Raymond Fernand Loewy, the industrial designer who, more than any other individual, is responsible for the luxurious appointments of the Pennsylvania Railroad's new Liberty Limited and the six other crack trains in its "Fleet of Modernism," believes beauty and comfort in travel are here to stay.

"In the air, at sea and on buses and trains the passenger is coming to expect more than mere transportation," said the designer, who came here yesterday from New York for the public viewing at Union Station of the Liberty.

"I see tremendous possibilities in the future of ship design. It is inevitable that the new liners will offer not only the utmost in comfort, but also be a delight to the eye with interior decorations."

Make Maiden Runs Today.

The "Fleet of Modernism," comprising the Broadway and Liberty limiteds, The General and The Spirit of St. Louis, might be termed Mr. Loewy's collective masterpiece in his five years as a consultant to the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Liberty, linking Washington, Baltimore and Chicago, will make its maiden run today with the new equipment. The three other trains in the ultra-modern fleet will also enter service today, the Spirit of St. Louis running between New York and St. Louis, the Broadway Limited and General between New York and Chicago.

A total of 8598 Washingtonians visited Union Station to go through the new train. Almost in awe they gazed upon the mural and other artistic features of the bar lounge, the radio-equipped diner with its startlingly new arrangement of tables, the Pullman duplexes, roomettes, drawing rooms and master rooms.

Engineers of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pullman Co., in collaboration with Mr. Loewy, worked out the plans which are now finally executed.

For the initial trip of the Liberty out of Washington at 5:10 p. m. today the railroad had to add another sleeping car yesterday to the nine cars originally planned for the train.

Formerly a captain in the French army and a member of the Legion of Honor, Mr. Loewy came to the United States 19 years ago. He designed the interior of the Boeing "strato liner" now being tested by TWA and is now working on three steamships for the Panama Railroad.

Mrs. Farley at Throttle.

He retained three painters to do the trains' murals. The Broadway Limited is decorated with sculpture as well.

Mrs. James A. Farley, wife of the Postmaster General, will be at the throttle of the electric engine when the Liberty leaves Washington for Chicago today. Short dedicatory ceremonies will be conducted in Union Station, under the direction of P. C. Morse, vice president of the Pennsylvania.

With all aboard, Boy Scouts Myron Wheeler, Troop 119, and Perry Doing, Troop 55, will sound "forward" on their bugles. The train will break a silk ribbon held by Miss Vivien Nelson and Miss Letitia G. Ord. The former is the daughter of Commander and Mrs. H. J. Nelson and Miss Ord is the daughter of Mrs. James B. Ord and the late Col. Ord.

Mrs. Farley will remain in control of the engine as the luxury rail liner moves out of the station—under supervision of the regular pilot.

The Liberty Limited, which has newly designed coach seats as well as the various Pullman innovations, will make the run to Chicago in slightly more than 16 hours running time.

Defiant Bride Gets Wedding Kiss

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

The kissing bride and bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William Dobbs after their wedding yesterday at Kensington, N. Y. The bride was Andrea (Bubbles) Luckenbach, 18, and took Dobbs as her husband over the disapproval of her wealthy father, Commodore Edgar F. Luckenbach, shipping magnate. Dobbs, 25, is a butter and egg salesman—not wealthy—and an amateur horseman.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Pan American Union presents the Cuban Navy Band (Capt. Armando Romeu Marrero, conductor) in the Aztec Garden Tuesday night. Soloists: Zoraida Marrero, Alberto Roldan, Ernesto Romeu and Raul Fernandez Criado. Program of compositions representing the United States, Cuba, Mexico and Brazil.

A cloudless sky and balmy temperature favored the Pan American Union's first outdoor concert of the summer last evening when the Cuban Navy Band was welcomed by a large audience assembled on the esplanade and the chair-bordered pathways of the Aztec Garden. It was an occasion of international amity signalized not only by the participation of Lieut. Charles Benter, leader of the U. S. Navy Band, as guest conductor of one number, but also by the juxtaposition on the program of music by composers of the United States and Cuba.

Capt. Armando Romeu Marrero is to be congratulated on the disciplined excellence of his organization. With well-balanced instrumental choirs, including a string section, the band impresses one as a group of musicians more concerned with the refinements of dynamics and the finesse of tonal blending than with strident climaxes, and their rhythmic suppleness is particularly commendable.

The program opened with the march, "Alvaro Obregon," by the Mexican composer, Ramon Hernandez. Brazil was represented by the familiar overture to Carlos Gomes' opera, "Il Guarany." Lucius Hosmer and G. Sanger were the North American composers honored by the selection of the former's "A Southern Rhapsody" and the latter's "Valse Gracieuse" and "Danse Grotesque."

Music from Cuba constituted the remainder of the concert. The items included White's Habanera, "La Bella Cubana," with a violoncello solo by Alberto Roldan; Capt. Marrero's fantasia, "4 de Septiembre," incorporating a vocal duet by Zoraida Marrero and Ernesto Romeu, and Jimenez's "Estudio Sinfonico."

Ernesto Lecuona, known primarily in this country as a composer for piano, was disclosed as an effective writer for the voice in his songs, "Porque no vienes," "Ahora que eres mia" and "Conga Panama," the first sung by Ernesto Romeu, and the others by Senora Marrero. Raul Fernandez Criado was the agreeable interpreter of a romantic lyric, "Entre tu y yo," by Gabriel Ruiz.

'Story of Milk' Goes Back on Air Tonight

"The Story of Milk," a radio series sponsored by the District Medical Society, will be resumed at 10 o'clock tonight over Station WMAL when representatives of the local dairying business discuss pasteurization and distribution with a Washington physician.

Clark Diamond and P. D. LeFevre will be the dairy spokesmen.

Heiress Defies Father to Wed Egg Salesman

Shipowner Luckenbach's Daughter Marries Dobbs With Much Ado.

Great Neck, N. Y., June 14.—Blonde Andrea "Bubbles" Luckenbach, until today the heiress-apparent of the vast Luckenbach steamship empire, was married this afternoon to 22-year-old Billy Dobbs, a handsome butter-and-egg man from Dobbs Fery, N. Y., in defiance to her white-whiskered father's threats to "cut her off without a cent."

The ceremony was performed at the home of a friend, Mrs. Adelaide Garni, after the 18-year-old daughter of Commodore Edgar F. Luckenbach spent the day hunting up a minister and dodging legal entanglements.

Her original wedding plans were canceled this morning when the Rev. Dr. William Grime, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, who was to have married them, called off the ceremony. He explained that he decided to refuse to marry the couple after he "read in the newspapers' about the commodore's objections.

Young Dobbs is the son of Edgar Dobbs, of the hat-making Dobbs family, of Dobbs Ferry, and currently is working as a butter-and-egg salesman.

One thing likely to make the hardships of the newlyweds less harrowing, even if Luckenbach cuts them off, is the fact that Bubbles will inherit $1,000,000 from the estate of her mother, the former Andrea Marie Fenwick, of Toronto, Canada, when she is 21.

At Sands Point, N. Y., a few miles away, where the spacious Luckenbach estate is located, was only stony silence. The commodore, whose shipping fortune originated a few years back from a fleet of mud scows in Hudson River service, has let it be known that he "never wants to hear his daughter's name mentioned again."

He explained to friends that his objection was not directed against young Dobbs, a gentleman rider on his days off, but against her marrying so young.

Churches, U. S. Join in Drive Upon Syphilis

Senate Doubles Its Fund to $3,000,000 as Churches Enter Campaign.

An anti-syphilis drive was launched yesterday by the civic affairs committee of the Washington Federation of Churches, coincident with Senate approval of a $3,000,000 appropriation for a Nation-wide venereal disease control program.

Wilbur LaRoe, jr., chairman of the church group, addressed a letter to the District Commissioners citing the lack of adequate clinic and personnel facilities and criticizing lax reporting by private physicians.

The former chairman of the Parole Board said more than 25 per cent of the prisoners at Lorton Reformatory have syphilis.

"The dangerous feature of the present situation," he said, 'is that adequate facilities and personnel are not available to the health authorities. Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer, is working intelligently on the matter but has not had the co-operation he should receive."

Meanwhile Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the Public Health Service and leader in the national drive to stamp out syphilis, hailed the Senate's action late yesterday in voting to double the $1,500,000 allotment which had been recommended by the Appropriations Committee.

Dr. Parran said the $1,500,000 which is at stake—the bill must yet go to conference—means the difference between allowing 10,000 cases of congenital syphilis to come into the world and preventing those tragedies through treatment of the prospective mothers.

Sons of Generals Win Promotions

The War Department yesterday announced the promotion to first lieutenant of Second Lieut. Stuart G. Fries, son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries, and Second Lieut. Pelham D. Glassford, jr., son of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, former superintendent of D. C. Police.

Lieut. Fries is on duty with the Twenty-first Infantry and Lieut. Glassford is in the Air Corps. Both are stationed in Hawaii.

Gen. Fries, retired, organized the world War Chemical Warfare Service. Gen. Glassford, who retired from the Army in 1931, was head of the Police Department during the 'Bonus Army" invasion here the following year. He now lives in Phoenix, Ariz.

Colored Communists Score Police Brutality

Communists who met last night at Tenth and U streets heard Calvin Cousins, colored C. I. O. organizer, introduced by Florence Plotnick, describe what he called a reign of terror in which colored men, thrown on the streets by lack of employment and shelter, were terrorized by police dragnets. Martin Chancey, who followed him, compared police killings to lynch law and demanded suspension of policemen whose recent shootings of colored men are being investigated.

Nats Beat Indians, 7-6; Myer Saves Game

This Morning..

With Shirley Povich

Cleveland, June 14.—Front office interference was the complaint of a long line of Cleveland managers before smiling Oscar Vitt took the job. That he was to have a free hand, unhampered by swivel-chair strategists was Vitt's understanding. He is learning.

POVICH

Roger Peckinpaugh, Walter Johnson and Steve O'Neill fought losing battles Cleveland front office force. And to lose a battle with the with Owner Alva Bradley is to lose your job, as the procession of Cleveland pilots discovered.

Vitt has not yet become embroiled with Bradley but there are definite signs of the handwriting on the wall. It concerns the Tale of the Tattered Shirt.

The tattered shirt in question, you may remember, was worn by Pitcher Johnny Allen, one of the supposedly sacred cows of the widely-famed Cleveland pitching staff. In Boston, where Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox, protested that the slit sleeves of Allen's sweatshirt dangled annoyingly in the batter's line of vision and obscured the flight of the ball, Allen was ordered by Umpire Bill McGowan to go to the dressing room and don a new shirt.

* * * *

Allen went into the dressing room, you remember, and apparrently forgot that he was the Cleveland club's pitcher of the day. Anyway, he failed to reappear, and Umpire McGowan pulled the watch on Manager Vitt, ordering him to produce Allen in a specified number of minutes, or send in another pitcher.

Into the locker room went Manager Vitt and Shortstop Lyn Lary and discovered Allen ranting, and making no move to go back to the diamond. Whereupon Vitt, a stern fellow if need be, slapped a $250 fine on the recalcitrant pitcher and suspended him.

* * * *

There was no secret about that fine. Vitt announced it to newspapermen in a long monologue in which he declared he would have discipline on the team or else... The fine would stick, too, he declared. On Allen's part it had been rank insubordination.

The following day the Cleveland club moved into New York. There it was learned that the famous tattered shirt had been bought from Allen by a Cleveland department store, the Higbee Co., which would capitalize on the publicity by displaying the shirt in its street front show windows for all curious Clevelanders to see.

* * * *

Curiously enough, the price fetched by Allen's shirt was the exact amount of the fine—$250.

But no laughing matter to Vitt was the fact that the Higbee Co., which, in effect, had lifted Allen's $250 fine, is owned by Mr. Alva Bradley, who also happens to own the Cleveland ball team. Vitt, it seems, had only imagined he was making the fine stick. The Cleveland front office had other ideas about it.

* * * *

Cleveland is still daffy over its ball team despite four straight defeats with which the Indians concluded their recent road trip. This morning as the Washington team reached the city, large, black warscare headlines decorated the Cleveland front pages.

Buying the papers in a frenzy to learn if war had actually been declared or what new horrible disaster may have stricken the country, your correspondent read with great surprise that:

"Harder will not take regular turn on mound for Indians."

* * * *

It was strictly front page stuff here in Cleveland, the fact that Rookie Johnny Humphries had displaced Mel Harder as a starting member of the Cleveland pitching staff. And the afternoon editions displayed it just as sensationally.

Cleveland hasn't changed much!

Down In Front

With Richards Vidmer

Haunting Echoes

Somehow I seem to have taken a rather radical departure from the customary procedure and broken the experts' code by picking the winner of the fight between Joe Louis and Max Schmeling before the eve of battle. Here the fight is still more than a week away and, contrary to all the rules of the ring worms' union, I seem to have put myself on record already. It's really a very embarrassing position in which I find myself, and for the life of me I can't seem to figure out just how it came about.

VIDMER.

Naturally, I'm quite familiar with the standard method of doing such things. Thus, I can go right through the whole routine, step by step, without even pausing for breath.

The expert first visits the two training camps. When he arrives he goes directly to the dining room and eats a big steak regardless of the time of day. Then he asks where the gladiator is and receives the reply that he is resting, which may mean that he is playing pinochle, taking a bath, reading the papers, talking percentages with the promoter, balancing his bank account, or possibly resting.

So the expert sits around and talks to the other experts and a former middleweight, preferably a little on the paunchy side, and listens to two fight managers who have no interest in the coming bout. If he listens very attentively he may be able to understand what they are talking about, but this isn't compulsory.

When the fighter finally appears the expert look up and says: "Hello, Joe" (or Max, as the case may be). Then he says: "You look in good shape." Then he asks: "How much do you weigh?" And, after being told, he says: "Well, you sure look great." Then he asks: "Aren't you going to work this afternoon?" Although the experts wouldn't be there if they hadn't been sure he was going to work. And when the fighter excuses himself and disappears into his dressing room, the experts all say: "Well, he sure looks fine."

* * * *

Then they go out to where the ring is pitched and watch the champion, or challenger, skip rope, punch a bag, shadow box and take setting-up exercises. Next they follow him with rapt expressions as he shoves around a sparring partner or two. And then they tell him he sure looks fit all right, shake hands and leave.

* * * *

Through a Telescope.

Of course, they go to the other camp the next day and go through the same routine, after which they sit around and refuse to commit themselves one way or the other until the eve of the fight, when suddenly, just as though the thought had come to them in a flash, they pick the winner.

That, as I say, is the prescribed procedure under the fundamental rules of experting. But, somehow, why I can't quite understand, I seem to have broken all tradition and picked the winner already. As a matter of fact, unless I'm greatly mistaken, I picked the winner as long as—now, let me see—why it was almost two years ago! Yes, I remember very distinctly going on record with the statement that Joe Louis surely will win.

* * * *

You must remember that. Can't you recall how I said Louis was the greatest fighter that had come along since Tunney and Dempsey? Of course you do. And I think I said something about how he combined the best features of each, carrying a punch that was as good as the Manassa Mauler's and, at the same time, boxing with all the skill of the manly Marine.

Of course you remember. I told you it wasn't a matter of "who," but simply a question of "how long." I pointed out how Schmeling had been beaten by fellows like Jack Sharkey and Steve Hamas and Max Baer, and how no fellow who couldn't beat those guys could have a hope of staying in the same ring very long with the celebrated Brown Bomber.

* * * *

No Contest.

And I distinctly recall pointing out that, as far as the the betting was concerned, no one would take Schmeling at any odds, but they were making pools on the round in which Louis will finish him and that the poor folks who drew any round after the fifth or sixth didn't have much of a chance. Remember that? Of course you do.

Now, how could I have been so radical as to make all those statements and come out flatly with the statement that Louis is a cinch as long as two years ago? That certainly baffles me. But there it is, and as long as there's no secret about my choice I might just as well go right on with the exposition.

* * * *

"Death Takes a Holiday."

I'm sure you remember how, as long as two years ago, I made some allusion to the fight resembling an execution, with Louis the executioner and Schmeling the victim, and how a postponement was merely a temporary reprieve—not a pardon by any means.

Simply the fact that I should be able to name the winner that far in advance ought to be proof enough of how one-sided the whole thing shapes up. After all, I could have waited until the day before the fight, according to the usual custom, but I'm sure it wouldn't make any difference in my opinion. If I've been so positive for two years, there's hardly any chance that I would change my mind at the last minute.

But I still can't quite make out how I happened to go so completely contrary to the experts' code. That really has me puzzled. Let's see, now—two years ago—hmmm—and even then I was going around saying that Louis would win by a knockout, probably in an early round, and that he was a cinch to go on and win the championship from Jim Brad—

Oh, yes, I remember now! I was talking about that other fight between Louis and Schmeling! By the way, how did that turn out, anyway?

Bad Throw—Bartell Scores

Giants Keep National League Pace, Defeat Pirates by 5-2

Mel Ott Connects for His Thirteenth Homer; Cubs Are Still Two Games Behind Terrymen.

New York, June 14.—Mel Ott, with his thirteenth home run and a single, twice drove in the tying runs today as the Giants opened a long home stand by turning back the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 3. The victory kept the National League champions two games in front of the Cubs.

Hal Schumacher, who gave up nine hits and three walks in recording his seventh triumph, shut out the Bucs until the seventh. Vaughan's single, doubles by Suhr and Rizzo and Todd's outfield fly gave them two runs and a 2-1 lead, but Ott tied it up with his homer in the last half of that frame.

Pittsburgh went ahead again in the first half of the eighth, getting a run on Paul Waner's single and Suhr's triple, only to have the Giants score three more in their half on a walk to Bartell, singles by Ripple, Ott and McCarthy, and Bauer's wild throw.

Bauers' defeat was his fifth, against only one victory. He gave up three walks and struck out seven.

Vaughan, Rizzo and Suhr, with his three-bagger and double, got two hits each for the Pirates, while Ott, Ripple and McCarthy split up six of the winners' nine safeties, of which only Ott's homer went for extra bases.

Suhr's two clouts stretched his consecutive game hitting streak to 15 while Paul Waner's single brought to 13.

Guldahl's 71 Leads Field In Western

Shoots 2 Under Par for Home Nine; 5 Tied at 72 for Second.

St. Louis, June 14 (AP).—The same deft touch which carved out a second consecutive national open golf championship for Ralph Guldahl last week, brought the big Madison, N. J., professional a one-stroke lead at the end of the first 18 holes of the 72-hole Western Golf Tournament today.

As late afternoon shadows streaked the Westwood Country Club course and old man par, 71, stood untouched by the assault of more than 100 pros and amateurs, Guldahl came loping down the home stretch with a sizzling 34. This was two under par for the in nine and gave him a perfect 71 total for his round.

The performance of the champion, who is seking to defy tradition by winning a third straight western open crown, shattered what appeared destined to be a 5-way deadlock for the lead at the quarter pole.

Earlier Sam Sneed, the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., big bertha, diminutive Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y.; sturdy Toney Penna, of Dayton, Ohio; dark horse Floyd Farley, of Oklahoma City, and Ray Mangrum, of Dayton, Ohio, all pros, had come in with 72s.

The Westwood course, swept by gusty winds, well-wooded and trapped, and with fairway grass long enough to be troublesome, was an unsolved puzzle to all but Guldahl. Jimmy Hines, red-headed New Yorker, and Leland Gibson of Kansas City, registered 73s, and a half-dozen sharpshooters, including Lighthorse Harry Cooper of Chicago, were bunched at 74, but the remainder of the field of approximately 120 starters was stretched out like a rubber band.

Horton Smith, the Chicago stylist, and Bert Montressor, of Taylorville, Ill., were in the 75 bracket, and Leonard Dodson, Springfield, Mo., Lawson Little, of San Francisco, and bludgeoning Jimmy Thomson, of Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, were included among the 76 shooters. Tommy Armour, of Chicago, and Frank Walsh, of Bretton Woods, N. H., two of the old guard, treated themselves to fat 78s, and highly-regarded John Bulla, of Chicago, staggered in with an 83.

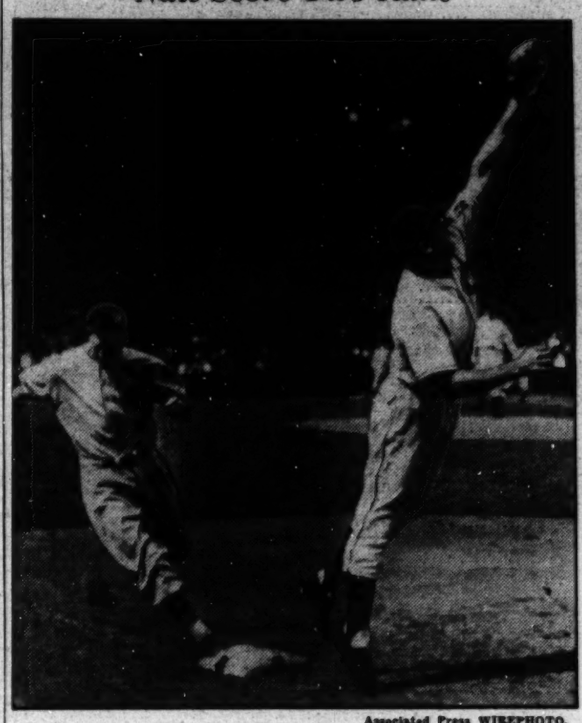
Nats Score Two Runs



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Because DeShong, of the Nats, beat this throw to Hal Trosky at first base to break up a prospective double play, the Nats scored two runs in the second inning against Cleveland yesterday at Cleveland. DeShong would have been the third out and Lewis, next up, doubled.

Nats Would Give Johnny Stone For Hurler, but Where Is One?

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 24.—That the Washington club is frantically attempting to swing a player trade before the deadline falls at midnight tomorrow was established here today.

Manager Bucky Harris declared he had no announcement to make, but it is known that he was in communication with Owner Clark Griffith by telephone both before and after today's game with the Indians.

There is little doubt that a pitcher is the object of the Nats' search. Griffith, still scenting a chance for his club to finish high in the race, if it does not figures in the pennant, visualizes additional pitching strength as his chief hope.

With virtually every other club in the league similarly seeking pitchers, Manager Bucky Harris declared he is virtually resigned to working with his present staff. But Griffith's habit of springing deals just before the deadline is in the Nats' favor.

The belief is that the Washington club owner is negotiating with the St. Louis Browns for Oral Hildebrand, the tall right-hander whose record this season is not imposing but who is generally regarded as a valuable hurler.

In exchange, the Nats are prepared to offer outfielding talent which the Browns need. Harris may even part with Johnny Stone if that outfielder will fetch Hildebrand to the Nats. Al Simmons and Goose Goslin are also tabbed as trading material, but are not expected to interest other clubs to any great degree.

Asked if Zeke Bonura was being regarded as trading material, Harris said bluntly:

"Of course not."

Cubs Defeat Bees, 5 to 2

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 14.—The Chicago Cubs kept chipping away at Lou Fette's offerings today until they had piled up five runs, enough to beat the Bees, 5 to 2, ad keep the Cubs within two games of the National League-leading Giants.

Meanwhile Tex Carleton was holding the Bees hitless in all but three innings, and shut them out until the seventh, when a single, a double and two infield outs brought in both Boston runs. It was Carleton's seventh victory of the year against four defeats.

Fette, 20 games winner last year, was charged with his eighth defeat. He was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Cecil Travis, Goose Goslin Hit Homers

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 14.—The Nats found somebody they could lick today, no less than the league-leading Cleveland Indians, and through the margin of victory—7 to 6—was nothing to brag about, it was highly satisfactory.

His Washington pals stake Jimmy DeShong to two leads at various times and apparently had the game won nicely, but there were occasions in the late innings when DeShong threatened to give it back to the Indians.

The upshot, however, was that the fast skidding Indians suffered their fifth straight defeat, which, coincident with the Yankees' triumph at Chicago, cut the Cleveland lead over New York to a mere half game.

DeShong Doesn't Finish.

Despite his victory, DeSong kept intact his record of failing to finish a game this season. With the left-handed power of the Indians' batting order arriving at the plate in the ninth, with one out, DeShong was lifted for the ninth time this year and Elon Hogett sealed the Nats' triumph.

There was trouble afoot for the Nats in that ninth with DeShong striving to protect his one-run lead, but Buddy Myer stuck out his glove in time's nick to rob Sammy Hale of a Texas leaguer hit to right field. It was a sensational play by Myer, who, with his back to the plate, and making the catch by pure instinct, caught the ball as it passed over his shoulders.

Two Homers in Fifth.

In an attempt to right his faltering pitching staff, Manager Oscar Vitt unveiled young Johnny Humphries as a starting pitcher for the first time in that rookie's big league career. The Nats pummeled him from the box in a big four-run fifth inning.

All told, the Nats accumulated 11 hits off four Cleveland pitchers, while DeShong and Hogsett were limiting the Indians to 8. Five of their hits the Indians made in the first three innings when they took a 4-2 lead. DeShong pitched three-hit ball from that point, but a double by Ken Keltner produced two runs that cut the Nats' lead to 7-6 in the seventh.

Young Humphries encouraged the Nats to take a 2-0 lead in the second inning when he walked three batters and then with two out, pitched a double to Buddy Lewis, who blasted the ball against the wall in right center.

Averill Hits Homer.

Earl Averill's eighth home run of the season—over the right centerfield fence, cut that lead to 2-1 in the second and then Campbell quickly tied the score by leading off the third inning with a homer over the wall in center. A pair of walks and Heath's double down the rightfield line put the Indians in a 4-2 lead before the inning was over.

The Nats' left-handed batting order, which contained seven southpaw swingers, today started to work on Humphries in the fifth. After

Maiden Wins Main Event InGoodTime

Four-Year Effort for Top Place Finally Brings Reward.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 14.—Jinneal, a 4-year-old filly which has been knocking around the tracks for the best part of three years without collecting the winning end of a purse, picked the Flag Day Purse, today's feature race, as the spot to win her maiden race and romped off with a length decision. Best Policy, the pacemaker virtually all the way, was second, with Lady Dunlin third.

Paying a $9.80 mutuel, Jinneal defeated six horses, all of which have made visits to the winner's circle on occasions. She was capably handled by Jockey Leon Garrett and turned in the good time of 1:47 3-5 for the mile and a sixteenth.

The Gabe Murphy Purse, secondary feature and named for the athletic official of Georgetown University, brought a thrilling nose finish in which Miss Epe, with Sammy Palumbo up, barely downed Channing, ridden by Tommy Fowler. Third money in the field of eight going 7 furlongs was Heart Play. Miss Epe paid $6.40.

The green and white colors of Melvin C. Hazen, District Commissioner, were carried to victory for the first time at this track when Mary Allen, named for Commissioner Allen's daughter, finished on top of seven others in the fourth race. The Washington-owned filly was a surprise winner and paid a $45.40 mutuel.

In this race Jockey F. Sargent was thrown from the back of Schley Buck and was taken to the hospital. Besides a fractured collar bone, Sargent was believed to have suffered internal injuries. He said that his mount "ran up on the heels of horses" and stumbled.

Shorts, a paddock tip, scored a head decision in the first race, defeating Leah Fern with Janstar third in a field of eight maidens. Jockey Buddy Root rode the winner and saved ground all the way while Leah Fern, with Palumbo up, was lapped on his mount. Shorts, owned by Mrs. G. Campbell, paid $6.80.

Miss Troy took a thrilling neck victory in the second race, bringing her backers a $12.20 pay-off. Lead Please was second and Roving Eye third. The last named set most of the pace but weakened and Miss Troy staved off the closing bid of Lead Please.

KIL CLAP	(Berg)*	110	8	6	7½	7½½	8	8	13.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SHORTS, $6.80, $4.20, $2.80; LEAH FERN, $5.80, $3.60; JANSTAR, $2.40.

SHORTS, in close quarters leaving gate, was sent to front under hustling tactics, withstood challenges of LEAH FERN and lasted to wire under strong handling. LEAH FERN, rushed to pacemaker approaching backstretch, showed a game effort. JANSTAR raced on inside and closed with good energy. LOOK FORWARD could not threaten seriously at any stage.

SECOND RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:02. Off 3:04½. Winner, E. T. Bishop's ch. f. (4), by Trojan—Rose Tournament. Trained by M. Hackett. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:19 2-5.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight

PANTRY	(Fowler)	109½	3	8	7½	7½	7½	8	31.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS TROY, $12.20, $6.20, $4.20; LEAD PLEASE, $5.60, $3.20; ROVING EYE, $2.60.

MISS TROY, strongly handled from start, went to contention with sharp move along backstretch, saved ground to take command and outgamed LEAD PLEASE in final drive. The latter worked way to leaders approaching stretch and tired under punishment. ROVING EYE was used up setting pace. ISLE O' JOY had speed to press pace and faltered.

THIRD RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:30. Off 3:32. Winner, Mrs. S. Crouther's ch. f. (4), by Trojan—Galatia. Trained by J. Hill. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:51 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—INDIANA, $16.00, $5.60, $4.60; POLL PARROT, $3.20, $2.60; SMALL DEVIL, $4.20.

INDIANA, going in best form, broke forwardly, came through on inside with rush to take command entering stretch and held POLL PARROT safe. The latter was rushed along to hold lead over SMALL DEVIL, shook off latter and came willingly, but could not menace winner. MORVIM was away slowly and had little chance.

Daily Double, Miss Troy and Indiana, Paid $108.40.

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:56. Off 3:57. Winner, M. C. Hazen's br. f. (3), by Longworth—Tuscan Maiden. Trained by F. E. James. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:18.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARY ALLEN, $45.40, $15.20, $5.60; GREEN WATER, $4.60, $3.00; SCOUTALLOW, $3.20.

MARY ALLEN rated while in thick of contention, came out gradually in final stages to front and continued gamely, but could not resist winner. SCOUTALLOW lacked racing room at first turn. PACEMAKER was held safe. SCHLEY BUCK ran up on heels of horses at first turn, losing rider.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:22. Off 4:22½. Winner, H. R. Dulaney, jr.'s. b. g. (9), by Infinite—Our Option. Trained by A. Hullcoat. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:21 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PROTEUS, $4.40, $2.80, $2.20; PACK AWAY, $4.60, $2.80; JUSTA GIRO, $2.40.

PROTEUS shook off JUSTA GIRO to take command, drew clear and held PACK AWAY safe in closing drive. Latter was hard ridden, but was held safe. JUSTA GIRO was used up setting pace under hustling tactics. KTWO saved ground and went evenly.

SIXTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $500. The Gale Murphy; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:50. Off 4:51½. Winner, Mrs. G. Hutchins' ch. f. (4), by Sea Rock—London Charm. Trained by E. Brining. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth $25. Time, 1:27 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS EPE, $6.40, $3.60, $2.80; CHANNING, $6.60, $5.00; HEART PLAY, $5.40.

MISS EPE, sent to front at once, shook off challenges of IVONIA, drew clear, but had to be ridden out to stave off closing bid of CHANNING. The latter worked his way to contention on outside, moved up menacingly, but hung right at end. HEART PLAY saved ground, was shut off along rail at far turn, and came boldly at end. SEA FINN went evenly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:20½. Off 5:20½. Winner, Mrs. H. W. Waesley's ch. f. (4), by The Satrap—Pink Lily. Trained by C. Lee. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JINNEAL, $9.80, $5.20, $3.60; BEST POLICY, $4.00, $2.80; LADY DUNLIN, $3.60.

JINNEAL, not hurried in early stages, circled leaders when called on and won going away under punishment. BEST POLICY took lead leaving gate, saved ground and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. LADY DUNLIN saved ground and weakened in closing test. AUPOIN went forwardly, but was held safe.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:49. Off 5:49½. Winner, Fay Brady's b. f. Congressional Women Win Honors in District Team Golf

Take Third Class Title, Tie for 2d

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Congressional Country Club teams garnered a major share of the honors in the Women's team matches as play was concluded yesterday, winning the third class cup and tying with Army and Navy for the second team trophy. Indian Spring had previously clinched the championship in the first division over Chevy Chase.

The second team battle was the closest of the series, with Congressional, Army and Navy and Columbia all within striking distance as the final day's play started. Congressional eliminated Columbia by a 7 to 2 margin and was tied by the Service Club team, that trounced Washington by the same margin.

The teams will play off for the title next Tuesday at Indian Spring at 9 a. m. Mrs. T. J. Johnson, of Army and Navy and Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, of the Congressional Club, will be unable to play, leaving Mrs. Myron Davy and Mrs. George Hussey to fight it out for three points in the No. 1 match.

Leading by a wide margin as the final third team matches started, Congressional clinched the trophy with a convincing 7½ to 1½ win over Kenwood at Manor. Indian Spring defeated Columbia, 6 to 3, and finished second by an 11 point margin over Kenwood. Army and Navy pushed Chevy Chase into a tie for last place with the idle host team by winning, 5 to 4.

The Congressional team finished early with its 45-point total in the second team play, but Mrs. F. L. Whittaker, captain of the Army and Navy team, proved to be the heroine as she knocked in a 15-foot putt on the final green, with a large gallery knowing that she had to do it to gain the tie. Mrs. Dowdall, of Congressional, was forced to leave with three holes to play due to the serious illness of her mother, and Mrs. Myron Davy played Mrs. Brundage and Mrs. Hall alone for three holes, and succeeded in holding a lead to win the back nine.

In other second-team matches at Chevy Chase, Manor defeated the defending champion Beaver Dam team 7½ to 1½ to finish behind Columbia, in fourth place, while Woodmont nosed out Chevy Chase 5 to 4, as the latter defaulted 3 points and finished in eighth place.

Mrs. Ralph W. Payne, president of the Women's District Golf Association, presented the Indian Spring first team of Mrs. Betty Meckley, Mrs. Charlotte Stern, Mrs. Walter Stokes, Mrs. K. S. Giles, Ellen Kincaid and Marion Brown the championship trophy.

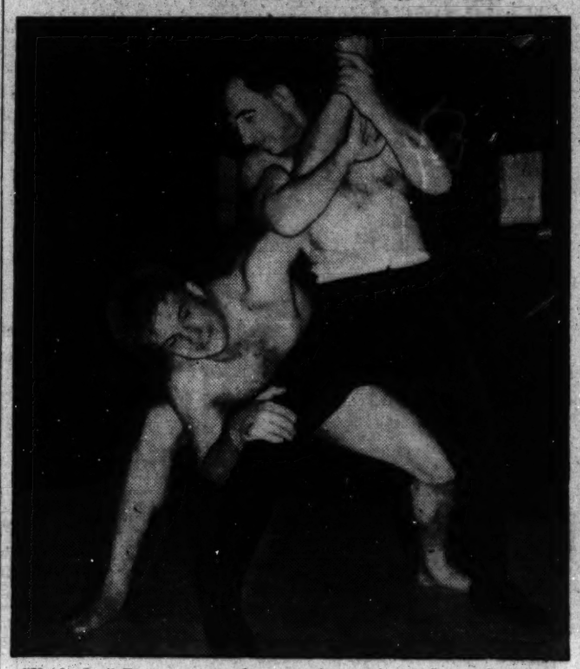
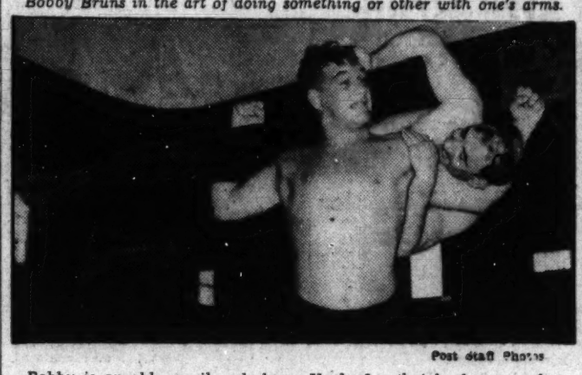
Turner Shows Bruns a Trick



"Uncle Joe" Turner, currently promoting boxing and wrestling here, was once middleweight champion of the mat world. That was in the days when science counted and the burlesque was confined to gaudy-fronted show houses. Uncle Joe is here shown giving a lesson to Bobby Bruns in the art of doing something or other with one's arms.



Post staff Photos

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Joe Turner, one of matdom's mightiest middleweights in his salad days, pulled on his form-fitting wrestling tights yesterday and worked 15 minutes against Bobby Bruns, the Chicago heavyweight, and a bewhiskered old gent known around the Bowser circuit as Old Hourglass, the guy who eventually gets 'em all.

It was a public demonstration, and the promoter was to show Master Bruns, who meets Jim Londos tomorrow night at the stadium, some pre-war strategy and how to utilize it to the utmost. But it ended with Bruns showing Joe a few of the fancier, modern tactics. And Turner was forced to admit that current wrestling styles aren't devoted exclusively to color and theatrical effects. They get results.

A corporal's guard of old-timers, who knew Joe when he was a brash youngster heaving opponents from the Gayety Theater stage to the second balcony, turned out to see him in action once again, and he treated them to some rare old wrestling, a la Turner. Joe's torso has undergone a few changes to be sure, but he still knows how to get around the hemp enclosure.

He's a bit fluffy around the belt line and patches of nude scalp are visible where once matted black hair grew. His legs are a little slower and heavier, but he still uses the arms as well as ever. Working with him really is a problem, or was for Bruns, who was afraid he might get speared by a protruding rib or two. Joe had everything but his neck broken during his lengthy career, although it hasn't handicapped him.

Bruns displayed much interest in a "fadeaway" hold that was one of Poe's pets in bygone years, and in turn displayed a new-fangled leg hold that the average artist can't dissolve with a sledge hammer.

Bruns also labored with Al Bakhsh, former pro wrestler and now Y. M. C. A. instructor; George Bruckman, amateur matman, and Billy McFayden, a newshawk. Bruns tossed Billy upside down a couple of times, like a cook baking flapjacks; gave Bruckman a couple of heaves over his head, and struggled through a variety of holds with Bakhsh.

The remainder of tomorrow's card includes Chief Thunderbird vs. Orville Brown; Fred Grubmeier vs. Frenchy LaRue; Rudy Kay vs. Ivan Vacturoff, and Boris Demitroff vs. Jake Patterson.

Beatty's Foxglove II Wins Ascot Gold Vase

Ascot, England, June 14 (AP).—Another of Peter Beatty's turf purchases paid quick dividends today.

Foxglove II, which Beatty purchased last night from Prince Aly Khan, won the Ascot Gold Vase, over a 2-mile course. Sir Woodman Burbridge's Solonaise was second and James V. Ranw's Michoumy third.

Beatty's Bois Roussel recently won the Derby a month after he had purchased him from Leon Volterra, of France.

Browns Get McQuillen.

St. Louis, June 14 (AP).—Glenn McQuillen, Western Maryland University all-around athlete, has joined the St. Louis Browns as an outfielder, the American League Club announced today.

Yanks Beat Chisox, 7-4, With 7 Hits

Score All Runs in Sixth Inning After Error by Radcliff.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 14.—Although outhit, 8 to 7, the New York Yankees scored seven unearned runs in the sixth inning today to open their Western tour with a 7-to-4 victory over the White Sox and Southpaw Thornton Lee, who beat them five times last season.

Except for Rip Radcliff's error, the champions would have been held scoreless in their big inning. Instead, with the aid of five hits, two of them singles by Flash Gordon, and two bases on balls, seven men crossed the plate. Big blow of the inning was Myril Hoag's triple with the bases loaded.

Both Lee and Spud Chandler, who started for the Yanks, failed to finish. Lee was lifted for a pinch-hitter, while Chandler was relieved by Johnny Murphy in the seventh after the Sox had scored three times.

District Women Win in Baltimore Tennis Tourney

Baltimore, June 14 (AP).—Washington women set the pace in the annual Maryland State women's tennis championships today as the tourney reached its quarter-final round at the Baltimore Country Club.

Edith Clark and Sarah Moore, D. C. entries, were the first to make the quarter-finals, while two other Washington players, Margo Lee and Mrs. Stanley Robinson, defending champions, successfully passed the second round.

Miss Clark defeated Mrs. Charles Hook, Baltimore, 6—0, 6—0; Miss Moore eliminated Anna Dayett, also of Baltimore, 6—3, 6—3.

Mrs. Robinson ousted Mrs. Dorett Miller, Washington, 5—7, 6—2, 6—2. Miss Lee beat Grace Parker, a former Baltimore municipal women's champion, 6—2, 6—2.

Finals in both singles and doubles will be played Thursday.

Argument Is Costly.

Columbus, Ohio, June 14 (AP).—Outfielder Joe Gallagher, of Kansas City, was fined $25 by President George W. Trautman, of the American Association, today for entering the stands at Indianapolis and engaging in an argument with a spectator following the June 4 baseball game.

Big 'Gloves Question' Settled by Fight Men

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Chris Dundee, the bespectacled gent regarded as an oddity in the fight game because he speakes English properly, stopped off in the city yesterday en route to Richmond, to iron out a few difficulties that have cropped up in the forthcoming bout between his man, Phil Furr, and the local pride and problem, George Abrams. They meet Monday night at the ball park.

Dundee went into a huddle with Matchmaker Ahearn and Syd Fishel, Abrams' agent, behind the suspenders counter at Ahearn's dry goods emporium, and when the shouting and tumult had subsided the boys were agreed on everything but the winner of the bout. It took a master politician such as Herr Golden only a few minutes to get crossed wires untangled, and when the rivals departed they were glowering only for the press' benefit.

The most serious problem on Dundee's blue-shirted chest, the matter of gloves, was disposed of first, both parties agreeing to a mitten with four ounces of padding over the striking surface. The remaining four of eight ounces required by law, will be packed around the wrist.

Dundee, incidentally, has a double motive for wanting to win the fight, which, it appears, will outdraw the Yarosz-Abrams scuffle by a couple of thousand fans. First, he wants to bring Furr back for a shot against a better-known opponent, which will mean a larger purse for him, and secondly, he wants to see Abrams knocked off because of the double-cross he says Fishel gave him a year ago.

Fishel, according to Chris, offered him a 50 per cent interest in Abrams for assistance in getting him started in pro ranks about a year ago, and Dundee accepted. He brought in Ken Overlin, a ranking middleweight, to impart the finer points of boxing to George. Dundee was to help move Abrams into New York and handle his business on that end of the line.

The partnership was abruptly terminated, however, when Dundee took Overlin to the Coast for a bout with Freddie Steele which never materialized. Upon his return Chris was informed that if he were interested in Abrams it was only socially, because he was out in the cold, cold world, financially. And, while Dundee was no little nettled by this turn of events, nothing could be done about it because he had neglected to sign a contract.

Hence, the reason Chris has camped on Abrams' trail for months waiting for the day when he could be enveigled into a bout. Now that he's got the bout he expects Furr to do his part and knock out Abrams.

If he doesn't, Mr. Dundee is going to be a very disappointed manager, and Furr is going to be a bruised and beaten battler.

Dodgers' Train Is Late; Miss Game With Reds

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 14 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers ran into something comparatively new today in the way of postponements.

Returning from the West the Dodgers were delayed four hours by locomotive failure outside Albany, N. Y., today and could not arrive in time to open a series with the Cincinnati Reds. Today's game was rescheduled as part of a double-header Friday.

B. & O. to Run Special Delaware Park Train

Effective today the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will inaugurate special train service direct to Delaware Park track, leaving the Union Station 11:20 a. m., arriving at the grandstand at 1:05 p. m.

The special will return immediately after the last race. Air-conditioned coaches, parlor car and dining car will be operated.

Curt Davis Pitches Win Against Ex-Mates.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, June 14.—Curt Davis pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-to-3 victory over his former teammates, the Phillies, today.

Davis held the Phils to seven hits, six of them coming in the last three innnigs, and scored the winning run himself in the eighth on Slaughter's two-bagger after two were out.

DO YOU KNOW ALL THESE ANSWERS?

Question: What makes the best Summer shoes?

Answer: White Buckskin. Because of its rich appearance. And because of its comfort. It is velvet-soft, porous, lets your feet really breathe.

Question: Are there many grades of Buckskin?

Answer: Yes. The best grades in our judgment, come from South America. They have the body to withstand the extra strains of fine shoemaking.

Question: Is this leather much imitated?

Answer: Yes—in names, but not in characteristics. Only B-u-c-k-s-k-i-n is Buckskin.

Question: What should Buckskin shoes cost?

Answer: Go as high as you like. But first see John Ward's collection at $5. All are genuine Buckskin, the top grades which we import annually. Last year our Buckskins were all $6.50. Not even in 1932 were they priced as low as $5.

Favorites Survive Initial Round of Women's Open

Patty Berg, Helen Harb Win Easily

Former Victor, 5 and 4, and Latter Triumphs by 8 and 7.

By the Associated Press.

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 14.—The girls who crack them far and straight off the tee attracted the most gallery respect today as first round matches in the women's Western Open golf tournament were rattled off without bringing a single surprise.

Most of the triumphant favorites, among them defending Champion Helen Hicks Harb, Medalist Patty Berg, Beatrice Barrett and Texas Babe Didrikson, were poking their drives long and true across the lush fairways of the 6,500-foot-high Broadmoor course.

Mrs. Harb, of Little Rock, Ark., scored the most one-sided decision of the day, an 8 up and 7 to play victory over Mrs. C. M. Severns, Tulsa, Okla.

Miss Berg, Minneapolis, averaged better than 225 yards with her drives in defeating Mrs. Lillian Zech, of Chicago, 5 and 4.

Miss Barrett, also of Minneapolis, 1937 runner-up at Chicago last year, and Miss Didrikson shot the best golf of the day. Beatrice, steady in every department, breezed 12 holes in two strokes under par in eliminating Mrs. Francis G. Riche, Denver, 8 and 6.

Miss Didrikson, Beaumont, Tex., pro, clipped one stroke off par in a 7-and-5 win over Mrs. Frederick B. Shaw, Denver.

There was only one tight battle. Mrs. Hayes Dansingburg, Rochester, Minn., former Minnesota champion, was forced to go to the seventeenth green before erasing Iva Mae Pilcher, Mexico, Mo., 3 and 1.

Helen Hofmann, Salt Lake City, runner-up for the medal yesterday, with 81 to Patty Berg's 79, was too strong for Mrs. W. W. Haerther, Chicago, winning 8 and 6.

Phyllis Buchanan, Colorado champion, from Denver, pinned a 6-and-5 trimming on Margaret Kinerk, South Bend, Ind.

Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City's threat for any women's golf title, disposed of Mrs. Murray Gose, Colorado Springs, 6 and 4.

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 14 (AP).—Second-round pairings in the Women's Western Open golf tournament tomorrow (time is mountain standard):

9:05—Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, vs. Mrs. E. R. Hury, San Antonio, Tex.
9:10—Mrs. Helen Hicks Harb, Little Rock, Ark., vs. Beatrice Barrett, Minneapolis.
9:20—Helen Hofmann, Salt Lake City, vs. Mrs. H. O. Romadka, Minneapolis.

20-Year-Old Accounting Worker Wins Hoover Trophy for Low Gross; Olmsted Second.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Jerry Hart, 20-year-old Government Accounting Office worker from Arkansas and two-time winner of his home State junior crown, won the J. Edgar Hoover Trophy for the low gross score in the Federal Golf Tournament at Kenwood yesterday with a 72, 70-142.

Hart's score was five strokes better than a teammate's Jock Olmsted, who had 73, 74—147, and finished second for the second consecutive year. Hart, Olmsted, Frank G. Butler and Sam Harvey won the Mellon Trophy for the low gross team score in Class A. Harvey and Butler played on Monday and had 81, 79 and 79, 78, respectively.

Three tied for the Class A low net prize, R. M. Brown, D. M. Hevener and A. W. VanLeer, all with 135. R. Leighey and R. A. Bishop finished in a deadlock for the Class B low gross, with 136, while Class B low net went to J. R. Linn with 129.

G. Hougg, Veterans, won the Class B low gross prize and Charles A. Barnard had a nine-stroke margin as he captured the Class C low net with 129.

Patent Office won two of the team trophies, Class A low net and Class B low gross, while Class B low net went to ICC, and the Class C low net and gross, respectively, went to PWA and Interior.

Hart's low score was three strokes higher than the record 139 made by Volney Burnett last year. The latter was unable to defend his title due to an injured arm. The transplanted Arkansas golfer hit a birdie streak on the first nine in the morning of three in a row nd turned in 32. He was back in 38 for a 70 and the lowest round of the event. He scrambled to 14 pars, a birdie and three bogeys holes in the afternoon, drawling, "I didn't know there were so many ways to make a par."

Other gross scores that bettered Frank Goodwin's opening-day low of 152 included W. W. Seay with 79-71—150, and Tommy Bones, 78-72—150.

Nats

Goslin and Travis rapped out their homers to tie the score. Stone beat out an infield hit. Rick Ferrell walked and DeShong, to the surprise of all concerned, drove over a run with a single to center. So did Myer, and the Nats were in front, 6-4.

They made it 7-4 with the help of Second Baseman Sammy Hale in the seventh. Hale booted Wasdell's grounder and then he muffed a throw by Keltner to put Wasdell on second. The run scored from third while Myer was beating out a hit to Hale.

DeShong found himself in trouble in the seventh after Heath's cheap hit to center with one out and then he walked Averill. Trosky popped up for the second out, but Keltner lashed a double into left field and Heath and Averill galloped home.

That, however, was the Indians' last hit of the ball game. DeShong recovered nicely in the eighth to get the Indians out in one-two-three order and in the ninth Hogsett did all right, too.

Orioles Bow To Redwings

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Md., June 14.—Rochester defeated the Orioles, 3 to 0, tonight to even the series. Johnson limited the Birds to 5 hits. Only one man got as far as third base. It was Johnson's second straight shutout.

Carl Fischer, Oriole hurler, pitched well for 8 innings, before retiring for a pinch-hitter. He allowed only seven hits and fanned seven. His only base on balls was intentional. Johnson walked no one.

Bruce Ogrodowski, with a single and homer batted in all of the Redwings runs.

G. W. Plans Nine Again

The George Washington University advisory alumni committee yesterday stamped its approval on plans and appropriations necessary to re-establish baseball at the G street school and to elevate it to the status of a major varsity sport for the first time.

Need of an important spring sport and the clamoring of the student body for such a team is thought to have prompted the move. The diamond sport was discontinued this spring because of lack of funds and facilities.

Under the new plans George Washington will be represented by a freshman nine next season and by a varsity team in 1940. Edward K. Morris, local businessman, will resume his position as coach. Max Farrington, graduate manager of athletics, will serve as assistant to Morris.

With the resumption of baseball relations with Ohio State, West Virginia and other rivals of long standing also are expected to be renewed. Gamees with Georgetown and Maryland are brewing, too, and it is not unlikely that these three rivals will face within the next three or four years.

With plenty of veteran material already in school the Colonials do not anticipate undue trouble in molding together a first class nine once again. Leonard Kushman, former All-High pitching choice at Western, Bob Nowaskey and Don Garber are but a few lads of proved ability.

The freshman team will not be technically a frosh outfit, for any student who has not played before for George Washington will be eligible to try out for the team. However, in 1940 the Colonials will adopt a freshman rule which will prohibit yearlings from participating in the varsity sport. In the past the Colonials employed freshmen.

Yates Steals Show; Walker Team Feted

By Kerr N. Petrie.

Copyright, 1938, by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, June 14.—A little rusty since Bobby Jones dropped out of competition, but none the less enthusiastic since the arrival of a new home-town hero, fellow golfers of Atlanta, fellow citizens and members of the press descended upon New York today to bring back another of their links idols.

They met Charlie Yates with the cup emblematic of the amateur championship of Great Britain when the Aquitania docked at an early hour that set off the first of what will be a succession of public receptions.

They were joined by officials of the United States and Metropolitan Golf Associations, who were down to welcome Yates as well as the entire personnel of the Walker Cup team. After all of the details of baggage checking had been attended to, the golfers were conducted to the downtown Athletic Club, where they were guests at a dinner attened by several hundred friends and enthusiasts.

Walter P. Holcombe, president of the D. A. G., started the speechmaking and gave place to Bill Slater, headmaster of the Adelphi Academy, who was toastmaster from then on.

Archie M. Reid, president of the U. S. G. A., who had little more than time to get back from Denver and the National Open championship, was on hand with the official welcome, so to speak. The Walker Cup matches, he said, was one of the finest sporting events in the world today. The fact that the team had been defeated was unimportant compared with the impression the members had made abroad.

Francis Ouimet, nonplaying captain, spoke on behalf of the Walker Cuppers, and told that the trip abroad was the best he had ever undertaken. He could not begin to do justice to the magnificent performance of the new British champion, he said. Yates had beaten four Walker Cup players on his way to the title and he had given a most consistent exhibition, putting beautifully throughout.

Yates, said Ouimet, had made such an impression, both at Troon and St. Andrews, that the Scotch wanted to keep hib.

"I told them," said Ouimet, "they could keep the Walker Cup, but I had to take Charlie back."

It seems that several hundred employes of the bank in which Yates works in Atlanta had sent telegrams of congratulations. Charlie wanted to thank them all, but he also wanted to save as much as possible on the cost of cable tolls. So the new champion sent back this message: "Fortune smiled."

Ouimet declared that the team was one big happy family. No discordant word ever was uttered—that is, unless while playing hearts someone handed Charles Yates the queen of spades.

Man of the Month

(Each day, Arch McDonald distributes 10 points among the Nats whose play was most helpful to the Washington Club. At the end of each month The Washington Post will award to the leading player a gift in token of the honor of being The Post-Wheaties' "Man of the Month.")

By Arch McDonald.

(WJSV-Wheaties Baseball Commentator.)

To Jimmy DeShong goes the lion's share of today's award of points in the Man of the Month contest following the Nats' triumph at Cleveland yesterday.

To DeShong, four points, because despite the six runs he allowed, he pitched capably in the pinches in the late innings, allowing only three hits after the third, and because he contributed two hits to the Nats' attack.

To Buddy Lewis, two points, because his double with the bases full in the second inning was a terrific hit against the centerfield wall, which drove in two runs.

To Buddy Myer, two points, because one of his two hits produced a run, and because his sensational catch of Hale's Texas leaguer possibly saved the game in the ninth.

To Cecil Travis, one point, because he contributed a home run and two singles to the Nats attack.

Young Loses Chesapeake Corp. Control

Opponents Elected to Board; Holding Company Will Be Dissolved.

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 14.—Stockholders of the Chesapeake Corporation, middle holding company of the vast Van Sweringen rail empire, voted today to dissolve the corporation and distribute its millions of dollars worth of assets, including controlling interest in the Chesapeake & Ohno Railroad.

The action at the annual meeting of the corporation here ended the long and bitter battle waged between Robert R. Young, New York financier, and Wall Street interests for the control of the C. & O., most valuable remnant of the Van Sweringen holdings.

Overwhelmed by votes of shareholders controlling more than 70 per cent of Chesapeake stock, Young's forces were ousted from control of the holding company when the meeting voted to expand the board of directors and promptly named three young opponents as members. Tomorrow, in New York, as the result of a unanimously approved resolution to dissolve Chesapeake, the new road will hear a recommendation by Young for a dividend action and a distribution of capital.

Guaranty's Big Holdings.

The Guaranty Trust Co., of New York, voted proxies for 780,100 shares of Chesapeake stock, held as security for Alleghany bonds.

Young last week lost a court fight for an injunction to prevent Guaranty from voting its controlling interest in Chesapeake. Today, with proxies from 1,324 stockholders, Young mustered 184,350 voting proxies, compared with 1,305,819 held by his opponents.

Earle Bailie, New York investment banker, representing the management's opposition, was elected to fill a vacancy on the old five-man Chesapeake board with John B. Hollister, Cincinnati attorney, and John L. Dickinson, Charleston, W. Va., banker, named by the Bailie group to the vacancies on the expanded board.

Young himself moved to dissolve the corporation, asserting Alleghany Corporation felt Chesapeake was "unnecessary," and that its continuance "through artificially depressing the value of the collateral being Alleghany bonds, has caused and will continue to cause an artificial depression in the market value of the bonds themselves."

Daily Oil Output Up 28,549 Barrels

Tulsa, June 14 (AP).—Production of crude oil in the United States increased 28,540 barrels daily during the week ended June 11 to an average of 3,135,424, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

Oklahoma climbed 24,300 barrels daily to 464,775. East Texas increased 752, to 364,000, but the State of Texas dropped 1,177, to 1,188,525. Louisiana increased 1,426, to 259,063, and Kansas hiked 10,425, to 148,650, but California dropped 3,500, to 771,750.

Cotton Rally Adds $1 a Bale

New York, June 14 (AP).—Cotton rallied about $1 a bale from early losses today. October sold up from 8.03 to 8.23 and closed at 8.20. Final prices were 12 to 14 points net higher.

The market opened 2 to 3 points lower and eased a point or so further early, influenced by easier Liverpool cables and clear weather over the Cotton Belt. When foreign selling and July liquidation proved limited, trade and spot house buying developed in July.

Spreading Ruin By Black Rust Kites Wheat

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 14.—Alarm over black rust damage widening out, together with fears the destruction would extend into Canada, whirled wheat markets skyward 4 and 5 cents today.

Chicago values soared 4 cents a bushel higher than last night, and Winnipeg 5 cents. December contracts here reached a new peak price record for the season.

The top levels attained in Chicago were about 14 cents up from five-year lows made hardly two weeks ago. Adding momentum to the bulge were reports that United States Government flour purchasing for relief purposes would total 2,000,000 barrels.

Despite brisk selling to realize profits, Chicago wheat futures closed 2¼-2⅞ cents above yesterday's finish, July 80⅜-80⅝, September 81⅛-81⅜; corn ⅜-¾ up, July 57¾-57⅞, September 58¾-58⅞; oats ⅜-⅞ advanced; rye showing 1¼-1⅞ jump, and provisions varying from 2 cents setback to an equal gain.

Steel Subsidiary Cuts Sheet Prices

New York, June 14 (AP).—Dow-Jones & Co. said today in a dispatch from Pittsburgh that Carnege-Illinois Steel Corporation, a subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation, has reduced its quotations for the third quarter delivery on galvanized sheets by $3 a ton.

The new quotations were reported to be $3.65 per 100 pounds Pittsburgh and $3.75 Gary, Ind. The so-called independent makers of galvanized sheets are expected to establish the lower prices, the report continued.

B. & O. Carloadings.

Baltimore, June 14.—Carloodings on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for the week ended June 11, totaled 35,160. For the same week last year the total was 52,263, and during the previous week of this year (the week ended June 4), total loads were 32,139.

Hopes That Railroad Loans Bill May Pass Supports Moderate Rally in Rail Shares.

New York, June 14.—Early irregularity in the stock market today was eliminated later when Congressional supporters of the proposed railroad loans bill evidenced renewed confidence that they may be able to force their measure through in the closing hours of this session. The possibility of this railroad bill becoming law has been off again, on again and gone again as many times as Finnegan's famous locomotive and at the close today it was still on the tracks, but with the road not clear ahead.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley, after a conference with the President by telephone, said the President did not object to the bill and the Senator predicted its passage. Earlier, however, House leaders had stated their unwillingness to consider the proposal irrespective of action taken by the Senate.

The fact that the issue was not completely dead brought the rail issue up from early lows and the entire market enjoyed a modest rally, the list closing near its best for the session and up 0.25 point on the average. The Government bond list held firm, railroad bonds improved with stocks but were mixed at the close. The dollar was again under pressure after its respite Monday and leading commodities were sharply higher, wheat adding 2⅞ cents and cotton 12 to 14 points.

Devaluation Rumors

The dollar's troubles again accompanied the rumors of an eventual further devaluation in our currency, a report that persists despite official denials. The flight into gold today was as noticeable as the flight from the dollar, and there is little doubt that we are losing gold through operation of the stabilization fund, even though the fact and the possible amount are not revealed by official figures.

Galvanized sheet steel, the only important classification left out of the third-quarter price schedules when the rates for finished steel products were announced more than two weeks ago, were cut in price $3 a ton today. The importance of the price adjustment is that other classes of finished steel were virtually unchanged by the earlier announcement. Officials would not discuss the matter today but it is assumed this new rate for galvanized sheets will be affirmed by all important producers tomorrow.

Dividend Omissions.

Western Electric joined the outstanding corporations to pass their dividends today. American Telephone, which owns virtually all the Western Electric stock outstanding, was down ¾ point, selling ex-dividend, and there was virtually no activity after the Western Electric announcement.

General Electric and Westinghouse enjoyed good support, the former being the day's most active issue. Aviation issues were well cared for in today's advance with Douglas featuring with a gain of 1¾. Oils and metals were firm. International Nickel and Anaconda were leaders in the metal division, advancing good fractions, while among the chemicals there was a 3-point jump in Allied Chemical and du Pont was up fractionally in active trading.

Buoyancy of wheat was a feature of speculative markets today. After an early downturn there was an abrupt climb based on the spread of black rust northward, while the prevalent inflation sentiment helped things along. Prices touched as much as 5 cents above their early lows and two deliveries went to new highs for more than a month.

Railroad bonds continued to work their way lower in a quiet listed bond market session today. Severe declines took place early in the day, and a modest afternoon recovery modified the losses when it was reported that RFC lending to the carriers might be widened. Highly rated bonds were steady, in the absence of new offerings. Foreign dollar issues drifted slowly downward, with most changes small. Turnover was $4,930,000.

Among the more vulnerable carrier bonds losses ranging from fractions to 6 points appeared, and fresh lows for the year and the movement were not uncommon. A few issues managed to close with small net gains on the afternoon rally, but they were in the minority. Rail and utility holding company bonds did not vary much, but local tractions showed sizable losses. International Telephone issues advanced.

Spanish War.

As they usually do when signs appear that the Spanish war soon may end, speculative commodity bonds and other special groups were dull.

Long term United States Treasury bonds showed more small gains than losses, as dealers continued their rapid distribution of the new 2¾ per cent bonds and 1⅛ per cent notes. Guaranteed issues of the farm and home corporations also were slightly better. In counter markets the rush for short dated issues continued, but the supply remained altogether inadequate. Highest grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds were steady in the corporate division.

Latin-American default bonds were inclined toward softness in a dull foreign section. The European variety of disregarded pledges also suffered from neglect. Czech bonds held on small trades, while Italian and Japanese issues slowly gave way. Best grade issues of Australian, Canadian and Scandinavian origin receded fractionally, in obvious response to the influence of the London market.

Washington Business 7% Under Normal

New York, June 14.—Business in Washington at the end of May stood at 7 per cent below normal according to the monthly survey of 147 trading areas of the United States conducted by the business survey department of Brooks, Smith, French & Dorrance, Inc., New York and Detroit national advertising concern. This represented a loss of 1 per cent from April, and a loss of 10 per cent from May, 1937, when the index stood at 3 per cent above normal.

"While business activity followed a downward course in the majority of trading areas during May, 40 trading centers throughout the country bettered their standings," the report states. "In each case the rise can be explained by favorable local conditions which proved stronger than the national trend. Improvement in these 40 areas ranged from 1 per cent to 4 per cent over April figures. In 17 other areas local conditions kept business at the same level as in April. The remaining 90 areas showed declines."

The national index declined 3 points below the April standing, dropping to 41 per cent below normal as compared with only 3 per cent below in May, 1937. The greatest May gains, with indexes improving 3 per cent or more over April, were registered in the following areas:

Abilene, Buffalo, Camden, Cincinnati, Dayton, Fort Worth, Fresno, Joplin, Minneapolis, Montgomery, Nashville, New Orleans, Philadelphia, San Antonio, Spokane and Springfield, Ill. The following areas were at normal or above in May: Abilene, Albuquerque, Cheyenne, Mobile and Phoenix.

B. & O. '37 Loss Is $720,695

Baltimore, June 14.—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, issuing its annual statement for 1937, reports a deficit of $720,695, a decrease of $5,259,670 from 1936. In the report, which is being mailed to stockholders today, Daniel Willard, president, says:

The report of the company's operations for the year 1937 shows that total railway operating revenues for the year were $169,436,436. This was an increase over the previous year of $443,755, notwithstanding the termination on December 31, 1936, of the emergency increase in freight rates and charges authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission on March 26, 1935.

"Had these emergency charges been continued during 1937, freight revenues of the company would have been about $7,000,000 more than they were for that year. Despite this loss in revenue, and the increase in costs of operation, due to higher prices of material and fuel, and increases in wages during the latter part of the year, the net income available for fixed charges was $31,463,336, or but $720,695 less than the total fixed interest and other charges of $32,184,031 accruing during the year. The total taxes accrued in 1937 aggregated $11,216,077, an increase over 1936 of $720,208.

"Freight revenue for 1937 was $147,212,330 or $604,588 less than for 1936, this decrase being caused largely by the almost unprecedented decline in business activity during the last half of 1937. Passenger revenue for 1937 was $11,918,602, an increase over 1936 of $735,660, or 6.58 per cent."

Devoe & Raynolds Cut Salaries 10%

New York, June 14 (AP).—Salaries of all Devoe & Raynolds workers earning above $1,200 a year will be cut 10 per cent on July 1, De Lancey Kountze, chairman of the board, announced following a special meeting of the board of directors today.

Stockholders at a separate meeting authorized the issuance of $2,000,000 of 15-year 4¼ per cent debentures, which have been sold in one lot to the Equitable Life Assurance Society. Proceeds will be used to pay off bank loans and for working capital, Kountze stated.

179 Railroads Fight ICC Stoker Order

Cleveland, June 14 (AP).—Attorneys for 179 railroads filed suit in Federal Court today, seeking to restrain an Interstate Commerce Commission order requiring installment of automatic stokers on all coal-burning locomotives.

The order, issued last December, requires 20 per cent of the locomotives to be equipped with stokers by July 1, and another 20 per cent each year thereafter. The order arose from a complaint filed with the ICC in 1931 by officials of two railroad brotherhoods.

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO. SUMMARY OF ANNUAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1937

The report of the Company's operations for the year 1937 is being distributed to the stockholders. It shows that total Railway Operating Revenues for the year were $169,436,436. This was an increase over the previous year of $443,755, notwithstanding the termination on December 31, 1936, of the emergency increase in freight rates and charges authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission on March 26, 1935. Had these emergency charges been continued during 1937, freight revenues of the Company would have been about $7,000,000 more than they were for that year. Despite this loss in revenue, and the increase in costs of operation, due to higher prices of material and fuel and increases in wages during the latter part of the year, the Net Income available for fixed charges was $31,463,336, or but $720,695 less than the total fixed interest and other charges of $32,184,031 accruing during the year.

Freight revenue for 1937 was $147,212,330 or $604,588 less than for 1936, this decrease being caused largely by the almost unprecedented decline in business activity during the last half of 1937. Passenger revenue for 1937 was $11,918,602, an increase over 1936 of $735,660, or 6.58%.

BALANCE SHEET.

The balance sheet at December 31, 1937, indicated total property (less accrued depreciation) and other investments, of $1,087,040,474, and current assets of $29,987,154 (which include $12,297,325 for materials and supplies, an increase of $3,390,386 over 1936), as against current liabilities of $29,034,104. The total of interest-bearing debt and leased lines obligations outstanding was $680,862,793 (an increase of $2,198,151 compared with preceding year). The outstanding capital stock was $315,158,485, and corporate surplus $75,839,767.

The Company renews and records its high appreciation of the loyal support and efficient co-operation of all the officers and employes, and solicits the interest of employes and security holders in securing business for the Company.

Corn Exports Are Heaviest For 16 Years

Short Argentine Crop Indicates Continued Demand From U. S.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 14.—Continued export demand for American corn for at least a year appeared virtually certain today in view of an announcement that the Argentine crop would approximate one-half of normal production.

Grain men professed to see in the announcement a likelihood that American farmers would be called upon to meet much of the European demand which normally is filled by Argentina. On the basis of present Argentine crop estimates, the potential market for American farmers was figured upward of 175,000,000 bushels. This would be more than this country has ever exported to Europe.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics said advices from Buenos Aires reported the Argentine government's official estimate of the crop at 179,000,000 bushels. Drought was held responsible for the smallest crop in 15 years, which compared with last year's production of 359,615,000 bushels. Normally, Argentina is the world's largest corn exporter.

European countries already have taken millions of bushels of last year's American corn crop. L. C. West, Chicago Board of Trade statistician, estimated corn exports since last November at around 84,000,000 bushels, heaviest since 1922, when exports totaled 163,609,000 bushels.

Island Protegee Of First Lady Wins C.U. Prize

Puerto Rican, 19, Rewarded for Scholarship by French Envoy.

A 19-year-old Puerto Rican protege of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was among prize winners yesterday at the first class day exercises in the history of Catholic University.

Lay seniors of the College of Arts and Sciences and the School of Engineering and Architecture participated in ceremonies at McMahon Hall.

Frank Rafael Ledesma-Diaz, holder of a scholarship which Mrs. Roosevelt was instrumental in arranging four years ago with the then rector, Bishop James Hugh Ryan, received an award presented "in the name of the French Ambassador through the Washington chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French" to the outstanding senior student of the French language.

Ledesma-Diaz, whose mother is connected with the Puerto Rican department of health, said that he met Mrs. Roosevelt when he was a high school student in Puerto Rico.

McCormack Valedictorian.

Edward O. Ramler, son of Professor Otto Ramler of Catholic University, received three honors, a graduate scholarship in chemistry to Pennsylvania State College, a medal as outstanding senior chemistry student and a cash award to the senior in the College of Arts and Sciences who has attained the highest scholastic rating in the four-year course.

Charles Royal McCormack, valedictorian, told his classmates that "America today still offers more opportunity than any other nation at any other time. The scope of opportunity for a college man is expanding rather than contracting."

"The future of this university as an American institution rests upon the continued development of the college of arts and sciences and the school of law," declared Richard Joyce Smith, '24, who delivered the principal address.

Other Senior Awards.

Recalling his undergraduate years at the university, Smith wondered "if Trinity girls still go to Georgetown for their dance partners, but to C. U. for their husbands, as they did in my day."

The right Rev. Joseph Corrigan, S. T. D., rector, urged the seniors to "dare to be yourselves; dare to be different."

John Louis Liccini, outstanding senior in the School of Engineering and Architecture for the year; William Louis Hechmer, outstanding senior in civil engineering for the year; Felix Henry Young, outstanding senior in architecture; William Joseph Dempsey, Knights of Columbus scholarship.

Eight on Dean's List.

The Very Rev. Dr. James Marshall Campbell, dean of the college of arts and sciences, read the following dean's list for academic excellence: Herbert L. Behrendt, John F. Chludenski, William J. Dempsey, James A. Fitzpatrick, Clement R. McCormack, Edward O. Ramler, Joseph W. Scott and Charles A. Thomas.

The forty-ninth annual commencement of the university will be held at the gymnasium at 10:30 a. m. today when 543 degrees will be conferred. The commencement address will be delivered by Robert Hamilton Kelley, K. H. S., LL.D.

The following will receive degrees:

I WAS NEVER SO MAD IN MY LIFE! TH' SUPERINTENDENT OF TH' INCINERATOR CAME OVER HERE AN' ASKED US TO MOVE OUR TRAILER — SAID TH' MEN COULDN'T STAND TH' SMELL OF MY COOKING

Bob Burns Says—

I don't believe you can change a person's way by lecturin' him. The best way to get him is to kinda sneak up on his blind side and paint him a word picture so he can use his imagination and figger out the reward for himself.

I knew it wasn't any use tryin' to persuade an uncle of mine to send his boy to school so I started tellin' him about how proud I was when my boy won a scholarship. When I got all through talkin', my uncle says, "Well, I know exactly how you feel. I felt the same way when my hog won a ribbon at the county fair."

Beautiful Blond Gets Publicity, Fireman Wins 'Jitters' Contest

A pretty blonde, a policeman and two firemen vied for honors yesterday in a test to determine the extent of their traffic "jitters."

And guess who won. The blonde? Well—yes and no. She won all the attention and, what with photographers snapping her picture all over the lot, almost eclipsed what credit went to the real winner—Private Edward R. Curtis, driver of the Fire Department's rescue squad ambulance.

It must be mentioned—and she said she didn't mind—that Miss Cynthia Evans, of 2121 New York avenue northwest—came out last in the contest. This proved, said American Automobile Association engineers, that blondes are more excitable in traffic.

The tests were conducted jointly by the A. A. A. and the Junior Board of Commerce traffic safety institute as part of the institute's new program to make Washington motorists safety conscious.

Each contestant was placed in a sort of "electric chair." His—or her—hands were strapped down and Richard Ham, A. A. A. safety director, then shot off cap pistols, rung bells, flashed lights and tried generally to confuse the vietim.

It was called an "excitability test." Private Curtis came through with flying colors. He could hardly be ruffled. The next best example of calmness was exhibited by Capt. Harvey Callahan, commander of the First Police Precinct. Private Percy Graves, of Engine Company No. 9, took third place.

Roosevelt Is Architect For Hyde Park House

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 14 (AP).—Local contractors today were asked by President Roosevelt to bid on specifications for a 5-room, single-story native field stone house to be erected on Cream street, Hyde Park, a few miles from the President's home.

Specifications named Mr. Roosevelt as the architect, and a Warm Springs, Ga., architect as an advisor.

'Dutch Indies' Wrong Name, Farley Orders

By the Associated Press.

Postmasters who use the word "Dutch" incorrectly henceforth may find themselves in dutch with Postmaster General Farley.

A departmental publication advised the postmasters yesterday that the Netherlands government has requested that the Dutch East Indies, be referred to as the Netherlands Indies, Surinam, and Curacao, respectively.
